Oktoberfest

AND THE BAND PLAYED ON – The 35th annual Oktoberfest Celebration was held at the Oakland fire hall last week as part of the Autumn Glory Festival, and the OVFD Oktoberfest "Oom-Pah" Band was as lively as ever, with conductor Manning Smith at the helm (shown above right). Polka dancers young and old took to the dance floor throughout the evening, as shown below. Photo by John McEwen.

A CLOWNY HUG – Adding to the fun as always at the 45th annual Autumn Glory Festival were the Shriner clowns, who traditionally take part in the Grand Feature Parade and entertain every step of the way. Clown Eric Wotring was pictured when he returned a hug from a little bystander. Photo by Lisa Broadwater.

MAKING THE ROUNDS – This year's Honorary Golden Ambassador Rob Michael seemed to have a fabulous time, making the rounds at a number of Autumn Glory Festival events, and greeting the crowd with smiles and handshakes. Michael is a State Farm Insurance agent in Oakland, and has been involved in a number of community projects and civic endeavors. He was the sponsor of the Best of Festival trophy for the Western Maryland Tournament of Bands, also held during AGF. Photo by Lisa Rook.

Officials Review

tions were reduced.

Corley said mayors have reduced spending as much as they possibly can and are to the point where there is nothing left to cut. She noted Loch Lynn cannot afford to pave streets with asphalt anymore and has resorted to just patching pot holes with coal mix.

"One option is, obviously, to give up our towns," Corley said. "And no mayor wants to see that happen. I'm sure the county doesn't want to have to take over towns because we can't afford to function."

She asked Mobley to "get the message out there" to state officials about the towns' struggles and the need to restore their funding.

"Why is no one hearing us, or if they're hearing us why is no one able to somehow put some of this money back into this fund?" Corley asked.

Dr. Dona Alvarez, Garrett County Citizens for Smart Growth, voiced her support for local mayors and funding for much needed smaller projects, such as a sidewalk at Southern High School.

"We need to see something real," Alvarez said about state spending. "This talk about the top three things (previously mentioned projects) – millions of dollars – this is crap. Look at this woman (Corley). What's she asking for? To fill a pothole? Really?"

The doctor indicated there is a "disconnect" between MDOT and local residents, and a meeting once a year is not enough. She encouraged state officials to talk to local mayors and residents often to learn more about their concerns.

Alvarez questioned why the Oakland bypass project "keeps creeping and marching forward" and is still listed as the county's No. 2 capital highway priority.

"The bypass is still there and the reason is because we have already invested a lot of taxpayer money, time, and effort into that," Commissioner Jim Raley said. "Maybe in the future we will see a different need."

Peters noted that the project is on hold.

"We aren't doing any work on that at this point," she said. "It is still in the program, but there is no funding allocated at this point going forward."

Moe indicated the project has stayed active because it was requested by a former Oakland mayor and town council and board of county commissioners. He also noted that previous route changes have not created economic hardships for Oakland businesses.

"The bypass creates an option for people to go either around or through the town," Moe said. "They are not prohibited from coming through the town whatsoever. And the actual cost is not $100 million. The estimates now are around $57 million, and that's probably because of the cost of materials."

Raley stopped the growing heated debate about the bypass, suggesting that it continue at another time.

"Obviously, we have differences of opinion within this county, and I think that becomes our first challenge for us to resolve before we take it to the acting secretary and his staff," he said. "I think we all know the governor has made his position on that project pretty crystal clear at this point. So, through 2014, I think there's a very clear focus where this project stands. So we should have some open, honest thorough discussions between now and the new administration taking office in 2015 of where we believe this county should be and how we believe it (bypass) should be a focus."

Activity Of Bears On The Increase During The Fall

Cooler fall temperatures signal black bears to begin a period of increased feeding activity to prepare for hibernation, according to a release by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

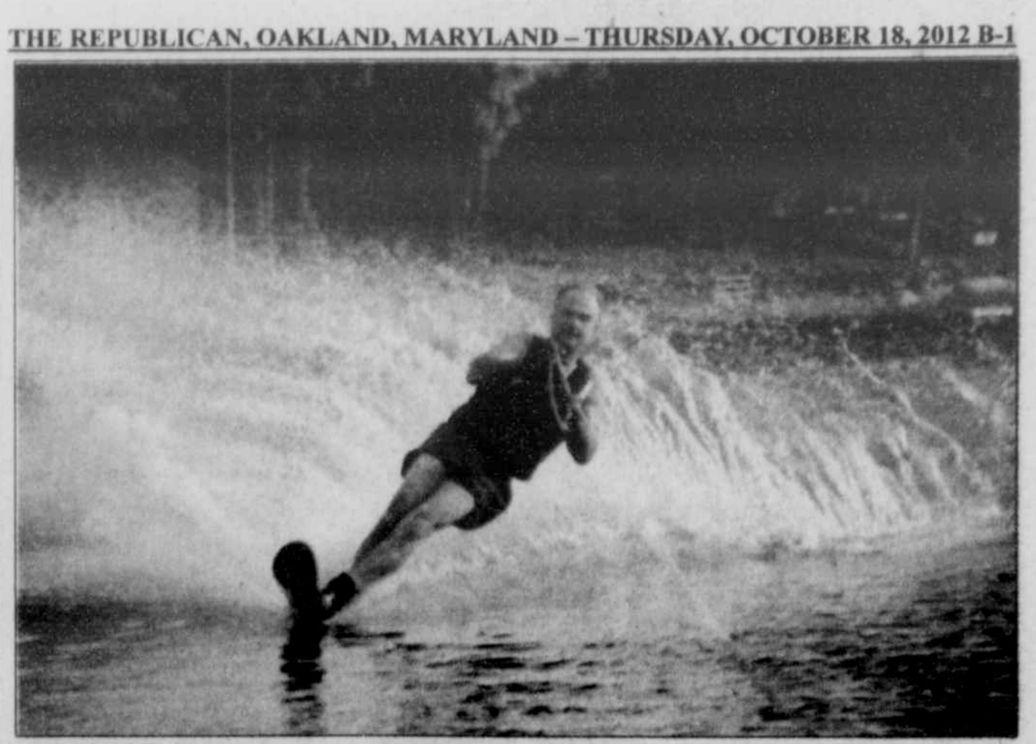
During this time bears may be attracted to human-provided food sources – such as trash, pet food, and bird-feeders – and lose their natural fear of people, which can lead to dangerous encounters and conflicts, according to a DNR spokesperson.

Keeping trash and pet food in a place where bears can't get to it is the best way to avoid problems with bears, he said, adding that citizens should also delay feeding songbirds until the winter months to avoid attracting these animals.

Since bears may travel many miles in search of food, motorists traveling in Maryland's western counties are reminded to watch for them crossing roads, especially during October and November.

Maryland's bears will begin entering dens in mid-November, and most are denned by mid-December.

To learn more about Maryland's black bears, citizens may contact a staff person in DNR's Western Region office at 301-777-2136, or statewide at 410-260-8540.



SOME NICE CARVING of the surface of Deep Creek Lake was demonstrated by none other than the president of Garrett College, Dr. Rick MacLennan, pictured directly above, who along with several others decided to make slalom waterskiing among their own personal Autumn Glory Festival events this past weekend. Pictured below is MacLennan's daughter Julianne. While the MacLennans donned wet suits, Chuck McIntire, above right, toughed it out in his swimming trunks, as he took to the lake in observance of his 60th birthday. The photos were submitted by the two separate families, but ironically, McIntire grew up spending his summers in the same house now occupied by the MacLennans and located along Rock Lodge Road.

Phi Theta Kappa Holds Ceremony; 23 Are Inducted

During a recent ceremony at Garrett College, 23 new members were welcomed into the Phi Theta Kappa (PTK) Honor Society's Alpha Omicron Phi Chapter. The mission of this international organization is to recognize and encourage the academic achievement of two-year college students and to provide opportunities for individual growth and development through participation in honors, leadership, service, and fellowship programs.

To be eligible for membership in Phi Theta Kappa, a student must complete a minimum of 12 hours of associate degree course work and generally earn a grade point average of 3.5 or higher. Students must maintain a high academic standing throughout their enrollment in the two-year college, generally a 3.25 GPA. Part-time and full-time students are eligible for membership.

The ceremony opened with a message of welcome and congratulations from Garrett College president Dr. Richard MacLennan to the inductees and their families and friends.

"This is a great moment to recognize academic achievement," he said. "I congratulate you on this honor, as it is no small accomplishment.

"There is a challenge for students being inducted into Phi Theta Kappa," he continued. "It brings recognition, as well as an opportunity to elect officers, develop leadership, and find ways to give back to the academic community."

James L. Allen, interim dean of instruction, also welcomed those present and noted the importance of support from loved ones in the achievement of success.

"Tonight we recognize your high level of academic achievement and, in many cases, your active role in the life of Garrett College," he said. "Congratulations on your achievements, and best wishes for your future success."

Allen outlined the history of Phi Theta Kappa. Founded in 1918 in Missouri to recognize the accomplishments of two-year college students, Phi Theta Kappa is today the largest honor society in American higher education with more than 1.3 million members and 1,000 chapters located in all 50 of the United States, U.S. territories, British Virgin Islands, Canada, Germany, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, United Arab Emirates, and Palau.

Krista McKenzie, Phi Theta Kappa advisor, spoke to the students, their families, and friends about the goals of this honor society as represented in the PTK organization shield.

Allen led the students in the recitation of the membership pledge and awarded certificates, and McKenzie presided over the signing of the honor roster. A reception followed the ceremony.

The FastTrac New Ventures course scheduled at Garrett College has had a schedule change, with the first day of the class moved from October 18 to October 25 to coincide with the celebration of Economic Development Week in Garrett County.

This course will be offered in the Garrett Information Enterprise Center (GIEC) business incubator building on the GC campus. This practical, hands-on course is designed for prospective and new entrepreneurs, is partially funded by the Garrett County Department of Economic Development, and is part of the county's economic development continuing celebration in 2012.

The course will be facilitated by Mike Tumbarello, entrepreneur, educator, and consultant. Tumbarello can be reached at 301-387-3167. There are limited openings for this course.

Garrett College Transfer Fair Is Deemed Success

Garrett College students had the opportunity to meet with representatives from more than 20 universities and colleges recently at a Transfer Day Fair held on the McHenry campus. The event was designed to help start the transfer planning process as early as possible so that students could move toward their education goals.

"The earlier students start planning, the easier the process will be and the better choices they will make about the next step in their education, career, and life plan," said Judy Carbone, GC director of advising, career, and transfer services.

The fair was spread throughout the old gymnasium, which provided the space for students to gather to share lunch and play some games while reviewing information on the transfer process in a relaxed atmosphere.

"We provided information booklets to the students that included profiles on the colleges represented, as well as the timeline for steps to be taken in the process of transferring from Garrett College to their selected four-year institution," said Carbone.

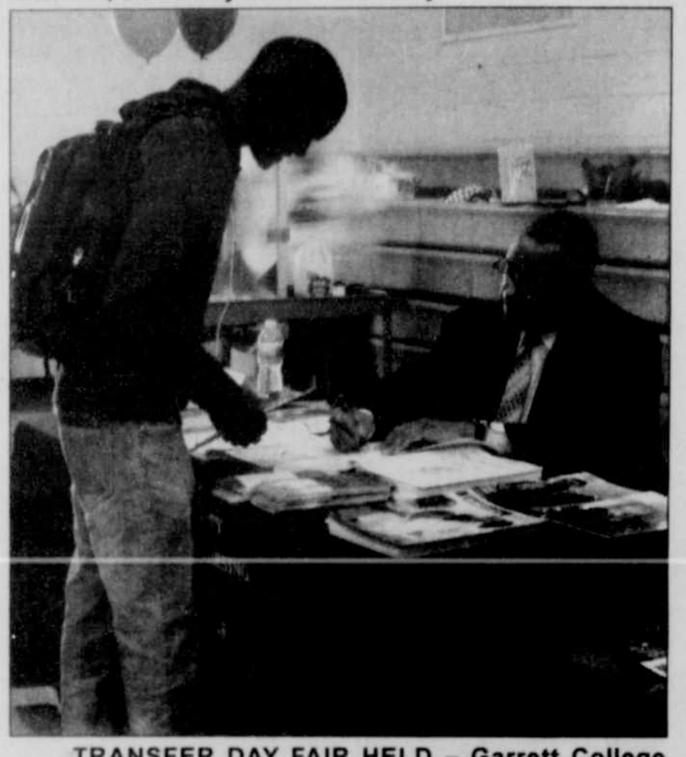
Students were encouraged to get the name and contact information of the recruiters and to establish a connection with them. It was suggested that they practice a script they could use to describe themselves, their future goals, and why they are interested in a particular four-year institution.

"We suggested that they ask very targeted questions to help assess the institution and to get information to make an informed choice," Carbone said.

International student Raymond Musika of Uganda described the Transfer Fair from a student's point of view.

"It was a wonderful opportunity, and the setting was very comfortable and natural," he said. "It wasn't just an opportunity to meet with the representatives; it was also an enrichment experience. It was very good for me. I'm a nursing student, and I was able to speak with someone from the Coppin State Nursing Program."

College and university representatives present for the Transfer Day Fair reported that from their perspective it had been a "very successful" event and that the students they spoke with were "well-informed and asked good questions."



TRANSFER DAY FAIR HELD – Garrett College student Raymond Musika talks with the representative for the nursing program at Coppin State University in Baltimore during the recent Transfer Day Fair held on the GC campus. Musika, who is majoring in pre-allied health at Garrett, said that the fair offered "a wonderful opportunity" for all the students who participated. See story.

Diploma Seekers Being Advised Of GED Test Changes

Requirements for receiving a Maryland High School Equivalency diploma through the General Educational Development (GED) testing process will change beginning in January 2014, according to Patricia Baer, coordinator of the Garrett College Southern Outreach Center.

"The exam will be a computer-based test, rather than on paper, and the price to take the exam is expected to triple," she said. "Though the 2014 date may seem distant, this information could be important for students who have tested in the past five years and failed one or two parts of the exam."

These individuals will have the opportunity in 2013 to complete the exam using the paper version.

"After December 2013 all previously earned scores will be wiped out, and all students will need to retake even the parts that they have passed," Baer said.

Baer organizes the adult basic education classes that prepare individuals for the GED test. She noted that there are regular changes to the testing format.

"Every 10 years the exam is changed to keep current with public school requirements of 12th grade," she explained.

The GED process requires that students take and pass an Official Practice Exam prior to challenging the actual test for a diploma.

"I would encourage anyone interested in earning a Maryland diploma to participate in these classes," said Baer.

Students must be at least 16 years of age and not enrolled in a public school system. Walk-ins will be accepted at any of the college's Adult Basic Education sites, but interested persons may call the Adult Education Office at 301-334-8304 or 301-387-3781 in advance for more information.

GC Schedules Traffic Control Manager Class

A temporary traffic control traffic manager course will be held at the Northern Outreach Center in Grantsville on Tuesday, Nov. 6, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Clarence Haskett, Maryland Department of Transportation, State Highway Administration (SHA), will instruct this session.

This one-day course certifies individuals to be traffic managers, which enables them to provide work zone traffic control as required on projects on the Maryland highway system.

Designed for field supervisors and crew leaders, the course covers the fundamentals of temporary traffic control, SHA related standards and specifications, typical applications, and more.

A passing grade is 70 percent, and the SHA specifies that this course must be successfully completed every four years.

The workshop is being offered through the Continuing Education and Workforce Training Division of Garrett College. Morning refreshments will be provided.

For additional information, persons may contact Terry Beach, Northern Outreach Center coordinator, at 301-895-4700 or terry.beachy@garrettcollege.edu

Ask The Everyday Scientist

REFLECTIVE CLOTHING

by Dr. Tom Sheahen

Q. Sometimes when I'm driving at twilight there is a jogger alongside the road, and there are strips on his jacket that really light up so you can see him easily. How does that work?

A. This is a result of your headlight beams being reflected right back in exactly the direction they came from. Ordinarily, light just bounces off regular objects (clothing, skin, animals, trees, etc.) in all directions, and not all that much light comes directly back to you. That is called light-scattering or diffuse reflection. But it is possible to contrive to send light right back toward its source.

The device that does this is called a retro-reflector. A cube of some types of good glass having very precise flat sides will serve the purpose; it's called a corner cube. No matter how the cube is oriented, slanted or tipped, if the sides are mutually perpendicular, light entering the cube will exit exactly back along the incoming direction.

A basic principle of optics is that the angle of reflection equals the angle of incidence. A beam of light entering a cube travels until it strikes the back wall. No matter what angle it came from, the angle at which it bounces away equals that incoming angle. Then the light crosses the cube until it runs into another wall, reflecting off that at still another angle, which in turn depends on the previous angle. After it hits the third perpendicular wall of the cube, the light beam goes back out the front face. Here is what makes a corner cube work as a retro-reflector: The sum of the angles of reflection add up to 180 degrees! Since the ray of light leaving the cube has gone through reflections totaling exactly 180°, it's headed back where it came from.

Working out the algebra, combining the angles and showing that the total is 180° is a standard problem in AP physics textbooks.

This makes retro-reflectors very useful for enhancing safety. Bicycles have retro-reflectors mounted on them so that oncoming cars will see an intensely reflected light while still some distance away. Jogging shoes often have retro-reflectors on the heels to make them highly visible to approaching drivers.

Retro-reflectors don't have to be that big. The cubes of glass can be extremely tiny, smaller than grains of sand, and thousands of them can be blended in with fibers when clothing is being made. The clothing is just as flexible and smooth as any normal fabric. To the unaided eye, nothing looks the slightest bit different – until a flashlight is shined on the clothing.

Children's Halloween costumes are made safer this way; even the totally black capé of Dracula can contain tiny corner cubes that alert an oncoming driver. Children wearing masks often can't see where they're going, and need the extra margin of safety that retro-reflectors provide.

Road signs are painted with paint containing retro-reflectors, so they're easier to read at night. The yellow and white stripes on roads contain similar paint, which increases the distance a driver can see the stripes; that matters a lot at 60 mph. License plates likewise are manufactured using such paint, which means that a radar beam sent out by a police car will bounce back exactly toward the detector because radar waves behave exactly as light waves. The range at which they can detect a car is greater because of the retro-reflectors in the paint.

The astronauts of Apollo 11 and subsequent flights placed retro-reflectors on the moon. From the earth, a laser beam sent to the moon (about ¼ million miles) strikes the retro-reflector array and comes right back, producing a detectable signal at Earth. By timing the delay of such a laser pulse, an accurate measurement of the distance between Earth and moon is made. Among other things, the folks who tried to claim the moon landing was all a hoax were left unable to explain how that signal came back, unless somebody had gone there to set the retro-reflectors in place.

Dr. Sheahen lives at Deep Creek Lake and has taught physics at Garrett College. Persons wishing to submit questions for this column may e-mail them to newsroom@therepublicannews.com.

GC Amateur Radio Emergency Services Holds AG Event Station

The Garrett County Amateur Radio Emergency Service (GCARES) operated a special event station from the caboose at the B&O Train Station in Oakland during Saturday of Autumn Glory. The group wanted to honor the telegraphers who operated from the station in bygone days.

Inside the caboose, an amateur radio station with a straight key was set up with a licensed operator sending Morse code, using no commercial power. The station was operating under the special one day call sign W3M. Any ham station hearing the code could send a reply back in code. Contacts were made in Florida, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. Each contact was mailed a QSL card with a picture of the train station and caboose including details about the contact. The operators included Shaun Neidlinger, KB3CXQ (pictured), Tim Gift, KB8NUF, and Pam Viner, N3HFC. Because of poor atmospheric conditions and limited antenna height, the number of contacts was limited.

At the entrance to the caboose, Mark Moynahan, K3EE, and Denise Moynahan, KD4UCP, greeted visitors and introduced them to three learning centers with activities for learning Morse code and for practicing the code. Old-fashioned code devices and keys were available to use. There was also a computer keyboard that sent Morse code with each key press. An electronic code reader was attached that translated the code into a digital display of the letters typed. Moynahan also provided a history of the use of telegraphy at the station and its uses today.

"While Morse code is no longer required to get an amateur radio license, it is still in use," said a spokesperson. "Often Morse code signals can be heard and understood when voice cannot because it requires less bandwidth and is easier for the ear to distinguish under adverse atmospheric conditions."

The code is used by the National Traffic System (NTS), which is a series of amateur radio nets (networks) meeting daily to pass routine, priority, welfare and emergency traffic (radiogram messages) across the country. The NTS uses various modes including Morse code, voice, and digital.

Amateur groups such as GCARES can be called on in an emergency by local officials to assist as needed to pass messages, including the ICS 213 message form used by the Federal Emergency Management Agency. A special radio e-mail program called Airmail can be used to send messages, with ICS forms attached, solely by amateur radio, without the use of the Internet.

Anyone interested in getting an amateur radio license can go online to the American Radio Relay League for resources or attend a local meeting.

GCARES meets the second Monday of the month at 7 p.m. at the Southern Rescue Squad building. Those interested may also contact Bill Shomo, GCARES emergency coordinator, at 301-334-2997. Jill Schaumloeffel, Garrett College, has recently started the Backbone Mountain Amateur Radio Club and has offered amateur radio classes through the Continuing Education Division.

VETERANS' FACILITY PLANNED – The Bruce Community Outreach Center (former Bruce High School) in Westernport will serve as the facility for the Western Maryland Veterans Shelter and Services Center. The group raising funds for the facility has found a partner in Rev. Steffan Carr of Christ Memorial Church. The church is currently in the process of setting up social services programs so that veterans programs and the church programs are interrelated. The group hopes to be up and running by Nov. 1. See story for details.

Veterans' Shelter Facility Located In Westernport

A facility has been located to serve as a Western Maryland Veterans' Shelter. Information concerning fundraising efforts for a facility was reported in an earlier edition of The Republican.

According to Daniel Brashear, a veteran of the U.S. Navy who serves as the organization's CEO, a building and partner have been located in Westernport at the former Bruce High School building. The building is currently owned by Rev. Steffan Carr and serves as the Bruce Outreach Center.

"We had originally intended to set up in Garrett County, but couldn't find a suitable building as the deadline came close," Brashear explained. "We came across the high school either by sheer luck or divine intervention, depending on who you ask. When we surveyed the building, the church members were working on it. We met Pastor Steffan, and the rest was history."

Brashear noted that the organization has also had a great deal of interest from the local Garrett County church community through Rev. Kevin Brody and the associated pastors of his 30-church council.

"They have offered to assist us in any way they can," he said. "We would like to thank those businesses and managers who stuck with us and let us put up and keep our collection buckets around the county to get this going. We never would have reached this point without their help. The list of people and agencies willing to help us is long and colorful, but we can't thank you all enough."

Brashear also mentioned that Congressman Roscoe Barlett and his office staff were especially helpful in this endeavor.

Work is currently under way at the facility, with hopes to open within 30 days. Within the first six months, the organization hopes to provide shelter housing to 20 veterans, both male and female, and their dependents if necessary.

They also want to establish job training, employment training, veterans' benefits assistance, drug and alcohol abuse counseling, permanent housing assistance, and other needed services for both veterans and the community within the next three to five months.

"We fully intend to offer our services to the veterans of Garrett County as promised, as well as Allegany and Washington counties," Brashear said. "We will turn no veteran away. Once established, any veteran can reach us at 301-895-5102. If you are currently a veteran in need of shelter, please contact the VA hotline."

Brashear is also interested in hearing from veterans in the area so they can get an idea of how many there are and establish contact with them. Persons may call the above number or e-mail westmdvetretreat@hotmail.com.

USE COUPONS AND REBATES TO SAVE MONEY

by Lynn Little,
Extension Educator, Family and Consumer Sciences
University of Maryland Extension

Coupons are big business: More than 3,000 manufacturers distribute nearly 330 billion coupons worth an estimated $280 billion every year in an effort to help consumers save money.

Coupons are useful when they save you money on what you're already planning to buy. When using coupons, buy only those items that you normally select for your family. Just because you have a coupon doesn't mean you have to use it. Don't allow coupons to cause you to buy on impulse.

•Comparison shop. Don't assume bigger is better. It may be less expensive to buy two smaller items with coupons than one larger item.

•Try different brands. This will expand the coupons you are able to use and may introduce you to new products you like.

•Know store policies. Does the store match competitors' prices and/or coupons? Do they have double coupon days? Can a manufacturer's coupon be used with a store coupon?

•Look for discounts on prescriptions. Many pharmacies offer a discount with multiple refills. New or transferred prescriptions may receive discounts or gift cards. Check drug manufacturers' web sites for rebates, or visit www.optimizerx.com.

•Don't forget to look for discounts on such things as home repairs, yard work, dry cleaning, fitness centers, restaurants, car repairs, and travel.

You will find coupons in the newspaper, magazines, mailers, store ads and displays, and on product packages. Today there are many web sites offering digital, printable coupons, as well as mobile coupons for use with your smartphone. Search the Internet to find sites that offer coupons.

For additional savings, combine coupons with rebates, combine manufacturer and store "buy-one-get-one-free" coupons, and use coupons on seasonal promotions and closeouts. Rebates will either slash the price of consumer goods at the time of purchase or provide partial or full reimbursements after the purchase.

Many rebates are of the mail-in variety, requiring you to pay the full cost and then send documentation to the manufacturer or retailer, within 30 days of purchase, to receive a rebate by mail.

The documentation required generally includes the original sales receipt, UPC code, rebate slip, and the customer's name, address, and telephone number. Follow the instructions on the rebate form and enclose all required documentation in the envelope when filing for a rebate. Be sure to make a copy of all paperwork you send for the rebate. This is your only record if anything goes wrong

If you have requested a rebate, contact the company if the rebate doesn't arrive within the time promised. If the rebate never arrives or arrives late, file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission (www.ftccomplaintassistant.gov), the Consumer Protection Division of the Maryland Attorney General (www.oag.state.md.us), or the Maryland Better Business Bureau (www.baltimore.bbb.org).

American households spend billions of dollars each year shopping. Many consumers use coupons and rebates to reduce the total amount spent and get more for their money.

University of Maryland Extension (UME) provides educational programs and problem-solving assistance related to agriculture, natural resources, nutrition, finance, 4-H, and youth development. Contact your Garrett County office of UME at 301-334-6960 or visit us at www.garrett.umd.edu.

Promises

The smell of a loaf of bread baking…an aroma that promises of things to come. Yet the smell of baking bread requires that we follow the recipe, be patient as it rises, and have faith the combination of ingredients will emerge as a golden, delicious loaf.

Our life with God is much the same. As we follow His Word and wait patiently while He works His way in our hearts, we can come to believe in His wisdom and begin to realize a life of peaceful satisfaction.

Worship in God's house each week; through faith and patience you can grow to your full potential.

Keep Your Foot on Satan's Neck

There is a classic painting of the Archangel Michael by Guido Reni which depicts the angel with his foot on Satan's neck, or more accurately, on his head, and with his sword poised to strike. The Archangel Michael appears calm and completely in control, and almost femininely serene. When I was growing up, my Italian grandmother had a statue in her house of the Virgin Mary which depicted Mary with her foot on the neck of a serpent, clearly meant to represent Satan. What I most remember about that statue is the nonchalant way in which Mary keeps her foot on the serpent's neck. It was almost as if Mary was oblivious to the serpent underfoot. That there are serpents at loose in the world, and a world where Satan seems to have free reign, certainly lends a note of seriousness to our earthly journey. But, if we are soldiers in God's army, like the Archangel Michael and the Virgin Mary, we can go through life calmly and do battle with Satan without being overly concerned. A good man or woman will do God's will, regardless of the circumstances, and will always be on the side of truth and goodness, and thus can be confident that he or she is keeping his or her foot on Satan's neck.

Welcome to 'Nashville': New drama pulls back the curtain on Music City

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

There's a lot to love about the south -- there's that legendary hospitality and, of course, it's home to some good ol' country music.

And there's one city that's synonymous with that great genre of music. ABC's "Nashville," an exciting new drama that is airing on Wednesday nights, promises to pull back the curtains on Music City's best known and most iconic industry.

"Nashville" tells a tale that's probably as old as the music industry itself. One reigning queen's star is fading while another, younger singer's is rising, and the rivalry that's sparked between them is mirrored by other events in their lives. But that's not the only story this drama's telling. Nashville has earned the name Music City for a reason, and "Nashville" deals with all of the power struggles that come about when there's fame and fortune on the line.

It may be an old tale, but that doesn't mean that this story is stale. Far from it In fact, "Nashville" was named one of five honorees to earn a spot in the "Most Exciting New Series" category at the 'Critics Choice Television Awards." So clearly some of the Nashville magic that's rubbed off on so many Music City stars has worked its way into the show, too.

Leading the cast is Connie Britton as country music legend Rayna Jaymes. Jaymes is a country music superstar. This Queen of Country's spent two decades dominating the top of the charts, and her songs have been played and sung all across America. Lately, though, trouble's been brewing. Her latest album and tour have both struggled -- and, well, her husband is a bit of a dead beat.

The character Jaymes is influenced by country music legends Loretta Lynn, Patsy Cline and Kitty Wells, all legends in country music. Britton's no slouch herself: the stunning actress has been nominated for three Emmy awards (twice for "Friday Night Lights," once for "American Horror Story") and also played roles in such critically acclaimed shows as "24," "The West Wing" and "Spin City."

Unfortunately for the aging songstress, nature abhors a vacuum. Starring next to Britton is Hayden Panettiere as the up-and-coming Juliette Barnes. Barnes has only been in Nashville for three years, but in that short time she's already had two sold-out tours and seen more than 20 million downloads of her hit tracks. The ambitious young star wants more, though, and Jaymes is sitting right in her crosshairs.

Panettiere began acting in commercials when she was only 11 months old, so she's certainly no newcomer to the TV screen. She's starred in "Guiding Light," "One Life to Live" and, of course, NBC's "Heroes," but she hasn't stopped at the small screen. Her film credits are extensive, among them starring roles in "Remember the Titans" (2000), "Joe Somebody" (2001) and "The Dust Factory" (2004).

Alongside these two leading ladies is an incredibly strong supporting cast. At Jaymes' side is her songwriter, bandleader and onetime lover Deacon Claybourne. In the role is Charles "Chip" Esten, whose face is probably most recognizable as a frequent guest on the improv comedy show "Whose Line Is It Anyway?" But to assume that that's all he's known for would be to ignore his vast body of work. Esten's had recurring roles on "ER" and "The Office," but perhaps his biggest accomplishment was when he performed for Queen Elizabeth and, later, President George H.W. Bush while portraying Buddy Holly in the hit musical "Buddy."

Also in Jaymes' life are her ambitious but down-on-his-luck husband Teddy Conrad (Eric Close) and industrialist father Lamar Wyatt (Powers Boothe). Conrad's had mixed success in business and has pretty much earned himself a reputation as Mr. Rayna Jaymes, but with the urging of his powerful, controlling father-in-law, he's ready to take a gamble and hit the reset button.

Close is notable for his longtime roles in "Without a Trace" and "Now and Again," while Boothe is probably best known for his role as the president on "24" and his Emmy-winning performance in "Guyana Tragedy: The Story of Jim Jones."

And Jaymes and Barnes aren't the only acts in town. The drama also follows young hopefuls Scarlett O'Connor (Clare Bowen, 2010's "The Clinic"), Gunnar Scott (Sam Palladio, Showtime's "Episodes") and Avery Barkley (Jonathan Jackson, "General Hospital"). Robert Wisdom (HBO's "The Wire") rounds out the cast as conflicted metro councilor Coleman Carlisle.

When music, money, politics and power come together, it's a volatile mix that makes for some explosive drama. The debut season of "Nashville" is already underway on ABC and Wednesday nights have gotten a lot more country.

Oscar giggity gold

Academy chooses MacFarlane as ceremony's host

By Sheila Busteed
TV Media

OSCAR GIGGITY GOLD: In an attempt to seem fresh and relevant to a younger generation, Academy Awards organizers may just be flirting with controversy this year.

Seth MacFarlane, the man behind the hit comedy flick "Ted" as well as Fox's "Family Guy," will bring his boundary-pushing comedic style to the Oscar stage as the host of the 85th Academy Awards. The ceremony is scheduled to broadcast live on ABC from the Dolby Theatre in Hollywood on Sunday, Feb. 24.

"It's truly an overwhelming privilege to be asked to host the Oscars," said MacFarlane. "My thoughts upon hearing the news were: One, I will do my utmost to live up to the high standards set forth by my predecessors; and two, I hope they don't find out I hosted the Charlie Sheen Roast."

Other than hosting Comedy Central's "Roast of Charlie Sheen" in 2011, as well as its previous specials poking fun at Donald Trump and David Hasselhoff, MacFarlane brings very little hosting experience to such a high-profile stage like the Oscars. His live-action comedy chops were tested last month when he hosted the season premiere of "Saturday Night Live." Other than that, he appeared as a presenter at the 64th Primetime Emmy Awards, which also aired last month. That about sums it up.

Yet, telecast producers Craig Zadan and Neil Meron are excited to have such a well-known and young talent as the face of the ceremony this time around. "His performing skills blend perfectly with our ideas for making the show entertaining and fresh," they said in a joint statement.

However, MacFarlane will still have to follow the rules that go along with a live prime-time broadcast. While a slip may amuse his fans, it would undoubtedly earn the wrath of watchdog organizations like Parents Television Council, which has frequently criticized his television shows.

Seth MacFarlane is making the jump from Emmy presenter to Oscar host

I heard that TLC will air "Here Comes Honey Boo Boo" Thanksgiving and Christmas specials. So now you've got to spend the holidays with two families you don't understand.

Security workers at JFK Airport are complaining that they don't have enough time to do their jobs thoroughly. It's not good -- the last time I flew, the TSA guy was like, "Ehh, just grope yourself."

Hey, today is National Drink Beer Day, you guys! And tomorrow is National Coffee Day. Or as urinals call it, "Armageddon."

Strange BUT TRUE

• It was inventor Thomas Edison who made the following sage observation: "We don't know a millionth of 1 percent about anything."

• Those who study such things say that chewing gum will reduce your recall ability by 10 percent. • As ostrich can run just as fast as a racehorse.

• In 1972, an extraordinary birth occurred. On July 22 of that year, a woman in Rome gave birth a whopping 15 babies -- five boys and 10 girls. The siblings were quindecaplets, though, obviously, that term doesn't see much use.

• You probably know that J. Edgar Hoover was the first director of the FBI, helping to found the bureau in 1935 and serving until his death in 1972. You might not realize, though, that in his career he never made an arrest or even personally conducted an investigation. • It's been reported that the last words of famed composer Ludwig van Beethoven were "Friends, applaud; the comedy is over."

• The Rubik's Cube, that ubiquitous 1980s toy, was invented by a mathematician in Hungary to help teach math to his students. The device was first marketed as a toy in Hungary -- where one in five citizens owned one -- then was brought to the U.S., from whence it became an international sensation. The success of his cube made Erno Rubik the first self-made millionaire in a communist country.

• The next time you're visiting Washington, D.C., keep in mind that in our nation's capital, it is illegal to throw a bull in any way.

• A queen honeybee can live for up to seven years.• On a per capita basis, Switzerland consumes more chocolate than any other country. No. 2 and No. 3 are Norway and Great Britain, respectively.

Q: I have an old cigarette lighter made by Auto Igniter Company of New York. How can I find out how much it's worth? -- Vincent, De Leon Springs, Fla.

A: Cigarette lighters have always been popular with collectors, especially ones made by such manufacturers as Ronson, Zippo, Colibri, Dunhill and Evans. Prices vary, depending on both condition and rarity. One of the better clubs is "On the Lighter Side," which was founded in 1983 and has members who collect ashtrays, smoking stands and tobacco memorabilia, in addition to lighters. Contact the group at P.O. Box 1733, Quitman, TX 75783; info@otls.com; and http://www.otls.com.

Q: I inherited a rocking chair and would like to have it appraised. I am enclosing a picture of it. -- James, Sun City, Ariz.

A: Your chair in handsome and probably from the early years of the past century. It appears to be constructed of tiger oak and is in good condition, considering the fact that it has provided comfort for at least a century. The style suggests to me it is probably from about 1915. There are several excellent appraisers in your area. One I highly recommend is Corinne Cain, a senior member of the American Society of Appraisers. Contact her c/o Savvy Collector Online Gallery, 326 West Harmont Drive, Phoenix, AZ 85021-5643; corrinne@savvycollector.com; and 602-906-1633.

Q: I have two tools I would like to find out values about. My upright drill press was made by the Buffalo Forge Company, and my cast-iron corn grinder was made by the Southern Plow Company. I have tried looking them up on the Internet but can't find much. -- Starla, Coffeeville, Ala.

A I suggest you take pictures of your drill press and corn grinder and consult with antiques dealers in your area.

Q: I have the 1967 yearbook of the New York Yankees with a few autographs. Whom can I contact about it? -- Bergen, Hudson, Fla.

A: David Hall has an auction company that specializes in sports memorabilia, and he might be able to help you. Contact him c/o Halls Nostalgia, P.O. GARRETT COUNTY'S

STEPS

To Better Health

Fall

Kids In Action

A Message From the STEPS Committee.

The usual message from the STEPS committee addresses health, wellness, and prevention. Our goal is to help our friends and neighbors stay healthy as long as possible and live the good life. One message we have not addressed is the effects of alcohol and drug abuse on our community. New words and phrases have become part of our vocabulary that we would like to ignore but can't. We are bombarded with news reports that mention meth, heroin, oxycontin, bath salts, synthetic marijuana, alcohol abuse … and the list goes on. Our news flash is that we have a drug and alcohol abuse problem in Garrett County.

So why don't we hear about the problem? And, who are "these people"? The simple answer is denial. We do not want to admit that there is a problem and if we do, we want to cover it up and deny that it is there. We tell ourselves, "maybe it will go away if I ignore it." In addition, persons with an addictive disorder are experts at hiding their problem. While denying that we or a loved one has a problem, the symptoms get worse. The downward spiral includes financial ruin, child neglect and all too often death from an overdose, an accident as a result of being impaired, or a chronic illness as a consequence of the addiction.

There is hope. Prevention works, treatment is effective and people recover. We have many prevention programs in our community that are overseen by the Drug Free Communities Coalition. In the coming months you will be hearing of how these prevention efforts are stemming the tide of abuse. There are also local treatment options available in our community that include the Health Department's out-patient addiction program and private therapists. Those persons in need of in-patient services can be referred to programs outside of Garrett County and then return when they are ready for less intensive out-patient treatment. Finally there are many 12-Step Meetings including AA and NA and faith-based programs where persons can find support and acceptance from other persons in recovery.

The most important step however is the first one. Many wait until they are in a legal, family or health crisis to seek help. The best advice is to not wait, and address the addiction before it gets any worse. If you or a loved one is in need of assistance with an addiction you can seek help from friends and family, your church, your health care provider or you may call the Garrett County Center for Behavioral Health at 301-334-7670. Staff will help you find treatment or support that is right for you. If it sounds overwhelming, remember to just take one step at a time.

The next semi-annual edition of STEPS will be published in April 2013. The advertising deadline is February 15, 2013. To purchase an ad or submit an article, contact Kathy Skipper at 301-334-7740.

A message from the Garrett County Health Workforce Development Network (GAHWDN).

Quality Practice/Quality of Life

The Garrett Allegany Health Workforce Development Network (GAHWDN) began its third year of programming this September. Supported through funding from the Health Resources and Services Administration's Office of Rural Health Policy, the Network has continued to expand programming focusing on its mission to design and implement solutions to address the health workforce needs of the region.

Network partners know that if they can bring potential practitioners to the region to see all the opportunities of practice and recreation, they stand a better chance of recruiting much needed physicians and mental health professionals to Garrett and Allegany counties. The Network partners continue to strengthen collaboration in creating innovative, local solutions to the health professional shortages that Garrett and Allegany counties face. Building on last year's successes, the Network has now provided nine community training rotations for University of Maryland School of Medicine's Departments of Family and Community Medicine. Feedback on the rotations continues to be quite positive, as the residents are gaining eye-opening experiences on what it really means to practice in a rural region. The breadth and depth of primary care practice is much larger than they anticipated.

In addition to medical resident rotations, the Garrett County Health Department (GCHD) is in the process of establishing a mental health internship for qualified clinical social work and clinical psychology students at the master's level of education. On September 7, 2012, the Network hosted a day-long event at GCHD, where Frostburg State University students in the Counseling Psychology program and their graduate program director visited with GCHD staff and mental health professionals to learn about internship opportunities at GCHD. They also were treated to a great time at the Wisp Resort's zip line so they could get a first-hand experience of the wonderful recreation activities near Deep Creek Lake.

Once the evaluations of their Garrett County experience were tabulated, all of the students stated that that they would encourage others to consider GCHD for an internship site as a result of this event.

For more information, contact Martha Bird, Network Director, 301-777-9150, ext. 110, mbird@wmahec.org.

Nuts to your good health!

Ask any nutritionist today about nuts, and he or she will tell you they are good for you—in moderation, of course. Although nuts are high in fat and calories, they are rich in numerous substances that are beneficial to your health, so they pack a powerful nutritional punch. Do you know all the reasons why you should be eating nuts—and which types and amounts are best? Take the following quiz to find out.

What's an appropriate serving size of nuts? A. 1 ounce. B. 2 ounces. C. 3 ounces.

Answer: A. Although they are considered a healthy snack, nuts are not a low-calorie food. Different nuts have varying calorie counts, but most contain between 160 and 200 calories per ounce (more, of course, if they're covered in sugar or chocolate).

You should limit your daily consumption to about 1 ounce; use the following as a guide: 35 peanuts; 24 almonds; 18 medium cashews; or 12 filberts, hazelnuts, macadamia nuts or walnut halves. Remember that salted nuts can have too much sodium to be healthy, so seek out unsalted nuts whenever possible.

What kind of fat is found in nuts? A. Monounsaturated fats. B. Polyunsaturated fats. C. Omega-3 fatty acids. D. All of the above.

Answer: D. Too often, the sources of protein that we choose—such as meat and dairy products—contain saturated fats, which are bad for the heart. But nuts offer protein that's accompanied by healthier forms of fat. Monounsaturated and polyunsaturated fats are known to lower levels of low-density lipoprotein (LDL, or "bad") cholesterol.

Nuts are also one of the best plant-based sources of omega-3 fatty acids, a type of polyunsaturated fat that lowers the risk of arrhythmias (abnormal heartbeat), triglyceride levels and blood pressure, and may also slow the rate of plaque growth in the arteries.

Which of the following nuts is highest in fat and calories per serving? A. Cashews. B. Macadamia nuts. C. Walnuts.

Answer: B. Macadamia nuts have 204 calories per ounce and 21.5 grams of fat (17 grams of unsaturated fat) per ounce. Chestnuts are lowest in calories and fat, with 69 calories and less than 1 gram of fat per ounce. Other common nuts (including almonds, cashews, peanuts, pecans, pistachios and walnuts) range from 161 to 201 calories per ounce.

Breast Cancer: Know Your Risk, Get Screened

The two most important risk factors for breast cancer are: age and being a woman. Therefore, it is important for every woman to discuss her risk for breast cancer with a healthcare provider. October is Breast Cancer Awareness month and a great time to find out more about breast cancer screening.

Screenings for breast cancer include simple tests: the clinical breast exam and a mammogram. A clinical breast exam is performed by a healthcare provider and can find breast abnormalities early. The mammogram is a low-dose X-ray picture of the breast. These X-ray pictures complement the clinical breast exam and can help find breast cancer at an early stage when it can best be treated.

Breast cancer screenings can be quick and easy. All women should:

1. Know their breast cancer risk
2. Get screened for breast cancer
3. Call their healthcare provider today!

The Garrett County Health Department helps connect women with healthcare providers that can discuss breast cancer risk and recommend appropriate screening. Also, the Garrett Co. Breast and Cervical Cancer Program offers clinical breast exams and mammograms for eligible women who may not be able to afford these important screenings. Call 301-334-7770 or 301-895-3111 for more information.

Diabetes. HEART DISEASE. Asthma. Depression.

What do these illnesses have in common?

Untreated, they can be deadly.

Depression is a disease, not a weakness, and can lead to suicide. Fortunately, depression can be treated and lives saved when symptoms are recognized and medical help is sought.

Most people with depressive illness do not seek treatment, although the great majority, even those whose depression is severe, can be helped. Thanks to years of fruitful research, there are now medications and psychosocial therapies (cognitive/behavioral, "talk" or interpersonal) that ease the pain of depression.

Some symptoms may include feeling:

Nervous or "empty" • Guilty or worthless • Like no one loves you • Like life is not worth living

Or if you are:

Enjoying things less than you used to • Sleeping more or less than usual • Eating more or less than usual

If you or someone you know has some of these symptoms for more than two weeks, tell someone about your symptoms. Speak with a doctor, nurse, or mental health counselor. Consider having a friend or family member help you make the call. There is also a toll free crisis hotline in Maryland: 1-800-422-0009.

What's Your BMI?

BMI stands for Body Mass Index and knowing your BMI is as important as knowing your blood pressure, blood sugar and cholesterol levels. BMI is a calculation that considers both your height and your weight and is what health professionals use to determine if your weight is healthy or risky. The higher your weight, the higher your BMI and the greater your risk of developing health problems. Being at a healthy weight helps you cut your risk of disease like heart disease, high blood pressure, type 2 diabetes, osteoarthritis and stroke. According to the American Cancer Society, 35 percent of all cancer deaths each year in the United States could have been prevented by healthier eating habits, regular physical activity and weight control. Being overweight increases the risk of cancer of the kidneys, colon, gallbladder, pancreas, uterine lining, and breast. Besides not smoking, the best ways to help prevent cancer are to eat well, stay active, and maintain a healthy weight.

The healthy weight range is a BMI of 19 to 25. Calculate your BMI using the chart. First find your height in the left column. Then read along the row for your height until you reach the weight closest to yours. Now move straight up the chart to find your BMI. If your BMI is greater than 25 now is the time for you to take control of your health and bring your BMI down.

If your BMI is above 25, your first step should be to focus on better lifestyle habits that will help you lose weight and keep the weight off. The following steps will help lower your BMI:

Step 1: Eat fewer foods that contain high amounts of refined white flour, fat and sugar. These foods are high in calories and lack fiber.

Step 2: Eat at least 5 servings of fruits and vegetables each day. They contain vitamins, minerals and other nutrients that are important for overall health and they are a good source of fiber.

Step 3: Eat more foods that are higher in fiber such as whole grains, legumes /beans and fruits and vegetables.

Step 4: Drink at least 6 8-ounce glasses of water a day. Many times when you feel hungry, you may just be thirsty.

Step 5: Decrease liquid calories, such as soda, fruit juice and specialty coffee drinks. Choose noncaloric beverages like water, sparkling water, flavored waters and decaffeinated teas.

Step 6: Be more active. Take family walks to be more active and to catch up on everyone's day. Participate in community walks and runs with your co-workers.

Bounce Back Community Project Launched

This fall Brenda's Body Shop is teaming with Miss Maryland Joanna Guy on project Bounce Back, a series of fun, dance-based activities designed to involve the community in supporting Cindy's Fund and the Children's Miracle Network. With a theme of "helping others bounce back to health," the project uses colorful plastic balls in a variety of events throughout the fall. Dance performances, an Autumn Glory Parade float, and a Bounce Back Bonanza event on November 4, from 2-4 pm at Southern High School, are some of the many creative activities planned to raise awareness and money for the selected charities.

Bounce Back is the brainchild of Brenda Brosnihan, owner of Brenda's Body Shop (BBS) and creator of successful community fundraising drives such as the Thriller and Pink Glove dance projects, which together raised more than $75,000 for local charitable organizations. Brosnihan says that Bounce Back "provides a way for everyone to join together in making a difference in the lives of adults and children who are facing serious health and wellness challenges."

Individuals can participate by learning the Bounce Back dance and by selling balls to raise money. Businesses can support the project by pledging to become Bounce Back sponsors: High Roller or Ball Blitzer, or by buying bags of balls to become a Ball Runner and distribute balls to their employees or customers. All Bounce Back sponsors will be featured in a multimedia advertising campaign.

Joanna Guy, Miss Maryland 2012, has worked with Brosnihan to plan the project and will be appearing at several of the planned events. "I am excited to support Bounce Back," Guy says, "because our community displays so much enthusiasm for raising money to support worthwhile causes. I think everyone who participates in these fun activities will have a ball!"

Cindy's Fund is a local nonprofit organization dedicated to helping Garrett County residents who are battling cancer. Children's Miracle Network Hospitals (CMNH), the national charity of the Miss America Organization, provides lifesaving care and treatment for seriously injured and critically ill children, with contributions directed to donors' local CMNH hospitals. For more information about these organizations visit www.cindysfund.org and www.childrensmiraclenetworkhospitals.org. To sign up for classes or to learn about sponsorship opportunities, call BBS at 301-334-1275 or visit the website at brendasbodyshop.com.

How do sugars attack your teeth?

Invisible germs called bacteria live in your mouth all the time. Some of these bacteria form a sticky material called plaque on the surface of the teeth. When you put sugar in your mouth, the bacteria in the plaque gobble up the sweet stuff and turn it into acids. These acids are powerful enough to dissolve the hard enamel that covers your teeth. That's how cavities get started. If you don't eat much sugar, the bacteria can't produce as much of the acid that eats away enamel.

What is Hospice?

Centuries ago, hospice meant a place of refuge for the wary traveler to seek rest and care. Over the years, hospice has developed into a concept of providing care in the home, nursing home, assisted living homes, group homes and the hospital for the terminally ill. Our services include pain control and physical, emotional, social and spiritual support for the patient and the patient's family during the illness and through the grief and bereavement process.

Hospice of Garrett County, Inc. a non-profit organization, began caring for the terminally ill in 1983. We operate under the direction of a thirteen member Board of Directors. Our Hospice Team consists of a Medical Director, Executive Director, Registered Nurses, Certified Nursing Assistants, Social Worker, Chaplain, patient care volunteers, bereavement support, office staff and auxiliary volunteers.

Who Needs Hospice? Patients that have been diagnosed with a terminal illness with a prognosis of six months or less to live if the disease pursues its normal course. When the disease doesn't take the normal course, the patient may remain on Hospice as long as one continues to decline. Many people assume that we only admit cancer patients; this isn't the case. Any illness that is reason for the six month prognosis qualifies you for admission. To list a few: ALS, Heart Disease, Respiratory Failure, Renal Failure, Dementia, General Decline, End Stage Alzheimer's and others.

Hospice care is available to persons of all ages. The youngest patient in Hospice of Garrett County was 6 months. The oldest was 104.

For Referrals & Admissions A family member, patient, friend, physician, or a health care professional may make a referral. The patient must be aware of the referral and the patient's physician must order the hospice care.

The patient will be eligible for services if he or she has been diagnosed with a terminal illness and desires palliative (symptom control) rather than curative treatments.

Hospice is always in need of more volunteers. Patient care volunteers attend volunteer training classes on subjects such as HIPAA, patient privacy, confidentiality, infection control, personal care, signs and symptoms of approaching death and listening skills.

For more information you may call Brenda Butscher, Executive Director or Kay Perry, RN, Director of Clinical Services, at 301-334-5151.

Why Your Home Needs a Smoke Detector

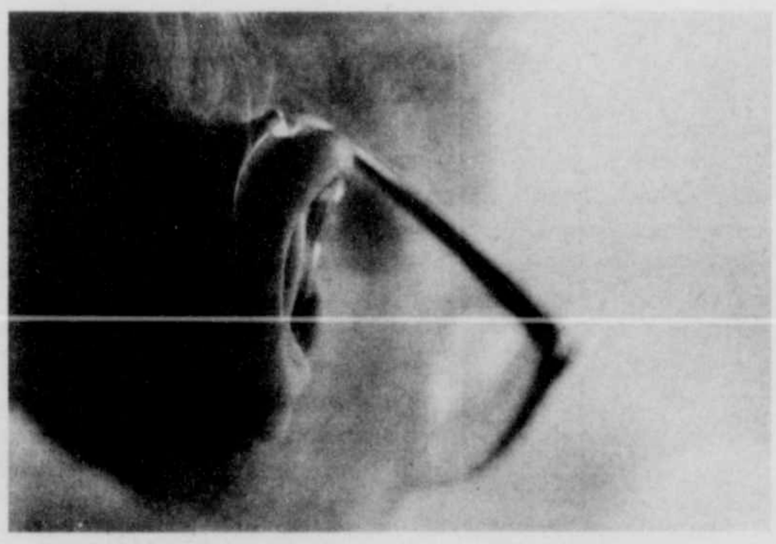
Fires can break out at any time and move quickly through a structure, making early warning critical. The earlier you know of a fire breaking out, the greater the chances of getting out safely. Smoke detectors are an excellent first line of defense and can detect a potentially fatal fire.

According to the Maryland Injury Prevention Program, about 92% of Maryland homes have smoke detectors; however, more than 60% of house fire deaths occur in homes that lack a working smoke alarm. Most smoke detectors are battery-operated and if the battery runs out, the alarm is useless. Many smoke detectors will give off an intermittent noticeable chirping sound when the batteries need replaced. A better plan is to replace the batteries in smoke detectors at least once a year. A common day that many use to change their batteries is Daylight Saving when you change your clock. If not then, choose a day, maybe a birthday, to install new batteries every year on that day. Smoke detectors should be kept clean and inspected and tested on a monthly basis. Never paint over a smoke detector; it will prevent the detector from working correctly.

Often the first hint of a fire is the smell of smoke. In fact, this may be the only indication something is wrong. Although you may not initially see the fire or feel the heat associated it, the smell of smoke should quickly reach you. A good smoke detector is far more sensitive than your nose and can pick up the smell of smoke far quicker. This early warning may make the difference between survival and death or between minor and total property loss.

The Garrett County Health Department has a limited supply of smoke detectors available to needy Garrett County residents. For more information, call the health department at 301-334-7730 or 301-895-3111 and ask for Mike Wilburn or extension 6524.

Hearing Aid Pros and Cons



Only one in seven people ages 50 and older who should be using hearing aids wears a device, says a study led by Johns Hopkins researchers. That means nearly 23 million either don't know they have clinically significant hearing loss or, for various reasons, are not getting the help they need.

Hearing aids can be analog or digital. Older analog hearing aids can be programmed with settings for various listening environments according to the user's preferences. Digital hearing aids, usually more expensive than analog, can be fine-tuned for specific frequencies and have more programming flexibility.

Behind-the-ear (BTE) hearing aids

A plastic case that hooks behind the ear houses the electronics. It's attached to a customized, plastic ear mold that fits in the outer ear.

Pros: Good for mild to profound hearing loss, allows for the most amplification among all types, long battery life, easy to clean

Cons: May be visible, can be difficult to wear with eyeglasses

Open-fit behind-the-ear (BTE) hearing aids

The miniature digital component fits completely behind the ear, eliminating the need for a mold. A small tube runs into the ear canal.

Pros: Voices sound less "plugged up," less visible than other hearing aids, the tube's design keeps it away from earwax—good for people who have wax buildup—and allows the ear canal to remain open

Cons: Smaller batteries don't last as long as larger ones, small size may limit ability to make manual adjustments, may be visible, not good for severe to profound hearing loss

In-the-ear (ITE) hearing aids

A small, custom-molded plastic case sits in and completely fills the outer ear and has no external wires or tubes.

Pros: Good for mild to severe hearing loss, optional "telecoil" makes it easier to hear phone conversations and some public sound systems, has volume control

Cons: Is visible in the ear, may be sensitive to wind noise, not good for severe to profound hearing loss

In-the-canal (ITC) hearing aid

A tiny case, custom molded to fit the size and shape of the ear canal, sits partly in the ear canal.

Pros: Good for mild to moderately severe hearing loss, less visible than other hearing aids, usually works well with the telephone, less sensitive to wind noise

Cons: Not good for severe to profound hearing loss, small size may make it difficult to adjust and remove, may cause some feedback

Completely in-the-canal (CIC) hearing aid

A tiny case is nearly hidden deep in the ear canal. Usually has a cord or tiny handle to aid in removing it.

Pros: Good for mild to moderately severe hearing loss, less visible than other hearing aids, usually works well with the telephone, less sensitive to wind noise

Cons: Not good for severe to profound hearing loss, small size may make it difficult to adjust and remove, no volume control, too small to hold devices like telecoil, smaller batteries don't last as long as larger ones, can become clogged with wax and require repairs

If you suspect that you have hearing loss, be sure to consult a professional for an exam and hearing test. You could be missing out.

Finding Source Of Back & Neck Pain May Lead to Relief

Back and neck pain are widely recognized as the cause of lost work time and lowered productivity. To address these issues Garrett College has launched an in-house workshop for employees to increase awareness of ways they can reduce or eliminate some of the causes of these types of pain.

Garrett College's Marketing and Communications assistant Peggy Santamaria, who is also a certified instructor and long-term practitioner of yoga, recently held the first workshop to address some of the common causes for neck and back pain in the workplace.

"One of the best tools we have to combat common neck and back pain is awareness of what we are doing with our bodies that may cause it. Aside from disease and traumatic injury, much of the discomfort we experience in necks and backs results from self-inflicted injury. We habitually sit and walk in a manner that increases the likelihood of pain," she pointed out.

With so much of the work day spent in front of a computer terminal, misalignment of the shoulders and neck can lead to discomfort or outright pain, Santamaria explained to the assembled group of staff and faculty. "We tend to round our shoulders forward when working at a keyboard. When we do this, we have no option but to thrust the head forward in order to see the computer screen. The result is 'ouch,'" she said as she demonstrated the posture indicating the pinched area in the cervical vertebra.

To determine round-shouldered posture, one can assess one's alignment while standing. "If we stand with the back of the hands facing forward and the thumbs turned toward the thighs, we are probably rounding our shoulders," she said, adding, "This can contribute to the shoulder and neck pain we experience while working."

Santamaria suggested several simple movements that can release the rounded shoulders by loosening tight pectoral muscles which are shorted by the round-shouldered posture. "Once we open the chest and let the shoulders drop back to a more comfortable alignment, the forward head posture will begin to correct itself," she said.

Much of the lower back pain experienced by most people can be caused by tight or shortened hip flexor muscles, Santamaria noted, indicating the area at the top of the thigh where legs connect to the torso. "When these muscles get tight, they can pull the pelvis into a position that impacts the muscles of the lower back. Often, when we stand after sitting for any length of time, we feel like we need to stretch our back muscles. More likely we need to stretch our hip flexors which connect to muscles in the lumbar area," she said.

Again Santamaria demonstrated some very easy stretches for those flexors that could be the culprits in lower back pain. "The alignment of the lumbar area can greatly affect our comfort in sitting, walking, or doing any of our daily routines. Whether we over-arch or round the lumbar outwardly we can experience anything from mild discomfort to debilitating pain," she noted.

Those attending the workshop agreed that the information and simple movements would be valuable tools for them. "Peggy's session on stretching and body mechanics showed us that our daily movements – how we sit, walk, etc. – can have a long-term impact on our muscles and muscle pain. The simple stretching exercises she taught us, which are easy and quick, can help reverse those negative effects and decrease some of our muscle pain," said Denise Friend, coordinator of Distance Learning.

Dr. Jeff Reitz, professor of Mathematics, said he had attended the session because he has a chronic stiffness in his lower back and was hoping to find some ways to alleviate it. "This workshop was helpful. It got me to think about how I hold my body as I walk and sit. I'm paying much more attention to that now. I had never considered, really, that the discomfort in my back had anything to do with my legs and the muscles in the front. I am doing the stretching exercises from the workshop," he said.

Sue Fowler, program coordinator for Continuing Education and Workforce Development, was also among those attending the first workshop. She said she thought it was a beneficial program for the college to offer to employees and that it was presented in a manner that made it fun. "Peggy's demonstration of the arched-back, runway walk was quite entertaining. I always thought super models looked angry because they're hungry. After Peggy's presentation, we all now know that they're angry because their backs are killing them," Fowler said.

Tobacco Companies Must Reveal Harmful Chemicals

The Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act started requiring tobacco makers to tell consumers about all the harmful chemicals in their products as of March 20, 2012. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has determined that there are 93 harmful chemicals in tobacco products sold in the United States. According to the FDA, "all tobacco manufacturers and importers will be required to report the quantities of harmful chemicals in products that are sold in the USA."

The act requires tobacco manufacturers to make the written warning on cigarette packs 9 times larger and display color graphic images depicting the health risks associated with tobacco use. They also must list the nicotine content. Kendra McLaughlin, director of Health Education at the Garrett County Health Department, said, "The health consequences of smoking will be obvious every time someone picks up a pack of cigarettes." The law also places strict standards on tobacco products that claim to be "less harmful." These products must show reduced risk of harm to people before they can be sold in the USA.

This law is aimed at a broader strategy that will help tobacco users quit and prevent children from starting. Tobacco use is the leading cause of premature and preventable death in the United States. Each year 443,000 die from tobacco related illnesses. Thirty percent of cancer deaths are related to tobacco. Each day, almost 4,000 youth try a cigarette for the first time and 1,000 become regular users.

"At least now people can see what goes into a cigarette and make an informed decision about smoking," said Mike Wilburn, cessation program facilitator. "For those people interested in kicking the habit, the health department is pleased to offer the smoking cessation program again this year." The Cigarette Restitution Fund Program administered by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene provides funding for the program, which includes financial help for cessation aids.

The program provides cessation counseling and treatment services including nicotine patches, gum and Chantix. To make it easier for Garrett County residents, classes have been scheduled in different locations in the county. The start date for classes at each location is as follows: Grantsville Health Outreach Center on Tuesday, January 8, 2013, at 5:30 p.m., and Friendsville Rescue Squad Building on Wednesday, January 9, 2013, at 5:30 p.m. Classes are also offered at the Oakland office of the Health Department and at Garrett College. Classes will meet at each location for a total of ten weeks. If you are interested in either individual counseling or any of these classes, contact Mike Wilburn at 301-334-7730, 301-895-3111 or email michael.wilburn@maryland.gov.

Garrett Open / Recovery Race Results

McCampbell and Railey Post Victories in Garrett Open at Jennings Randolph Lake

Michael McCampbell of Frostburg led a field of 40 runners to take 1st place overall in the 4th Annual Garrett Open / Recovery Race held at Jennings Randolph Lake on Saturday, September 22. The race, organized by Garrett Trails and Garrett County Health Department's Center for Behavioral Health, promotes the use of trails throughout the county and also recognizes National Recovery Month. Forty-one runners participated in the 4 mile Dam Run and 45 walkers traversed the 2.5 mile stroll across the breast of the dam. McCampbell outdistanced second place overall finisher Jaron Hawkins with at time of 25:57. The challenging course followed the Senator Paul Sarbanes Trail to the bottom of the dam before the very steep ascent of the dam to the finish at the Maryland Overlook. Line Lauritsen-Railey finished with a time of 28:12 to take first place overall female honors. Jimmy Railey finished third overall and took home the Male Masters honors while Kellyann Green took first place in the Female Masters category.

In addition to the 4 mile run, registrants were offered the option to participate in a 2.5 mile walk across the dam. Janet Hardesty led all walkers and crossed the finish line with a time of 28:59, followed closely behind by male finisher Renny Azzi with a time of 33:00.

One of the goals of the GO/RR is to expose the public to the expanding trail system in Garrett County. Many participants commented on the beauty of the trail and the scenic overlook of the lake and valley below. Each year the Garrett Open / Recovery Race is held on a different trail in Garrett County. Past featured trails include the Kendall Trail in Friendsville, the Herrington Manor ski trail system and the Mt. Aetna Trail in Finzel. Race director Bob Stephens stated that a second goal of the GO/RR is to recognize those persons who are in recovery from an addiction. September is National Recovery Month and the Garrett County Steps Committee co-hosted the event to raise awareness of the resources available locally to assist persons struggling with addictions.

Theresa MacLennan, executive director of Garrett Trails, thanked the runners and walkers for coming out to the event and encouraged the public to take advantage of the many trails available to recreationist of all ages in Garrett County. She thanked event sponsors including: Adventuresports Institute at Garrett College, ASCI, Garrett County Center for Behavioral Health, Railey Realty, Gosnell Inc. and Team One. She also thanked the Army Corps of Engineers who made special arrangements for participants to cross the dam and bridge to the intake tower that is normally closed to the public.

Timing for the race was provided by Queen City Striders.

Persons interested hiking, biking, running or cross-country skiing the many Garrett County trails are encouraged to visit the Garrett Trails Website at: www.garretttrails.org.

2013 Health Fair Plans in the Works

Plans for next year's Garrett County Health Fair are already well under way. The Health Fair has become an annual event with next year being the seventh annual fair. This past year's event was bigger and better than ever. The date for next year's fair is April 13, 2013, and it will again be held at the Wisp Resort and Conference Center. Plans are to have popular KDKA newsman Jon Burnett to again be our moderator and several interesting speakers have been contacted. The Health Fair is organized by the Garrett County Steps Committee. The committee is made up of private citizens, businesses, and public agencies, all with the desire to improve the overall wellness in the community. The health fair's goal is to promote awareness and encourage persons to take an active responsibility for their health. Those who attend are able to participate in several health screenings and peruse over 60 informational booths that provide a wealth of information. Mtn. Laurel Medical Center has already agreed to sponsor cholesterol and blood glucose screening at this health fair. Last year's fair garnered over 800 attendees and attendance continues to grow. The health fair is free to the public and door prizes from local businesses are given away all day long. If you are interested in serving on the Steps Committee, please call 301-334-7672. Plan to attend this year's fair and be watching for more details as the date approaches.

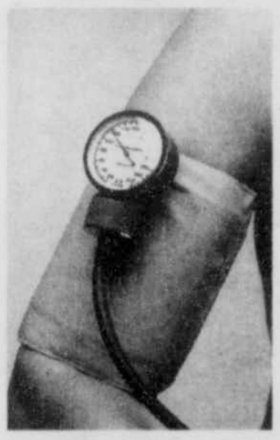
Hypertension and Stroke: Top 10 Risk Factors



Did you know that strokes rank as the fourth leading cause of death in America and are also considered one of the main causes of long-term disability? Learning more about strokes and contributing factors that cause the disease is essential for maintaining good health throughout life.

There are two types of strokes. Ischemic strokes (the most common) occur when blood vessels in the brain become clogged. Hemorrhagic strokes present when a blood vessel bursts near or inside the brain. Both types prevent crucial blood flow from reaching the brain, causing brain cells to die, which can lead to loss of quality of life—as well as death.

What causes a stroke and how can it be prevented?

The leading cause of stroke is hypertension, also known as high blood pressure. High blood pressure is diagnosed if your blood pressure is consistently 140/90 mmHg. Unfortunately hypertension is considered a silent killer, as many don't realize they suffer the condition until it is too late. However, once diagnosed there are ways to successfully manage hypertension that can potentially lower your risk of stroke considerably.

Here are a few risk factors as well as preemptive guidelines to help you avoid stroke:

- Sedentary lifestyles with little or no exercise negatively affect cardiovascular health. Exercise plays an important role in lowering blood pressure, maintaining healthy cholesterol levels and can even play a part in the prevention or management of type 2 diabetes.
- Extra pounds around the midsection potentially increase your risk for stroke. With your doctor's advice, find a diet and exercise program to help battle the "apple-shape" and pursue good health.
- If you smoke…quit now. Studies show those who are able to kick the habit are at the same stroke risk level as non-smokers
- Unhealthy diets may play a part in increasing risk for stroke. Health professionals suggest a Mediterranean-style diet rich in fish and fruit, as research shows those foods seemed to contribute to stroke prevention.
- For those who have been diagnosed with atrial fibrillation, taking anti-coagulant (blood thinning) medication is critical.
- High levels of high-density lipoprotein, also known as good cholesterol, have been linked to lowering the chance of experiencing ischemic strokes.
- Consuming alcoholic beverages in moderation can potentially lessen the risk of ischemic stroke. Heavy drinking, however, has been found to increase the risk.
- Although researchers are unable to pinpoint the exact reasons why, they found that chronic stress and depression increase the risk of stroke. There is an unconfirmed possibility that those who suffer these conditions are less apt to follow healthy dietary and exercise routines, or to take required medications regularly. Not leading healthy lifestyles can, in fact, lead to stroke.

With these risk factors in mind, it is important to note that the general rule-of-thumb in preventing a stroke is to live an overall healthy lifestyle. Exercise helps reduce stress and depression, but also promotes cardiovascular health and physical fitness. Healthy diets can help regulate cholesterol, reduce cardiovascular disease and also aid in maintaining healthy weight. Regular medical check-ups can detect conditions that indicate high blood pressure, stroke and other issues you are unable to discover on your own.

Bottom line: The better your health, the better your chances of avoiding a stroke. Be sure to consult your physician to determine your potential risk factors for stroke. Your physician can work with you in finding the best exercise and diet regimen based on your physical abilities that can help you avoid suffering a stroke.

Pumpkin Chase

Landon's Library is proud to announce that it will be hosting its third annual "Landon's Pumpkin Chase," a 10K run/5K run/2-mile walk, at Broadford Park on October 27, 2012. Last year the race offered a nine-inch snowfall in the month of October, so come out and join the fun and see what this year's race brings with it. The course provides for a challenging path through a scenic park in Mtn. Lake Park, Maryland. All registered participants will receive a Landon's Pumpkin Chase T-shirt. T-shirts will be provided for race day registration while supplies last. The fee is $20.00 per participant if received by October 14, and $25 thereafter. The race application is available at www.landonslibrary.org.

Landon's Library is a Christian, not-for-profit 501(c)(3) organization established in honor of Landon Bryant Boal's heavensent ministry. In order to promote reading and bonding among parents and their children, Landon's Library has partnered with different organizations to provide children's books to many families in Garrett County and surrounding counties. Landon's Library has adopted the philosophy that reading well requires reading often, and it is essential that young children have easy access to age appropriate books, so they are encouraged to pursue a literate life.

Through monthly play-dates at the Oakland Community Center which are now in their sixth year, the Dolly Parton's Imagination Library, which provides approximately 1,000 books per month to Garrett County children, the Oakland Rotary Christmas Project, the Autumn Glory Book Giveaway and various other local initiatives, Landon's Library has distributed over 80,000 children's books to the children of Garrett County in only six years! Quite an amazing feat!

Year 4 of Majority Rules Campaign

MAJORITY RULES!

The Garrett County Drug Free Communities Coalition (DFCC) recently began Year 4 of the Majority Rules Social Norm Campaign. In Year 1, the campaign promoted the message that "7 out of 10 Northern/Southern students don't drink." In Year 2, the message was "82% of Garrett County high school students do not smoke weed." Year 3 was a year to reinforce the positive choices that most youth make and included messages such as "Most of Us Make Healthy Choices" and "Most of Us Don't Drink."

So here we are in Year 4. As in previous years, the message has been phased in over several weeks at the middle and high schools. The message that students got the first week of the campaign was "Pop," which was printed on stickers that were given out on bags of microwave popcorn. During week 2, happy stress balls with the message "Pop Positivity" were handed out. Finally in week 3, mechanical pencils with the full message "Pop Positivity, Not Pills" were distributed.

"Prescription drug abuse is a community concern," said Nancy Brady, Prevention supervisor at the Garrett County Health Department. "Through our Drug Free Communities Coalition, we have heard from law enforcement, health care providers, educators, and community members alike that prescription drug abuse is a real worry in our county."

Local data shows that 13.6% of high school students misused prescription drugs in the past month and 66% of those youth abused someone else's prescription drugs.

"The Garrett County Drug Free Communities Coalition looked at this information a year or so ago," reported Kendra McLaughlin, Director of Health Education at the Garrett County Health Department. "And the members set as one of their priorities to reduce access to prescription drugs in the home by increasing awareness among adults." As a result, health department staff and DFCC members have been promoting the campaign "The Streets aren't the only place kids find drugs. Mind Your Meds."

This campaign will be featured in the media, in presentations by Community Outreach workers at senior centers and worksites, and through participating pharmacies and health care provider offices. Parents will also be targeted, as teens consistently identify them as their most influential source of information about drugs.

"We will be reminding parents, family members, and neighbors of teens to secure prescription drugs in the home, and count their pills regularly," stated McLaughlin. "Many adults just don't realize that their prescription drugs are at risk of being taken right out of their medicine cabinet."

Additional plans for this year's Majority Rules Campaign include posters in the schools, postcards to parents of middle school and high school students, and several community initiatives that are in the planning stage.

For more information about the Majority Rules campaign or to offer suggestions, call 301-334-7730 or 301-895-3111 or visit www.garretthealth.org.

The Majority Rules campaign is funded by a Drug Free Communities grant from the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration and sponsored by the Garrett County Drug Free Communities Coalition.

November is National Donor Sabbath: Give thanks! Give life!

Regardless of religious affiliation, congregations and houses of worship across the nation will recognize the lifesaving benefits of organ, eye and tissue donation on November 9-11, 2012, in honor of National Donor Sabbath, an ecumenical celebration of life. Though specific beliefs differ between denominations, the underlying theme – that organ, eye and tissue donation is one of the highest forms of giving – directly correlates with the principle upon which all major religions are based. Throughout the celebration, congregations are reminded of their faith's support of donation and are encouraged to make an outward expression of faith by registering as organ, eye and tissue donors at www.donatelifemaryland.org.

Observation of National Donor Sabbath is an opportunity for religious communities to touch the lives of millions of people. More than 112,000 men, women and children in the United States are currently awaiting transplants and about 2,000 of those people waiting reside in Maryland. Approximately only 50 percent of those waiting will receive the transplant they need to live. The solution to this problem is to encourage more people to commit to being organ, eye and tissue donors and provide them with the correct information on how to join their state donor registry to ensure their decision will be carried out. This is the goal of National Donor Sabbath.

There are many ways you can get involved with the donation cause and celebrate life during National Donor Sabbath. Below are just a few:

Presentations & Workshops

The Living Legacy Foundation's staff and volunteers are more than happy to visit your place of worship and educate others about the importance of donation. Transplant recipients and donor family members are available to share their personal stories of hope and second chances during these presentations.

Bulletin Inserts

The Living Legacy Foundation can provide bulletin inserts with facts about donation as well as information about how to sign up as a donor.

GospelFest

On November 10, 2012, the Living Legacy Foundation and Donate Life Maryland will be hosting GospelFest, a free event showcasing local gospel choirs and celebrating the gift of life. Visit www.thellf.org/gospelfest for more information about this event.

For more information about National Donor Sabbath, to arrange an interview with a donor family member or transplant recipient, or simply learn more about organ, eye and tissue donation contact Latrice Price, lprice@thellf.org, 410-242-7000 x2037.

Community Health Improvement Plan Complete

HATE...
...WHEN IT COMES TO ALCOHOL

Over the course of the last year, the Garrett County Health Planning Council, with administrative support from the Health Department and the Hospital, has developed a community health improvement plan that provides a roadmap to improve the health of Garrett County residents.

The Garrett County Community Health Improvement Plan has been developed in conjunction with efforts of the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH) and the launch of a State Health Improvement Process (SHIP) to define health priorities within the State. Each of Garrett County's action plans responds to a health objective with the goal of improving health outcomes. "Although the health of Garrett County residents continues to improve in many areas in relation to state and national averages, the plan has focused on several areas where this is not the case," stated Rodney Glotfelty, Health Department Officer.

Among the health objectives that Garrett County chose to emphasize are tobacco use, heart disease mortality, adult seasonal flu vaccine, obesity, and adults without health insurance—all areas where Garrett County falls behind state and national averages. Other health issues addressed in the plan include substance use and abuse, cancer mortality, preventable hospital stays, adult dental care, health care access, behavioral health, low birth weight babies and child maltreatment.

Glotfelty went on to say, "One agency or facility cannot fully implement strategies that will make this a healthier community. This can only be done by the entire community of health care providers, health and human service agencies, educational institutions, nonprofit organizations and individual residents working together to improve the factors that contribute to optimal health."

The plan is currently available online at www.garretthealth.org, or a hard copy of the report can be picked up in the Health Education Office at the Garrett County Health Department.

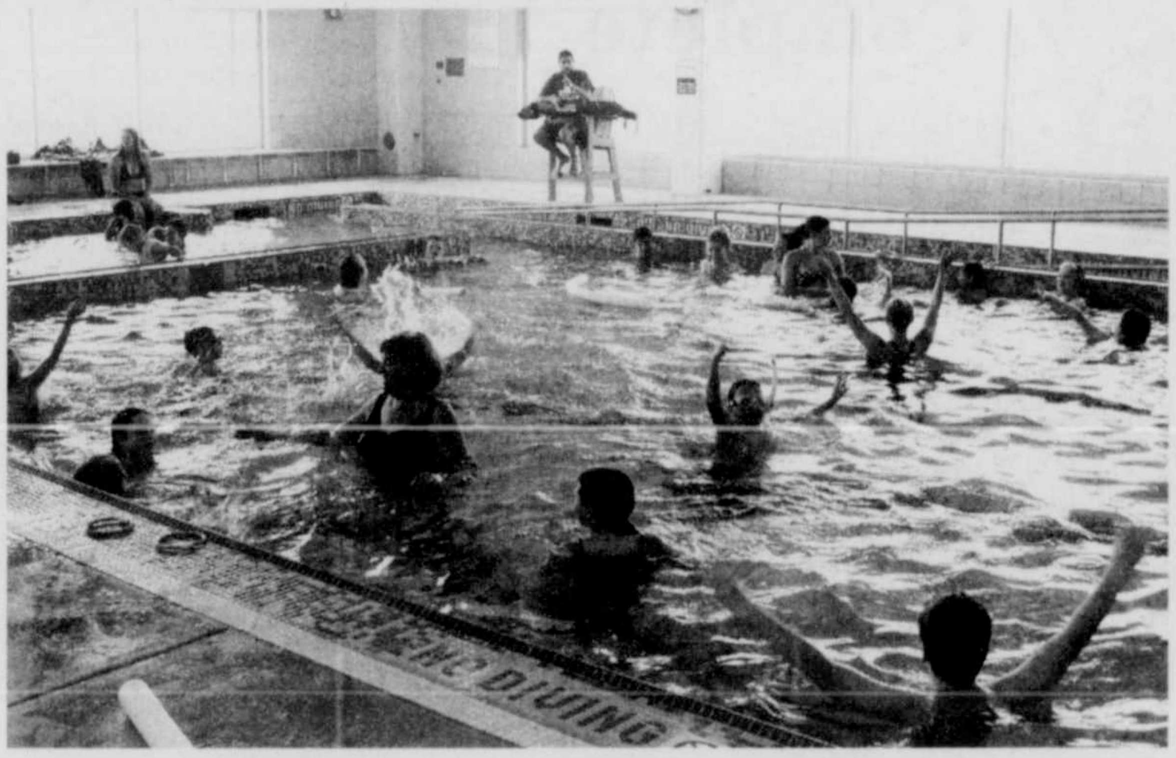
Community Partners Help Support & Fund "I Can Swim Program"



The Garrett College Community Aquatic & Recreation Complex (CARC), which opened in 2011, provides the only publicly accessible swimming pools in Garrett County. Coinciding with opening was the launching of the Joan and Bill Crawford "I Can Swim!" program. This initiative, developed by college staff and members of the Garrett County Board of Education, offers swimming and water safety education to all Garrett County kindergarten-age children at no charge.

"I Can Swim!" was designed to align with Garrett County Board of Education curriculum. Children taking the lessons earn physical education credit for the time spent at the CARC. Instructional sessions include swimming, water safety, nutrition, and reading. Each group of children comes to the CARC for four days of training. When they complete the course, students are presented with "I Can Swim!" certificates and their families are invited to watch a demonstration and to join the children for a swim. In its first year of operation, "I Can Swim!" served 273 children.

One desired outcome of the "I Can Swim" initiative is that families of children involved will continue to pursue fitness related education and activities at the CARC.

Funding for the "I Can Swim!" program is through donations to the Garrett College Foundation. Executive Director of the Foundation Fred Learey said that recently the board decided to expand the fund-raising efforts by identifying additional avenues of support. "We have decided to reach out into the community and seek partnerships with groups and organizations that are willing to help us build the financial base we need to assure the continuation of this important program. One of our Foundation Board members, Alison Rudy Sweitzer, will chair the 'I Can Swim!' committee. In this capacity she will spearhead the efforts to create fund-raising events within the new partnership model," he said, adding, "Alison is an energetic, focused, young woman who will do an excellent job in this capacity."

Sweitzer and the committee have already forged a link between "I Can Swim!" and the program's community partner, the Manta Ray Swim Team. A swim-a-thon fund-raiser will be held on Saturday, Oct. 20, at the CARC. Billed as the "I Can Swim-a-thon," this event is open to everyone and all participants are asked to raise at least $25 for the "I Can Swim Program!" which provides free swimming and water safety classes to all kindergarten-age children in Garrett County.

The event is structured to accommodate various levels of swimming ability. In the competition pool will be a timed lap swim equal to the swimming portion of either a 30-mile or 70-mile triathlon with prizes awarded for fastest swim. The warm water pool will be used for non-lap swimmers participating in the event and will include water aerobics sessions and group lessons.

There will be an adequate number of lifeguards on duty. Non-CARC members are invited to participate in this fund-raising event. A prize will be awarded to the highest money raiser. Anyone who raises over $100 will be eligible for a special gift!

Sponsors for the "I Can Swim-a-thon" include Garrett College, the CARC, Sincell Publishing Co., Inc., the Manta Ray Swim Team, and Rudy's Mountaintop Outfitters. For more information or to register persons may visit www.icanswimprogram.org.

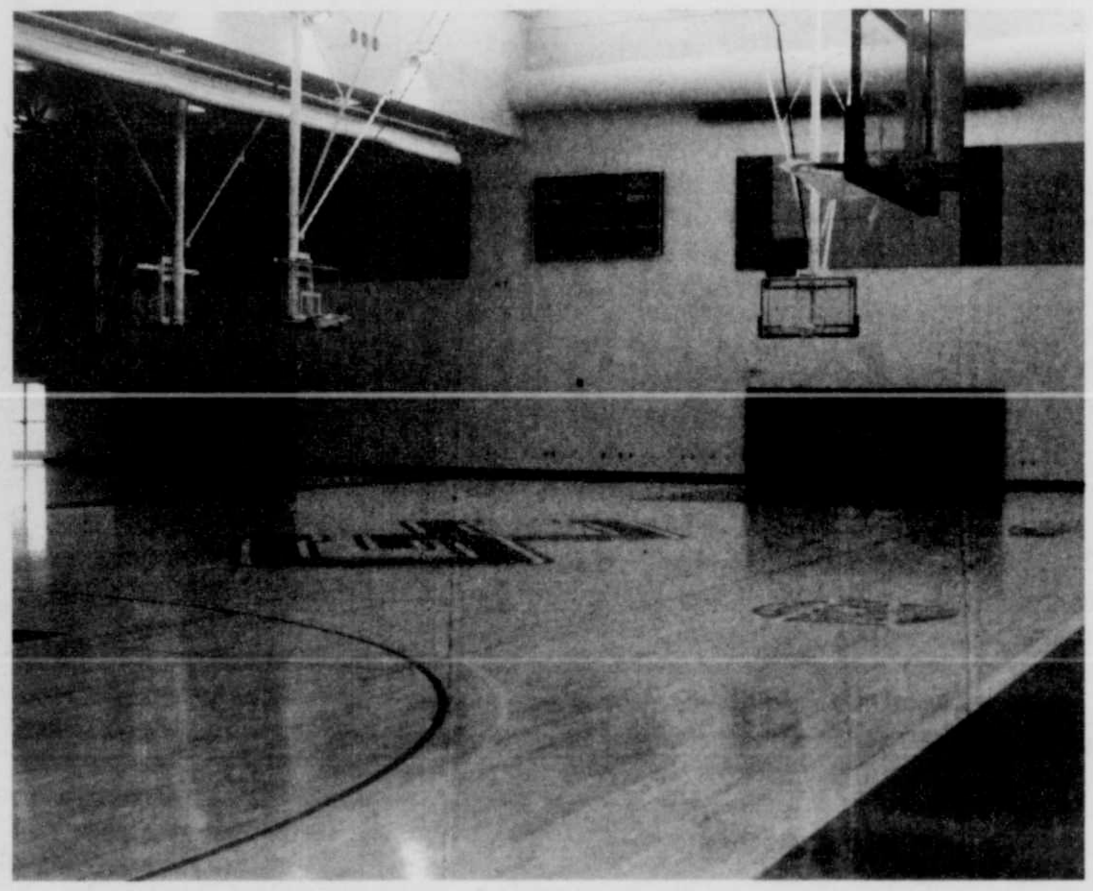
Garrett College CARC Part II Grand Opening held



Phase I of the Garrett College Community Aquatic & Recreation Complex (CARC) opened its doors in October 2011. "We are very pleased with the Aquatic and Fitness CARC facilities and continue to receive compliments from members. This summer we surpassed the 1,300 member mark and believe that, with the opening of Phase II, we will continue to serve many more people in our community in ways that were not available before," said Dr. Richard MacLennan, president of Garrett College.

Phase I included use of the regulation-size competition swimming pool with viewing area, the heated pool for general use, a fully equipped fitness facility, lockers and shower rooms, and classrooms for a variety of fitness classes. CARC Phase II includes a gymnasium that consists of three collegiate size basketball/volleyball courts with a seating capacity of 1,600 in the bleachers. "We see this facility as a great venue for sporting events, graduation and other special events, said Dr. George Brelsford, Garrett College dean of student life. "There will be also be designated hours for members to use the gym for recreational use."

A variety of membership formats have been developed to ensure access for everyone. Current and future members will have access to both the Aquatic and Fitness facility and the gymnasium. Access ranges from Day Passes for one day use, flex passes that permit individuals to share access, and individual/family memberships that range from three to 12 month memberships. Community swim days and times have been identified to permit non-members to swim at a reduced rate. Group usage rates have also been developed for swim leagues and teams in addition to special programs and events such as birthday parties, swim camps, swim and safety classes.

Members and non-members can take advantage of the "Group Fitness Packages" offered at the CARC. "Each Group Package gives you the flexibility to choose from a wide variety of classes being offered at the CARC," stated Maney Gale, Garrett College CARC program coordinator. "Among them are group fitness and personal training, scuba, kayak, and canoe programs, Body Sculpting, Pilates, Yoga, Zumba™, Zumbatoics™, Aquatic Zumba™, dance, Spinning™, Kickboxing, PiYo™, , Tai Chi, Tae Kwon Do, Jazzercise™, aerobics, and Fitness Boot Camp".

Birthday parties at the CARC have become very popular with the community. Party rental includes access to the pool and party room for a two hour time period. The CARC mascot, Splash, has been a big hit at the parties. Families have found that the indoor pool and party room have provided a wonderful atmosphere for their parties.

On October 13, 2012, Phase II of the CARC was officially opened to the public. The event included a comedy basketball game which featured the Court Jesters from New Jersey against the Garrett County Dream Team.

More information about the CARC may be found on the CARC website www.gccarc.com or by calling 301-387-3786.

Kids Who Play Sports Show Connection to Better Health

Kids who play a sport or more than just one may be scaling up better in health, than those kids sitting in the stands. Researchers at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire surveyed over 1,700 adolescents to see how different forms of physical activity influenced their risk of being overweight or obese.

"Every additional sports team adolescents played on was associated with a ten percent decrease in their risk of overweight, up to three sports. Playing on two sports teams or more was associated with a 39 percent decrease in an adolescent's risk of obesity." Dr. Keith Drake is at the Hood Center for Children and Families at Dartmouth College. Dr. Drake and his colleagues suggest that high schoolers participate in at least two sports per year. The study in the journal Pediatrics was supported by the National Institutes of Health.

This is just one more reason why participating in some of the abundance of sports opportunities in our community will benefit your child.

Expansion Project At King's Run Site Almost Completed

The expansion of the King's Run Road Refuse and Recycling site is nearly completed, manager Dave Baker, Garrett County Department of Solid Waste and Recycling, announced on Monday.

The site improvements include better access from King's Run Road and an improved office facility for the staff.

"The expansion will also provide several benefits for customers," Baker noted. "The improved lighting and increased space will enhance safety and speed up service."

The site is now the third full-service site in Garrett County, joining those at Grantsville and Weber Road. The King's Run site now accepts additional recyclables to include magazines, office paper, electronics, oil, antifreeze, and oil filters.

"Customers are encouraged to make full use of the new services as part of their next visit to King's Run," Baker said. "Recycling is good for the environment, saves valuable landfill space, and helps Garrett County meet recycling goals set by the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE)."

Staff from the county landfill were able to perform much of the work at King's Run, resulting in significant savings to taxpayers, Baker added. The site preparation, storm water structures and utilities were all done in- house. Paving was completed by the Garrett County Roads Department resulting in additional savings. MDE provided the equipment for the oil and antifreeze station, as well as a grant to cover the cost of the rain shelter over the station.

Garrett County Solid Waste and Recycling's future plans include upgrading the Bumble Bee Road refuse/recycling site and the landfill to full service by June 2013.

To get more information on recycling or for questions about renewing residential refuse permits, persons may call the landfill at 301-387-0322.

TIME FOR THE GHOULS AND GOBLINS – The leaves are falling and so is the mercury, and that means it's nearly time for the creepy and fun traditions of Halloween. The decorations are already up across the county, as folks ready for the week of eerie fun. This macabre (and busy!) scene is on the Savage family property, located along Doc Tolson Road. Trick-or-treating will take place in several towns of the county, and the schedules are noted in the Town Hall News column in today's paper. Festivities will kick off tonight in Oakland with the traditional Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club Halloween parade and social. The parade will begin at 6:30, starting at the Ruth Enlow Library along Second Street. A party with games and prizes will follow at the Oakland fire hall. Time to dress up and have fun! Fifth Rabies Case Of 2012 Reported By GC Health Dept.

The Garrett County Health Department's Environmental Health Services Division has reported the fifth case of laboratory confirmed rabies in Garrett County for 2012. This case involved a raccoon that fought a currently vaccinated dog in the Grantsville area.

The dog had received a rabies booster less than a month ago and will be closely monitored for 45 days. There was no human exposure in this incident, according to a Health Department spokeswoman.

"The public is strongly urged to check the vaccination status of their pets to assure current protection against the rabies virus," she said.

Dogs, cats, and ferrets need to. be revaccinated against rabies every three years after their initial one-year vaccina-

Unused Meds Collected In Fifth Drug Take-Back

For the fifth time in two years, Americans emptied medicine cabinets, bedside stands, and kitchen drawers of unwanted, unused, and expired prescription drugs and took them to collection sites located throughout the United States as part of the Drug Enforcement Administration's (DEA) National Prescription Drug Take-Back Day.

The local take-back, held on Sept. 29, was sponsored by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, Maryland State Police Barrack W, the Drug-Free Communities Coalition, the Garrett County Health Department, and the DEA.

About 50 pounds of medicine was collected in Garrett County at four sites, to add to the 488,395 pounds (244 tons) of medications collected at more than 5,263 locations nationwide. When added to the collections from DEA's previous four Take-Back events, more than 2 million pounds (1,018 tons) of prescription medications have been removed from circulation.

According to the 2011 Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration's National Survey on Drug Use and Health (NSDUH), more than 6 million Americans abuse prescription drugs. That same study determined that more than 70 percent of people abusing prescription pain relievers got them through friends or relatives, a statistic that includes raiding the family medicine cabinet, a spokesperson said.

The National Prescription Drug Take-Back Day is designed to provide a safe, convenient, and responsible means of disposal, while also educating the general public about the potential for abuse of these medications.

"Although we collected less medication locally during this take-back event than the last one, we still believe it was a success," said Sadie Liller, prevention specialist at the health department. "It was a great way to advertise the 24-hour-a-day availability of the permanent drop locations at the sheriff's office and the Maryland State Police barrack, and the public has already started using the drop boxes.

"Instead of medication drop-off days being available only several times each year, these drop boxes will allow Garrett C unty residents to dispose of dangerous prescription drugs as soon as they are no longer needed," said Liller. "We want to make it convenient to get these unused dangerous drugs out of the home, safeguarding the family and decreasing the possibility of the drugs being misused."

The permanent drop boxes are available 24 hours a day, every day, in the lobbies of the

Dove Center, GC Sheriff's Office Receive Dept. Of Justice Grants

U.S. Senators Barbara A. Mikulski and Ben Cardin (both D-Md.) recently announced that numerous organizations received a total of $5,049,214 in grants from the Office on Violence Against Women (OVW) at the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) for efforts around the state that will help protect women and families from domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking and other dating violence.

Locally, the Dove Center was awarded $19,735 for the Safety and Intervention Initiative, and the Garrett County Sheriff's Office received $35,028 for victim services.

These funds are authorized by the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA), originally established in 1994 and reauthorized most recently in 2006. Mikulski is chairwoman of the Commerce, Justice, Science Appropriations Subcommittee, which funds VAWA programs administered by DOJ and OVW.

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month, Milkulski noted.

"I have absolutely no tolerance for domestic violence," Mikulski said. "As a social worker, I've seen first hand how domestic violence hurts children and destroys families. These funds in the federal checkbook meet a compelling human need, protecting victims, helping families heal and rebuild their lives. I will continue to fight for the Violence Against Women Act and grant programs that help protect women and their families from continued abuse."

"Domestic violence cannot be permitted, and this Department of Justice grant will provide important support for women and families who are struggling to escape the cycle of abuse," said Cardin "This funding will help ensure that Marylanders who are victims of domestic violence have access to counseling and other services they need to get back on their feet again. On the federal level, I urge my colleagues in the House to act as soon as possible to reauthorize the Violence Against Women Act."

"The Violence Against Women Act has allowed us to achieve significant progress in our efforts to protect women and children from abuse in Maryland," said Lt. Gov. Anthony Brown. "These new funds will allow our partners throughout the state

PROJECT CONCLUDING IN "BOUNCE BACK BONANZA" – This year's community dance project, spearheaded by Brenda Brosnihan, assisted by Miss Maryland Joanna Guy, will culminate in a special "Bounce Back Bonanza" event on Sunday, Nov. 4, from 2 to 4 p.m. at Southern High School. The project was designed to raise awareness and money for Cindy's Fund and Children's Miracle Network Hospitals. Brosnihan, owner of Brenda's Body Shop, and Guy organized a series of dance-based activities over the past months, taking part in Labor Day celebrations as well as the Autumn Glory Festival. The bonanza will feature entertainment by Miss Maryland, Brenda's Body Shop, and the Chrevo Dance Troupe from Cumberland. "We are so excited for our Bounce Back Bonanza where we will learn how much money we raised for the charities and how many balls we collected back from the community," Brosnihan said. " We look forward to performing all the dances we have rehearsed for the past several months, and we'll make a YouTube video as a lasting tribute to this fun and worthwhile project." All are invited to the bonanza, which will also include a "bounce house" donated by June Bug's Party Rentals. Kids may also "bounce around on hoppity hops," Brosnihan said. Guy said the project has been a worthwhile experience. "Cindy's Fund and Children's Miracle Network Hospitals support people facing serious health and wellness challenges," Guy said. "I have witnessed firsthand the healing and hope that these organizations bring to local adults and children. The outpouring of enthusiasm and support for this project from across Garrett County has been truly inspiring." Photo by William Wotring.

OPEN CHAMPION

NORTHERN BAND CHAPTER 5 CHAMPS – The Northern Garrett Marching Band took first place in the Chapter 5 Championships for Group 1 bands on Saturday. The event was held at South Hagerstown High School. Chapter 5 includes all bands in Maryland in the Tournament of Bands circuit, and Northern competes in Group 1 of the chapter, as does Southern Garrett. Vying in Group 1 on Saturday were Northern, Southern, Frederick, and Walkersville high schools. Northern's Salute to Carlos Santana show earned a score of 82.95, and the group won the specialty awards for Best Drum Major (Elizabeth Green), Best Music, and Best Percussion. Frederick came in second with a score of 81.25, and Southern was third with an 80.80. "The kids are on cloud nine this week, of course," said Northern's director, Duane Salisbury. "It has just been a great season, and it's very satisfying to win chapters." The band is pictured shortly after the awards ceremony on Saturday. Both county high school bands will travel to Hershey, Pa., on Nov. 4 to compete in the Atlantic Coast Championships. There they will be among 27 Group 1 bands from across the East Coast, vying for scores and specialty awards.

Sebold Announces Candidacy For BOE Re-Election

Charlotte Sebold, McHenry, has announced her candidacy for re-election to one of the two at-large positions on the Garrett County Board of Education.

"At the end of my current term, I will have devoted 20 years to public service, working with students, parents, and educators to provide a quality public education in Garrett County," she said. As the longest serving member on the board and current president, Sebold said that working on behalf of students and the community remains incredibly rewarding for her.

She has resided in the Sang Run area of Garrett County for 32 years with her husband Don. They have two children who attended the Garrett County School System.

"Having a high quality school system and great education is very important to me, and at the same time it's important to balance that by being fiscally responsible," she added. "The power and impact of our school system on our overall community should not be underestimated. Our school system is of great importance to the much needed future economic development of our county."

Over the past years in office, Sebold has been involved at the state and local levels as an advocate for the GC school system. "It is important that the policy makers in Annapolis know that we are aware of how their actions or non-actions will affect our system and that we are holding them accountable. We also need to have a close working relationship with our local government officials."

"I believe that if re-elected, my training and experience will allow me to provide strong leadership that sets high goals for students and teachers and to provide them the right policies and environment to attain the most complete educational experiences available."

Grady Running For Position On Local BOE

Darlena Grady, Oakland, has announced her candidacy for one of the two open positions on the Garrett County Board of Education.

"With two children in the Garrett County elementary school system, I have been privileged to be a parent member of the school improvement board and understand what parents expect from their children's education system," she said. "I am enthusiastic and prepared to contribute my knowledge to the public school program and curriculum of Garrett County."

Grady has a doctorate in jurisprudence from the West Virginia University College of Law and has worked as the attorney for students at WVU. Currently, she is an owner of Grand Central Home Furnishings and works as a substitute teacher for the Garrett County school system.

"With experience in program initiatives, staff development and education, marketing, and safety management, I have a proven record for exceeding goals through effective internal and external communication," she said. "Furthermore, I believe these experiences will relate valuably with my firm commitment to student-centered learning."

She feels that as a member of the Garrett County Board of Education, her decisions will be based upon her uncompromising view that all students can learn, given a positive learning atmosphere that welcomes exploration and enhances student confidence.

"It is my belief that an educator's mission is to make school enjoyable and exciting – if students look forward to attending school, they will want to learn. I believe that is what school is all about."

Maryland Drops Out...

With the presidential polls neck-and-neck right now, the possibility of having one candidate win the popular vote, but lose the election, is looming. This happened a few times in our history, and nearly happened in the Bush-Kerry race in 2004. Even though Bush finished with a popular vote lead of about 3 million, a swing of just 60,000 votes in Ohio would have given Kerry the victory.

So it is actually 538 electors who officially elect the president and vice president, and we as individual citizens cast a vote for our particular state's electors. In nearly all states, electors are awarded on a winner-take-all basis to the candidate who wins the most votes in that state. Although the electors are not required by federal law to honor a pledge, in the overwhelming majority of cases they vote for the candidate to whom they are pledged.

However, even though the intent of the Electoral College was to protect the rights of smaller states, things have not worked out so well. For the past few weeks, Obama and Romney have been spending 90% of their time – and lots and lots of money – in what are known as swing states of which there are about a half-dozen. Ohio and Florida have been the stomping grounds by both candidates lately because a win in one or both of these states will likely give that candidate the overall victory. In fact, 95% of the typical presidential candidate's election budget is spent in six to eight states.

So, while the Electoral College was supposedly designed to protect the rights of smaller states, look at what is happening. Clearly a vote by an Ohio or Florida citizen is worth a lot more than a vote by one who resides in Rhode Island, Mississippi, or Maryland, for that matter. Even the huge states of California and Texas are "unimportant" in this regard, as each is clearly going to go a certain way (California, Democrat, and Texas, Republican). So there is no true fairness, there is no equality of votes throughout the country. It is radically disproportionate. It's no wonder so many people fail to show up at the polls.

Making matters even worse than the inequality of votes, then, would be the case of the candidate getting the fewer number of popular votes becoming the president, which may well happen less than two weeks from now.

Interestingly, Maryland became the first state in the nation to technically drop out of the Electoral College through a bill passed in 2007. Governor O'Malley signed the law that awards the state's electoral votes to the winner of the national popular vote, but only (and here is the caveat) as long as others agree to do the same. That really means that the law will go into effect only if a lot of other states do likewise. If that happened, Maryland voters could vote 100 percent Democratic, but if the Republican won the national vote, Maryland's electoral vote would go to the Republican.

If indeed the Nov. 6 election results in the candidate who receives the lower number of popular votes being declared the winner, either major renovation – total elimination – of the Electoral College is all but guaranteed.

To the Editor:

I am stunned by the tragic death last week of Pat Franklin. Such a terrible event to happen as part of Autumn Glory! I came to know Pat as she visited our second-hand bookstore End of the Line Books and talked books and reading with me. She was very supportive of our attempts to recycle books, and it was only with her obituary that I realized that recycling was at the core of her life.

We can all honor her life by continuing her commitment to recycle and reuse, to rethink the part of our culture that "uses and disposes" without a thought to the ultimate costs of such a lifestyle.

I will miss Pat's visits to the bookstore, and we will all be the poorer if we do not take the lessons of her life to heart. I will make a deeper commitment to recycle in Pat's memory.

To the Editor:

Just wanted to take the time to let all know our little boy sheltie dog Bobbie came home. He was gone for 13 days, having left the fenced-in yard of my mother, who lives on H Steet in Mtn. Lake Park.

It is truly a miracle from God. My wife and I were sitting in our living room. We heard a thump. Not knowing what it was, I went to investigate. I went out my front door and there little Bobbie was. He had banged against our door wanting in. We were overcome with joy.

Bobbie was riddled with burrs and his hair matted. He was, of course, dirty and had lost some weight, but he was home! His collar was not on him. We can only assume someone had him tied up and he had backed out of his collar, as we can't see the collar coming off otherwise because of his coat of long hair.

My wife and I just want to thank all who cared, prayed, and helped look for our little Bobbie. God bless you all. We also want to say to those who are missing their beloved pet, don't give up! God is able to speak to your pets and have his angels to guide them safely home. Perhaps you will get the thud on your door and find your pet waiting for you to let him in. Keep the faith.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

I am writing today to remind drivers in and around Oakland, especially Liberty Street, to please slow down when driving. The speed limit on Liberty Street and many other roads downtown is only 25 mph.

Last Monday, one of the pair of ducks that lives near Oakland Oil (next to Glades Town Park) was recklessly hit by a car. This innocent duck ended up bleeding, suffering tremendously, and nearly losing an eye because of a careless driver. It was so upsetting to see this poor animal in so much misery.

The gracious folks at Oakland Oil offered to take the injured duck to the vet, but the cost to treat it was going to be over $200. The duck is now recovering, thanks to those Oakland Oil workers and the secretary who helped him.

But please, I take this opportunity to remind all drivers to watch for wildlife while driving Oakland's roads. Please pay attention and please be safe.

Thank you,
Linda Belasco

To the Editor:

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month. During this time, we often think of the victims and how we could help. One of the best and most important ways to help is to end domestic violence at the source – stop the abuse.

One program that aims to help with this is the Dove Center's Abuse Intervention Program (AIP). This program is certified through the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention to provide domestic violence perpetrators with education about how to end the control and abuse of their partners. Participants can be court ordered, referred from another agency, or voluntary.

There is a fee for the program, but it is based on income. The curriculum touches on everything from non-violent behavior to communication skills to parenting issues. This program serves both adult male and female domestic violence offenders and is held in a group setting during a two-hour meeting once a week. Co-ed groups are not held. The program lasts a minimum of 26 weeks, including intake and exit interviews.

As the only certified domestic violence intervention program in our county, AIP is a true resource for those seeking to end their abusive behaviors. Although there are no guarantees that abusive people will stop hurting their partners, AIP offers a place to start on the lifelong path of nonviolence.

To find out more about this opportunity, please call the Dove Center at 301-334-6255 and ask to speak with someone about the Abuse Intervention Program.

Sincerely,
Kristiann Germain
Coordinator of Abuse Intervention Services

To the Editor:

Okay, to the person or persons who stole my Obama/Biden yard signs, I would like to ask why you thought it was okay to trespass on my property, steal my signs, and infringe on my right to free speech. Did you get some thrill by doing this? Did you think your actions would make any difference to my desire to support the Democratic Party in this election? I do not believe that I have trespassed on your property (wherever that may be), nor have I infringed on your right to free speech, and I truly find it offensive that you would choose to do this to me.

In case you are unaware of the country in which you reside, this is America. In an election, all citizens have the right to support the candidate/candidates of their choice. Perhaps you should re-examine our Constitution. You just might learn something new.

To the Editor:

Community schools work, especially during children's formative years. In addition to enhancing children's educational experience, small schools encourage a sense of community. Community schools also add value as community centers and they help maintain property values.

Because schools add value in so many ways, it was good to read that a Kitzmiller group (KCSI) applied for charter school permitting. If you believe in community schools, write or call county officials. Your community's school could be next – unless you live in Oakland, which appears to be the default location for schools closed in surrounding communities.

The fact is, Garrett County government and the school board might have done better by taxpayers than to neglect small communities during the boom years, then damage them after official incompetence could no longer be hidden by rising revenues. After 2000, county government facilitated the school board's doubling spending as student population declined over 20%. In sum, officials found money to increase staff head count and increase salaries above the rate of inflation, but found no money to protect community schools.

Charter schools are one path communities can take to help children develop a sense of community and mature before entering larger pools of students. Hundreds of communities now take the charter school path. If you believe in community schools, this is a good time to let officials know your feelings.

Thank you,
W.L. Welch

To the Editor:

Finally The Republican newspaper and Friends of Deep Creek Lake (FoDCL) have voiced a strong advocacy for taking a stand that the state of Maryland must accept responsibility for the welfare and preservation of Deep Creek Lake; The Republican carrying several editorials regarding the deterioration of the lake, and FoDCL currently circulating a petition to the state to provide state funds toward the preservation of the lake and surrounding watershed.

I have voiced my own advocacy in previous letters to the editor and in other public forums over the past couple of years when I stated that a DNR representative once wrote to me that Ocean City (OC) is annually allocated taxpayer funds in the amount of $500,000 to rebuild the eroded sands of OC's beaches from storm damage.

Why is not the state providing funding to protect DCL? Why are the lake-access and lakefront property owners paying for the total cost of the DNR Lake Management Office (LMO) in docks fees that have progressively increased from a modest $10 under Pennelec ownership to over $144 annually? Why do the lake-access/front property owners have to pay for the total upkeep of the DNR buffer strip, including protecting the lake shoreline from erosion and controlling state and county road storm run-off? Where are the commissioners and the Maryland elected delegate and senator in lobbying for state funds to protect DCL as is done with Ocean City?

Now is the time for the commissions to put forth funds to protect DCL and watershed. Now is the time for the Garrett County state delegate and senator to put forth an appropriation bill to get state funds to protect and preserve state-owned property, Deep Creek Lake. It is time for all of the flush taxes collected in Garrett County to be allocated toward the preservation of DCL and watershed and not go to the rehabilitation of the Chesapeake Bay. It is well known that most of Garrett County's water flows north and ultimately to the Mississippi delta, and not into the Chesapeake Bay.

To the Editor:

It was with deep sadness I attended Pat Farrell Franklin's funeral in Falls Church last Friday. To an overflowing crowd, Pat's family and friends began the process of saying good-bye .

I wanted to write this letter to try to convey an image which struck my heart at the service. All who spoke made reference to the times shared by Pat's extended family "at the lake." Near the State Park, Pat's extended family has three homes where three generations gather often for board games, meals, all sorts of water sports, and exploring the area together. The pamphlet featured a photo of joyous, victorious Pat on her bike during the SavageMan Triathlon just weeks before.

We heard how the lake is the place Pat's family gets together, supporting, sustaining, and building family connections and love. Her family is like so many other multi-generation families around the lake who truly consider this place as their "emtional" home, including my own.

I am not sure all Garrett Countians understand how very important the lake is to us lake people. We are drawn here for the lake and natural beauty. Over time, our lake houses become lake homes, where we build and nurture our families, creating our collective memories and hopes that the future generations will be able to enjoy what we have found here.

In the local paper during the summer, we read of local family reunions every weekend. This is what lake people do when we come to the lake.

Those humongous rental homes also serve as settings for reunions for extended families and friends, providing a large space for all to gather "at the lake." Again, family memories are made here – even by the folks who are called "turons."

We may be "city escapists," a clearly derogatory term given to us lake property owners by a local business man. Yes, we are escaping – busy, demanding lives with little family time. We come here because the lake, the beautiful natural setting, slows us down, opens spaces for time with our family, and enables us to heal and recharge in this setting, creating moments of pure joy.

For Pat, the ideal end of the day was being on the dock, watching and feeling the calm take over the world. It was here among her family that she made the important connections to her home, her heart and soul, as the sun set over the lake. Peace.

To the Editor:

Last week's editorial noted several problems with requiring sprinkler systems in houses: high cost, possible malfunctions, and small benefit. The proposed sprinkler requirement is another example of the government believing that it can decide how to spend citizens' money better than the citizens can. The cost of installing sprinklers is high and the additional benefit of sprinklers over inexpensive smoke detectors is miniscule. Therefore, most people faced with this option choose to not install sprinklers and use their money for other things of their choosing.

Curiously, however, the editorial then proceeded to commend the county comissioners' plan to give $2,500 to each person installing sprinklers in new houses in Garrett County. If the benefits of having sprinklers in one's house are not great enough to make the homebuyer willingly pay for sprinklers, why should the county pay for them? It is highly likely that a good part of this government subsidy will go to persons building expensive houses around Deep Creek Lake.

The bottom line is that the taxes of Garrett County taxpayers will be used to install sprinklers (that homebuyers do not think are worth paying for) in expensive houses. What a waste of taxpayer dollars!

To the Editor:

Like many states in the country, Maryland is just beginning to see a number of signs that the housing market is recovering. While there are many reasons for this, there is no denying that Congressman Bartlett has worked tirelessly during the darkest days of the housing downturn to fight for homeowners.

He supported efforts to stimulate housing when home sales were plummeting and home values were in free fall. Proposals like the homebuyer tax credit, increasing FHA loan limits, and the affordable housing tax credit helped many Maryland homeowners both purchase property and avoid foreclosure. He continues to support sensible underwriting rules that ensure rational lending, and is fighting hard against a federal regulation mandating 20% down payments for all home buyers – a proposal that would surely kill the market.

As a realtor, I have seen firsthand the positive impact of his work, and I hope 6th District homeowners will appreciate on November 6 how hard he fights for them.

Ferguson Couple Celebrates 60th Wedding Anniversary On Oct. 4

William and Mary Ferguson of Accident and Lanham celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on Oct. 4. The high school sweethearts were both graduates of Bedford (Pa.) High School, and were married on Oct. 4, 1952, at the Bedford Valley Assembly of God Church in Bedford.

AURORA CEOS

Wilda Harsh was the hostess of the Oct. 16 meeting of the Aurora Community Outreach group with five in attendance. Opal Myers opened with devotions and the meeting by reading "Why God Gave Us Friends" as the meditation.

Bonny Lantz, Cranberry Thanksgiving leader, told of the early hook-up with Thanksgiving, which matured the relationship now in place. Always a part of the traditional Thanksgiving, cranberries are a healthy fruit and can be eaten daily in salads, stuffing, and snack food. The cranberry grows on a dwarf evergreen shrub or vine and is found in bogs or marshes in the Northern Hemisphere. They may also be found in the higher altitudes of the southern Appalachian Mountains. Cranberries contain antioxidants that are thought to prevent urinary tract infections by keeping bacteria from adhering to the walls of cells. They may also be beneficial for HDL and LDL cholesterol levels and inhibiting growth in tumors.

Committees report forms are available and due to the county chairman by Nov. 30. Member volunteerism was discussed, and the various and different venues where they may be of use. It was also noted that the areas of interest need to be updated.

Members thanked their committee who prepared the third place at the Buckwheat Festival. They also discussed ways in which to increase membership, noting again the need for updating. The county craft night will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 30, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Extension Office.

The Santa Tree will soon be available. The Christmas meeting is scheduled to be held at Donna Jean's Restaurant on Dec. 7 at 6 p.m. All spouses and friends are welcome. Those planning to attend are asked to RSVP to Opal Myers at 304-735-3881. The next meeting will be held Nov. 13.

AURORA SENIORS

Devotions were led by Dee Douglas, and stuffed peppers and pecan cobbler were provided by the center. Next month's menu includes pork chops.

Guest speaker was Arvin Harsh, who discussed the School Bond Levy. Barbara Williams won the candy jar. The Fall Fling was held last Friday, and the group took a trip on Tuesday to the Mountain Music Theater. The group also voted to donate food to the Terra Alta Food Pantry in November. Martha Bolyard will lead the November devotions.

It was also announced that a community meeting regarding the Aurora Post Office will be held Nov. 14 at 4 p.m. at the Aurora fire hall.

High Tunnels To Be Featured At Area Workshop

A "Hands-On High Tunnel Construction Workshop" will be sponsored by Frostburg Grows and the University of Maryland Extension – Garrett County.

On Friday, Nov. 2, the classroom session will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. at City Place, 14 South Water Street, Frostburg.

On Saturday, Nov. 3, the high tunnel building session will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Frostburg Grows site. Directions will be distributed at Friday's session.

High tunnels are used by fruit and vegetable producers to extend the growing season in the spring and fall. A high tunnel is essentially a greenhouse without heat or fans, making them much less expensive than greenhouses. Crops are typically grown in the ground in a high tunnel.

"If you have been thinking of building a high tunnel, but were not sure what it would take to get one up, this will be the workshop for you," a spokesperson said.

The classroom portion of the workshop will cover the different types of high tunnels, construction methods, and typical modifications to high tunnels. During the building session, participants will help with the construction of a high tunnel.

To register for the workshop, persons may contact the Garrett County office of the University of Maryland Extension at 301-334-6960. There will be a $25 fee for the workshop, which can be paid at the time of the event.

For more information, persons may contact Willie Lantz at 301-334-6960.

PRESTON FSA ANNOUNCES THE START OF COUNTY COMMITTEE ELECTION

Eric McCartney, executive director of USDA's Farm Service Agency in Preston County, has announced that the election period for the FSA County Committee will begin Monday, Nov. 5, and is open through December 3. A representative from Local Administrative Area 3 (Lyon, Reno, and Union districts) will be elected to serve.

"County committees help administer federal farm programs at the local level. It is vital that FSA committees represent a cross-section of producers in each community," said McCartney. "I encourage all eligible producers, especially minorities and women, to make a difference by voting in this year's FSA county committee election."

FSA county committees help ensure that FSA agricultural programs serve the needs of local producers. Committees provide input on commodity price support loans and payments, conservation programs, disaster payments for some commodities, and other farm disaster assistance. FSA committees operate within official regulations designed to carry out federal laws. The Preston County Committee consists of three members and currently has one appointed advisor to further represent the interests of minority and women farmers.

Agricultural producers who participate or cooperate in any FSA program and are of legal voting age may vote. A person supervising and conducting the farming operations on an entire farm, but not of legal voting age, may also vote.

Ballots will be mailed to eligible producers on Nov. 5. Eligible producers should contact the Preston County FSA office if they do not receive a ballot. All ballots must be returned to the voter's FSA office or be postmarked by Dec. 3, 2012.

During the 2012 nomination period, Edward Utterback of the Aurora area was nominated.

The elected candidate will serve a three-year term on the Preston County FSA Committee. Newly elected committee members will take office Jan. 1, 2013.

Producers can learn more about FSA county committees by visiting the Preston County FSA office, located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza, or by calling 304-329-1923.

Local 4-H Group Participates In Eco-Bot Activity

Millions of young people across the nation became scientists for the day during the fifth annual 4-H National Youth Science Day (NYSD) held Oct. 10. This annual event seeks to spark an early youth interest in science and future science careers, and to reclaim the nation's position of leadership in scientific exploration.

As part of 4-H NYSD, youth from University of Maryland Extension's Friendsville 4-H Tech Wizards participated in the 4-H Eco-Bot Challenge: the 2012 National Science Experiment.

Designed by the Ohio State University Extension, this year's experiment introduced youth to robotic engineering concepts as they programmed a robot to clean up a simulated environmental spill. The 4-H Eco-Bot Challenge demonstrated that by utilizing engineering principles, youth can have a positive impact on communities and ecosystems.

4-H'ers enhanced their engineering skills by assembling their own Eco-Bots and surface controls to manage an environmental clean-up. Youth then tested the interaction between the Eco-Bot's design features and various surface control configurations to determine the most effective clean-up solution for the simulated spill.

The Friendsville 4-H Tech Wizard Program is an outreach program sponsored by the University of Maryland Extension/Garrett County 4-H Youth Development with assistance from Frostburg State University Echo-Stars! mentors. The program is funded through a grant from the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention and supported by the National Mentoring Initiative Engaging Youth, Serving Communities.

Whether applicants are looking to polish a resume or need to start from scratch, the Garrett County Job Center will craft a resume that makes a more favorable impression in today's difficult job market.

"Now more than ever, a good resume is essential to a successful job search," a spokesperson said. "The number of people who are able to find a new job without using a resume is decreasing. An effective resume showcases job skills and highlights strengths. It will set job seekers apart from the competition and may dramatically increase the probability of landing a job. DIETING IS BAD FOR YOUR HEALTH

PART I – The Problem With Dieting

by Dr. James J. Damato

Q. I have read so many books about how to diet and lose weight, but despite all the special gimmicks, I don't lose weight. I can't figure out what to do. Can you give me the straight scoop?

Editor's note: Guest columnist Dr. James Damato tackles this subject:

A. Your question is a very good one, which touches on a major health issue that affects more that half of our community and nation. I'll address several related topics in consecutive weeks. The objectives of this series are to assist you in A) assessing your current weight – to determine if you're at risk for serious disease, and B) eating in a better way that promotes good health.

The main concept is to have a food plan, as contrasted to "going on a diet."

The series includes: Article 1: The Problem with Dieting; Article 2: Analyzing Your Need for a Food Plan; Article 3: Describing the Food Plan; and Article 4: Implementing and Evaluating the Effectiveness of Your Food Plan.

In addition, these articles will also provide guidelines that will allow you to enjoy a wide variety of foods without placing your health at risk. Failure to develop an enjoyable and satisfying food plan that meets your individual and family health needs will result in serious and potentially fatal health problems that can shorten your life, limit career opportunities, and damage relationships.

Dieting is bad for your health for a number of reasons:

1. Diet plans prevent you from taking personal responsibility for your own actions. (If the plan fails, it must be the diet rather than your own failure in not changing how you eat);

2. Rapid weight loss diets often involve extreme eating habits which are not sustainable and deprive your body of essential nutrients;

3. Diets frequently involve depriving you the pleasure and satisfaction of eating a wide range of delicious and healthy foods;

4. Diets frequently do not teach you how eat in a manner that is healthy, satisfying and enjoyable; and

5. The weight loss associated with diets is often temporary because they don't teach you how to eat.

An effective food plan will allow you to enjoy the pleasures of eating while promoting your health and well-being for a lifetime.

Let's start this discussion by asking, Who taught you how to eat? Eating is a learned behavior just like driving a car, making a cake, or using firearms. The vast majority of us learned to eat from our parents and/or grandparents.

In our community, many of our forebears had demanding physical jobs related to agriculture and mining. They often worked 12-16 hours a day, six to seven days a week. In order to survive, it was necessary to eat large meals that were high in carbohydrates and fats. However, today our work activities are far less demanding, yet we often eat as though we were still working 18 hours a day in the fields or mines.

Since our bodies do not know the difference between working at a desk or in a field, all extra calories are stored as fat. The extra fat is stored in our hearts, brains, blood vessels, abdomen, breast, hips, and intestines, as well as, liver, kidneys, and circulatory blood vessels. When this fat storage becomes excessive, there is a dramatic increase in disease, which shortens your life and significantly reduces the quality of your life.

These complications of being overweight include cancer, diabetes, dementia, kidney failure, liver failure, blindness, heart attack, stroke, and impotency. In many instances these conditions are more severe in women than men because of physiological, anatomical, and hormonal differences. The good news is that if an appropriate food plan is implemented in a timely and consistent manner, these conditions can be prevented and in many instances reversed.

With this and subsequent articles you will have the opportunity to obtain the knowledge and motivation not to diet, but rather to develop a food plan that will allow you to eat what you want in a manner that promotes health and satisfaction. The secret of the program is not "what you eat," but "how to eat."

Finally, your efforts to adopt a more nutritious and enjoyable food plan will not only be personally beneficial, but you will serve as an outstanding role model for the men, women, and children in your life who depend upon you. You will be able to teach your loved ones how to eat and thereby assist them in developing and achieving their full potential by having sound bodies and minds. Being overweight is not only a killer, but significantly reduces the chances to achieve your full potential, as well as successful careers and meaningful relationships.

Next week: Part II – Analyzing Your Need for a Food Plan.

Dr. James J. Damato is a retired U.S. Army colonel who has devoted the last 48 years of his life to serving the health needs of his community and nation. He possesses three graduate degrees and numerous professional certifications in the areas of clinical laboratory operations, infectious diseases, quality assurance, and education. He is currently a professor at Garrett College and offers health promotion and quality management system programs through the Garrett College Continuing Education and Work Force Development Center.

FARCE BEING STAGED IN MET THEATRE BY WVU – The Ken Ludwig comedy Lend Me a Tenor will open this evening, Oct. 25, at the historic Metropolitan Theatre in downtown Morgantown, W.Va. The show is being presented by the West Virginia University School of Theatre and Dance from this evening through Sunday, with three shows beginning at 7:30 p.m. and the Sunday, Oct. 28, presentation at 2 p.m. "Teeming with the quintessential slamming of doors, quick dialogue, and pratfalls, Lend Me a Tenor epitomizes farce in all of its brilliance," the news release said. "A world-famous tenor and his jealous wife get thrown into a whirlwind of mishaps with the bombastic general manager of the opera company, his starry-eyed daughter, his talented assistant, a sexy soprano, a relentless bellhop, and the fawning chairwoman of the opera guild." The show is being directed by Lee Blair, assistant professor of acting and director of the undergraduate acting program at WVU. The scene designer is Prof. Bob Klingelhoefer, lighting and sound design by professor Alan McEwen, and costume design by MFA candidate Alex Vazquez. Cast members are Ariana Ballerini as Maggie, Joshua Smith as Max, Nick Ryan as Saunders, Nicholas Hanni as Tito, Sarah Reddy as Maria, Adam Messenger as the bellhop, Jenna Dorece as Diana, and Stephanie Freeman as Julia. Tickets are $20 for the general public and $15 for senior citizens and students. There is a group rate of $10 per ticket for groups of ten or more. Tickets are available at www.ticketmaster.com, the WVU box offices, or by calling 304-293-7469.

ASCI Announces Md. State Banjo Fiddle, And Mandolin Champions

The 45th annual Official Maryland State Banjo, Fiddle, and Mandolin championships were held in Oakland during the recent Autumn Glory Festival. This year's contests attracted competitors from seven states and ranged from age 8 to 91, according to event director Suzanne Nicolas.

"The banjo, fiddle, and mandolin contests are a core event at the Autumn Glory Festival and would not be possible without the support of many organizations in the community, including Southern and Northern high schools, Garrett County Roads Department, and the Garrett County Sheriff's Office," Nicolas said. "This is not to mention the many dedicated individuals who spend countless hours working to put the event on."

She noted that the banjo championship's Open Division was extremely competitive, with all three places taken by newcomers to the contest. The winners were as follows: third place, Gregg Welty, Mayville, N.Y.; second place, Gina Clowes, Berkeley Springs, W.Va.; and champion Rick Tincher, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

Other division winners were as follows: banjo clawhammer champion, Elizabeth Dunlap, Winchester, Va.; Junior Division champion, Bobby Sutton, Smithfield, Pa.; and Senior Division – third place, Joe Faidley Sr., Blairsville, Pa., second place, Robert "Hoot" McCann, Albright, W.Va., and champion Bob Phillips, Arona, Pa.

The mandolin contest also featured many newcomers, including the winner in the Champions Open Division. The winners were: third place, Ray Bruckman, Ligonier, Pa; second place, Scott Pearson, Warren, Pa.; and champion Taylor Baker, Winchester, Va.

The Junior Division mandolin winners were as follows: third place, Luke Faidley, Blairsville, Pa.; second place, Mary Dunlap, Winchester, Va.; and first place, Silas Powell, Salem, W,V..

Winners in the Senior Division were third place, Bill Ream, Swanton; second place, Joe Faidley Sr., Blairsville, Pa.; and senior champion, Don Kessler Sr., Pasadena.

"The Saturday evening fiddle championships were hotly contested and also featured many musicians who were new to the competition," Nicolas said.

Third place in the state Champion Division was Bernard Patrick, Derry, Pa.; second place, Ray Bruckman, Ligonier, Pa.; and champion Michele Birkby-Vance, Grantsville.

"The Junior Division showcased many talented young men and women, with third place going to Walker McGrath, Spring Gap; second place to Julia Voris, Punxsutawney, Pa.; and Hanna Livingston, Frostburg, winner," Nicolas said.

In the Senior Division (which was so close, there was a tie-breaker play-off), third place went to Ellinor Benedict of Grantsville, second place to Joe Faidley Sr. of Blairsville, Pa., and first place to David Crock of Springfield, W.Va.

The contests were sponsored by the Adventure Sports Center International (ASCI) and benefited Team River Runner, a Wounded Warrior program. Team River Runner (TRR), a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization, gives active duty service members and veterans an opportunity to find health, healing, and new challenges through whitewater boating and other paddling sports.

"The benefits of TRR have as much to do with creating a social network and support system as they do with learning water sports skills that provide an exciting adventure lifestyle that suddenly seemed lost due to injury," Nicolas noted. "The program also encourages family members to participate whenever possible. Many of the young men and women from the program come to Garrett County to practice their new skills in the controlled environment at ASCI and also on the local rivers such as the Yough and the Savage.

For more information, persons may call ASCI at 301-387-3250, e-mail snicolas@adventuresportscenter.com, or visit www.mdbanjoandfiddle.com.

Local Artists To Be Included In Mtn. Md. Tour

The Mountain Maryland 2012 Art Sale and Tour is currently under way, and seven Garrett County artists are participating in this event, which is sponsored by the Allegany Arts Council. The tour involves nearly 40 artisans this year, and is being held on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 27 and 28, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The participating artists of Garrett County are photographers Caroline Blizzard and Neal Blizzard, watercolor artist Robert Yonke, fused glass sculptor Julie Turrentine, watercolor and monotype artist Sue Arnson, woodworker Alan Arnson, and metal artist Kenny Braitman.

Caroline Blizzard has had a lifelong interest in studying nature. As a photographer she said she is able to see nature in a unique way. Her passion for nature and photography has led her to places such as the Galapagos Islands, Mexico, and the Amazon rainforest.

Neal Blizzard started out as a backyard photographer. He is interested in anything in nature, he said, and noted that his goal is to achieve color and sharpness to make the image "pop."

Yonke is a watercolor painter who works out of two studios, one in Pittsburgh, Pa., and the other in Garrett County. His subject matter is drawn from the local region and includes various scenes from Appalachia, the outdoors, and the Potomac watershed. He is also inspired, he said, by bluegrass music.

Turrentine has an outdoor gallery featuring glass pendant lights along with glass chimes taking the forms of fish, rainbows, butterflies, and other nature items. Her glass jewelry creations include earrings, bracelets, necklaces, pins, and other items.

Alan Arnson specializes in creating small wood items for the kitchen, boxes, and natural edged bowls. He will be demonstrating woodworking throughout the tour.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

Everyone knows that the New York Yankees are a symbol for the Wall Street elite, with their pin-striped uniforms. So naturally when they are trailing the Detroit Tigers, their manager must yell at the umpires when their calls do not always go their way. It's just another form of the deep culture divide between the vastly entitled few and those who must scrape out their living every day – Wall Street vs. Main Street.

But the Yankees do not always win. Not in the World Series of 1960 when my lowly Pittsburgh Pirates stunned them. No one believed that was remotely possible, except maybe players on the Pirates team. But it happened!

But it was not a questionable call that gave the Pirates their victory. It was a monster home run hit by Bill Mazeroski in the bottom of the ninth inning. It gave a clear victory to the underdog upstart team from one of the working-class cities in America. Other than Detroit, no other city had that title. It couldn't be called the Queen City, either, like Charlotte, N.C., now calls itself because of the many Wall Street firms located there.

Cincinnati also wants to call itself the Queen City. I don't know why. I think it is named after a Native American chief. That is true of names in many parts of the Midwest, but most people don't realize they have Native American origins, like Wisconsin.

I convinced a conservative friend of mine to vote for Obama in 2008, and now she feels like it would be wrong to vote for him again because of the endless beating he has already endured. It's not because she thinks he was or is a bad president. She is ashamed of the behavior of her former allies, some of the Christian conservatives, because they endlessly violate the commandment that says, "Thou shalt not utter falsehoods about thy neighbor." Tens of millions of Americans will experience deep hardships if he does not win this election.

It is a shame that the president's day job prevented him from enjoying a very positive event in Ohio: a joint appearance of the Bubba with the Boss (Bill Clinton and Bruce Springsteen). That would have boosted his sagging spirits.

I was occasionally almost struck dumb when one of my students said something remarkably stupid. I encouraged all students to contribute to the discussions. It was maybe the most important aspect of my classes, so I could not say, "That is the stupidest thing I have ever heard." That would discourage all students to be fully engaged in the learning process. Other students were permitted to respond to what another student said if they did it reasonably. Sometimes students wanted me to simply remove them from my classroom. They resented it when a student simply obstructed their education.

But I did not hesitate when someone said something outrageous to ask him or her very prodding questions to explain it fully so everyone could see how groundless it was.

One time I asked a class what they see in a tree. One of the students answered, "Money." Is that all? You do not see a beautiful thing? Or realize that it contributes to our ecosystem of which we are only a small part? Like it turns carbon dioxide into oxygen, or it is home to many creatures? You have no meaningful memories of it? Is it a symbol for something? What might a tree symbolize? Like the cycle of life: youth to maturity to death.

Perhaps our greatest American poet, Robert Frost ,wrote about a boy swinging on a sapling. It is a wonderful poem titled "Birches."

What event in a person's life is similar to the effects of an ice storm to nature? Remember the early ice storm on Oct. 13 in 2002 or so? My niece Blakely Glotfelty was the NHS Autumn Glory princess, and when she rode on the float in the parade in her gown, she got soaked by freezing rain.

But that was nothing compared to the damage to our trees. We lost so many limbs from the weight of the leaves that got heavily coated by thick ice. Remember? Surely you noticed it. Or do you only remember that you lost your electric service for a very long time?

The evening of the Ides of October, I have an early version of the most common type of sunset during winter on my part of the tableland between Meadow Mountain and Negro Mountain. It is still above a clear light blue sky left over from daytime. Then a large area just above the horizon is vivid tangerine orange, blended with strawberry pink above. Then it is pretty faded out as night falls at about 7 p.m.

I saw hundreds of similar sunsets from my house over the half-century I lived here (off and on). But no matter where I went, this was always my true home – where I know all the features of the coming and ebbing seasons, its weather patterns, and its sunset and sunrise, very close to my bedtime and rising time.

It imprinted that pattern in the deepest part of my brain in my earliest years. That was the normal pattern for farm dwellers prior to the coming of electricity to rural areas during the New Deal. Without the government investment, we would have had far different lifestyle atmospheres in the 19th century.

Imagine your life without any electronic devices. It is a big stretch to grow up when America is completely electrically connected. Like using old-fashioned wood cookstoves, crank washing machines, and no clothes dryers. Also no central heating systems. Either you had a wood stove or a coal furnace, both of which required lots of physical work to keep them up and running and producing some heat. I doubt I could do it now. Nor could I live without phone service.

Altar flowers at Emmanuel Lutheran Church on Sunday were given by Rita Knox in memory of Carlton P. Knox.

Altar flowers at Zion Lutheran Church in Jennings were given in memory of Dorothy Burow by the Mitchell Fost Family.

A joint Reformation service will be held at Emmanuel this Sunday, Oct. 28, at 11 a.m. Churches in the Accident Parish, the Bittinger Parish, and Shepherd of the Hills Church will all join together for one service. A German-style meal will be served at the Bittinger fire hall following the service. All are invited.

Liaison Named To Canoe World Championships

USA Canoe/Kayak has named Karla Westcott as its liaison to the 2014 ICF Canoe Slalom World Championships that will be held at the Adventure Sports whitewater facility in McHenry.

The volunteer position was created to facilitate communication between USA Canoe/Kayak and the Deep Creek 2014 host organizing committee.

According to a spokesperson, Westcott brings with her strong relationships within the international slalom community. She served as competition manager for the 2012 ICF Junior/Under-23 Slalom World Championships in Wausau, Wis., July 11 to 15 and as section judge for whitewater slalom at the Athens 2004 Olympic Games.

"We are honored to have Karla's experience, network, and passion for the sport working on behalf of USA Canoe/Kayak's interests in the 2014 World Championships in Maryland," said Joe Jacobi, USA Canoe/Kayak CEO. "She is a respected partner in the international community and has already proven to be an invaluable resource to the Deep Creek 2014 Host Organizing Community. We are grateful for Karla's continued service to the sport."

The world's best whitewater paddlers will descend upon Adventure Sports Center International (ASCI) on Deep Creek in McHenry from Sept. 16 to 21, 2014. Deep Creek was selected to host the event by the International Canoe Federation (ICF) on April 15, 2012, over bids by Vienna, Austria, and Krakow, Poland.

For more information, persons may visit www.deepcreek2014.com

"It is an honor to represent USA Canoe/Kayak and be a mentor to the 2014 Worlds," Westcott said. "I look forward to sharing my experience and working with the host organizing committee at ASCI to see yet another successful championship be presented to the world by USA Canoe/Kayak and its partners."

Westcott will represent and communicate the strategic interests of USA Canoe/Kayak at the 2014 Canoe Slalom World Championships, including the successful execution of the event. She will ensure the event's alignment with the longer term goals of USA Canoe/Kayak to serve and support the National Slalom Program, grow the base of the sport, and expand opportunities to partner with the International Canoe Federation.

Westcott will also support USA Canoe/Kayak's interest in the long-term sustainability of the Adventure Sports Center International, host venue of the 2014 World Championships. The event will mark the 25th anniversary of the 1989 World Championships, which were also held in Garrett County. The 1989 World Championships attracted more than 600 competitors representing 26 nations and more than 40,000 spectators.

Westcott will represent USA Canoe/Kayak at other national events that take place at the Adventure Sports Center International prior to the 2014 World Championships, including a test event in May 2013.

Local Head Start Programs Currently Taking Applications

The Garrett County Community Action Committee Head Start Pre-School and the Early Head Start programs currently have openings and are accepting applications for enrollment in the 2012–13 school year. Families with children age 6 weeks through 5 years old in Garrett County are encouraged to apply.

There is also a home visiting program offered for pre-natal mothers and/or infants. Children must be 3 years old to be eligible for Head Start. Parents who have children with disabilities are also encouraged to apply.

As early childhood development and pre-school education programs, both Head Start and Early Head Start offer services that support families and provide a safe learning environment for children. Both provide comprehensive early childhood care and education services to promote and ensure school readiness for all children who are enrolled in the programs by offering a variety of activities for children that promote early learning in the following areas: language and literacy, math, science, social studies, art, and social and personal development.

Head Start and Early Head Start services are provided by highly trained and qualified staff. All centers are accredited and licensed by the Maryland State Department of Education. The Garrett County Community Action Committee Child and Family Development programs encourage participants to have a positive attitude about the value of education among working families and young people with the goal of increasing the number of Garrett County families who are economically self-sufficient.

many unanswered questions."

Some of those questions may be answered when results of a $125,000 study funded by the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation become available. The yearlong project looks at the economic, social, and environmental feasibility of introducing a species that has been absent from the area for more than 200 years.

The Garrett County commissioners and Maryland Farm Bureau have already expressed their opposition to the proposal.

A statewide telephone survey conducted by Responsive Management of Harrisonburg, Va., last year indicated that 75 percent of Marylanders favor the idea. Of the 809 surveyed, 230 were Garrett or Allegany County residents.

Local, International Round-Ball Players To Anchor Lakers' Squad

Local high school products Matt Gibson of Northern High School, and freshmen Kurt Gangler and D.J. Ritchie, both of Southern High, all say they are looking forward to the upcoming season and sharing the court with three international players.

Sophomore Guila Panzo, Ontario, Canada, plus freshmen Shannon McCready, Melbourne, Australia, and YanNick Zanfack, Cameroon, by way of St. Maria Goretti, Hagerstown, are all expected to contribute heavily to the Laker season, according to Laker head coach Dennis Gibson.

Matt Gibson led the NJCAA Division II in three-point shooting effectiveness last season, hitting 57 of 104 (54.8%), and also led the Garrett attack in assists with 5.2 per game and free throw percentage at 78.9%.

Panzo was the team's overall rebounder, grabbing nearly 7 per game.

"I think Guila is going to have a much better season," said Coach Gibson. "He came back stronger and more focused, after learning from last season. Matt should be able to do less, with the guys around him contributing more."

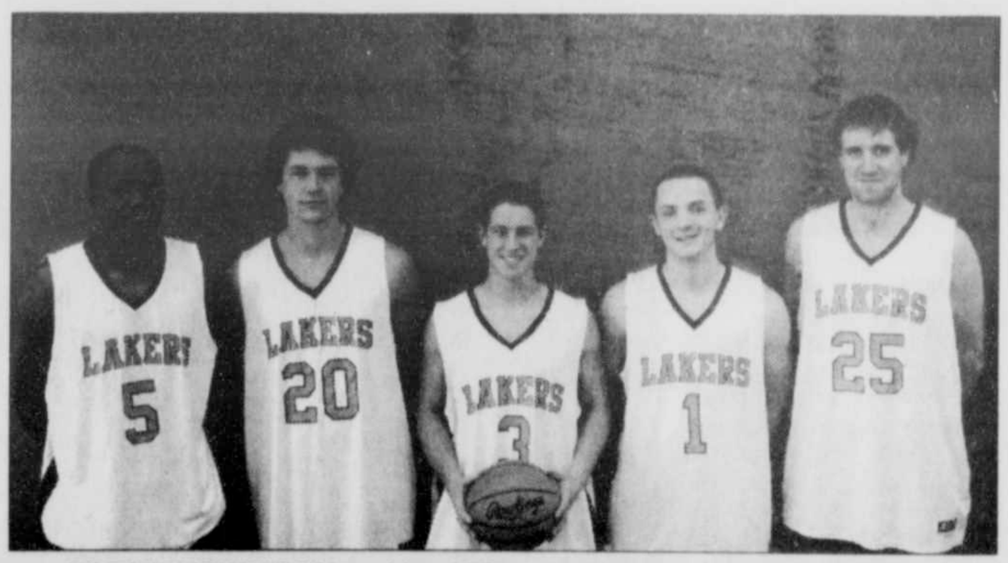
Two of those "guys" will be Southern products – Ritchie, who was the Area Player of the Year, and point guard Gangler.

"These are two tough, team-oriented, well-coached-in-high-school players who have greatly exceeded my expectations so far," said Gibson. "They have the ability and the character to step right in and contribute immediately.

McCready, who is 6-7, is learning the speed and physical play of JUCO hoops, and is a skilled forward whom the Lakers can look to for added production. Zanfack played high school ball at prestigious St. Maria Goretti in Hagerstown, part of the Catholic league, and has played against some of the top players in the country. He was heavily recruited by Division II schools.

"I recruited the first international players to the school and to our team many years ago under the direction and vision of [then GC president] Dr. Steve Herman," Gibson said. "We have been able to continue that vision with the leadership of Dr. MacLennan.

"Who would think that in our county we would be able to combine international players with our local kids in an environment such as the CARC gymnasium?" he continued. " And for me as a coach, for the most part, I do not ever have to worry about these guys going to class and all the things college coaches deal with, because they are high-character young men, and what they bring to our school and athletics is great for our local kids, too."



BOTH INTERNATIONAL and local "flavor" will be evident on the 2012-13 Garrett College men's basketball team, as three players on the roster come from beyond the borders of the United States, while three others are from within the borders of Garrett County. Pictured from left are YanNick Zanfack from the nation of Cameroon, Southern High grads D.J. Ritchie and Kurt Gangler, Northern grad Matt Gibson, and Shannon McCready of Melbourne, Australia. Not present for the photo was Guila Panzo of Ontario, Canada. According to Laker head coach Dennis Gibson, all are expected to "contribute heavily" on the court this season. See story.

Northern Varsity Boys' Soccer Drops Two, To Face Boonsboro In Playoffs

The second-ranked Northern Huskies varsity boys soccer team concluded its regular season with losses to third-ranked Mtn. Ridge, 2-1, on Saturday, and top-ranked Allegany, 4-1, on Monday.

In Saturday's match against the visiting Miners of Mtn. Ridge, the last 45 seconds would decide the outcome of this close contest.

Kevin Gamble put the Miners on the scoreboard with the only goal of the half, assisted by Jacob Kyle.

The Huskies' Jared Fike tied the match with 10:11 left in the second half when he scored Northern's lone goal. Jordan Evans had the assist.

Just when it appeared that the match would go into overtime, Miner Canyon Lohnas took a feed from Nathan Haberlein to set up the game-winner.

Despite outshooting Mountain Ridge 15-10, the Huskies struggled to get anything by Mtn. Ridge keeper Logan Cheshire, who stopped 11 shots. Alex Durst had five saves for the Huskies.

Mtn. Ridge finished the regular season (8-4-2) after a tie against Fort Hill on Tuesday.

The Huskies traveled to Cumberland on Monday to face Allegany, who was looking to remain unbeaten this season. The Campers' Derek Fuller and Johnny Tompkins recorded two goals apiece to maintain the Campers' perfect record.

Fuller struck first as Corey Knipple assisted at the 22:02 mark, giving Allegany a 1-0 lead. The Campers' Tompkins scored unassisted only minutes later to extend the lead to 2-0.

Less than a minute after Allegany's second goal, Northern's Jared Fike, off an assist by Andrew Moser to cut the Campers' lead in half 2-1.

Just minutes into the second half, Fuller scored his second goal, assisted by Dakota Bierman. Tompkins would finish the scoring for Allegany with 19:05 left in the match on an unassisted goal, solidifying the Campers' win.

Allegany's Nate Condor had eight saves on 11 shots. Alex Durst stopped seven shots for Northern. The Campers finished with five corner kicks to the Huskies' two.

Northern finishes the regular season with a (7-3-1) record and will play Boonsboro on Tuesday in the Maryland 1A West Region playoffs.

Boonsboro fell to Clear Spring on Thursday, 2-0.

Tuesday's match will be played at Northern, with the kickoff set for 6 p.m.

The Southern boys' varsity soccer team was no match last night for host Allegany, a team that will take a 13-0-1 record into the 1A West Region playoffs this coming week, as the Rams were shut out 7-0.

The Rams, who fell to 2-8 with the defeat, will play a first-round playoff match this Friday at Smithsburg.

Corey Knipple scored a pair of goals and assisted on a third for the Campers last night, one in each half, while five teammates each contributed one.

Brett Vanderhout put the first goal on the board less than two minutes into the contest, scoring off an assist by Derek Fuller.

Knipple followed with a goal off a feed by Dakota Bierman at the 29:29 mark of the first half, and Austin Campbell's goal, off another feed by Fuller, at the 11:39 mark gave the home team a 3-0 lead at the half.

Brooke Knieriem made it 4-0 with an unassisted goal just 1½ minutes into the second half.

Knipple followed with his second goal of the night, scoring off a third assist by Fuller at the 32:39 mark.

Bierman then made it 6-0 with a goal at the 29:28 mark, coming off a feed by Knipple.

Laura is in the 10th grade at Southern High School and is the daughter of Michael and Shawn Smith, Oakland.

The Garrett County Snowdrifters will host a race on Sunday, Oct. 28, at Harvey's Farm along Sand Flat Road. Admission is $5 per person. More information can be found at www.gcsnowdrifters.org. There will be final races at Chickaree Ridge on Nov. 4 and Laurel Highlands on Nov. 11.

Rams Dominate Mountain Ridge, Record Third Win Of Season, 42-8

Near total domination would aptly describe the performance of the Southern High varsity football team last Friday, as the Rams rolled over visiting Mountain Ridge, 42-8, to record their third win in eight starts this season.

The loss extended the Miners' winless streak to eight games. .

Leading the Ram offense was running back Garrett Campbell, who rushed for 144 yards and a touchdown, while Seth Kisner, who carried the ball only three times, gained 55 yards and scored a pair of touchdowns.

The Rams took the lead for good early in the first quarter when Jeffrey Eddington scored on a 24-yard carry. The pass for the two-point conversion was no good.

Later in the same period, Campbell broke loose and through the Miner defense to record a touchdown on a 26-yard run. Eddington ran successfully for the conversion, putting the Rams up 14-0.

Southern did not let up in the second period as Kisner scored both of his touchdowns, the first on a 30-yard run and the second via a 25-yard carry. Alexander Meyer booted both PATs to give the Rams a commanding 28-0 lead at the half.

The Miners avoided a shutout by scoring early in the third quarter on a 64-yard aerial from Michael Strietbeck to Rashawn Johnson, and Strietbeck also passed to Shawn Sellers on the conversion play to cut the Rams' advantage to 28-8.

The Rams responded with two more of their own touchdowns, both recorded in the third quarter. The first was on a 19-yard carry by Brandon Wotring, and the second was scored by Brian Wildman on a 10-yard run. Meyer booted both conversion points.

Eddington finished with 25 yards an a touchdown on just three carries.

Most of Mountain Ridges' offense was recorded through the air, as Strietbeck completed six of 14 attempts for 120 yards, although he also had one interception, as the ball was picked off by Ram Joby Heckler in Southern's end zone to erase another touchdown opportunity for the Miners.

Johnson was on the receiving end of three completions for a total of 102 yards.

The Rams will not have a game this week, as Carrick, Pa., has dropped its football program. Southern will conclude its regular season the following Friday at home against county rival Northern.

Huskies Fall Flat To Campers, Dominated In 49-0 Shutout

The Allegany Campers were dominating on both sides of the football Friday night versus the visiting Northern Huskies. The Campers rolled to a 49-0 victory at Greenway Avenue Stadium and halted Northern's three-game winning streak.

Christian Thomas paced Allegany on offense with 5 carries for 192 yards and three touchdowns. Carter Imes was 5-8 passing for 92 yards and threw for two touchdowns. The Campers piled 528 yards on offense and had 16 plays of 10 or more yards. Their stingy defense surrendered only 16 yards total.

Allegany started off fast when Jordan Shook intercepted a pass on the second play of the game that would set up the Campers' first of seven touchdowns on the night. Christian Thomas ran in the score from 16 yards out to put the Campers on the board at the 9:21 mark ; the conversion kick failed but gave them the lead 6-0.

Just over two minutes later, the Campers scored again on a 22-yard run by Dylan Shockey with 7:02 left in the first quarter. Madison Wolford ran in the two-point conversion to make it 14-0 Campers.

Thomas scored his second rushing touchdown with 3:41 left in the first quarter on a 58-yard run. The conversion kick failed, but the Campers took a commanding 20-0 lead by the end of the first quarter.

Just seconds into the second quarter Allegany quarterback Carter Imes connected with Hayden Bosley on a 39-yard touchdown pass at the 11:49 mark. The two-point conversion run by Wolford was good, giving the Campers a 28-8 lead.

Only minutes later the Campers again scored on Imes' second touchdown pass of the evening, this one covering 30 yards to Allegany receiver Chris Fram. Fram kicked the extra point giving the Campers a 35-0 lead.

The Campers' Trenton Eirich got into the end zone on a 33-yard scamper with 3:12 left in the half, followed by Fram's successful kick. The Allegany Campers took a 42-0 lead over the Northern Huskies into halftime.

Allegany surrendered just 8 yards total to the Huskies in the first half. The Campers scored on all six of their first half possessions.

The lone score of the second half came midway thru the third quarter at the 7:14 mark when Thomas scored his third rushing touchdown, this one going for 44 yards. The kick by Fram was successful making the score 49-0.

The final frame only saw one possessor as the Campers ran out the clock because of the 35-point mercy rule. Allegany improved its record to 6-2 on the season.

Northern was without its leading rusher Tommy Durst, and struggled finding a spark. The Huskies were held to just two first downs and 16 yards on offense. Jeremy Bender had a 67-yard kickoff return, and Meshach Metz had an interception for the Huskies.

Northern coach Phil Carr didn't feel it would be tough for his players to shake off the Allegany loss.

"We overcame four losses to start the year and won three in a row, and I thought we really improved the last three weeks," he said. "We have to forget this one. We know we played a good team. Our backs are against the wall as far as playoffs go, and we know we've got to win football games."

Falling to 3-5, Northern travels to 0-9 Berkeley Springs on Friday. Northern's playoff hopes are still alive, needing wins in its final two contests versus Berkeley Springs and Southern, along with a loss by Brunswick.

Head coach Angelo Luvara's Berkeley Springs team is led on offense by senior quarterback Mark Cowles (5'10", 150), senior wide-receiver/kick-returner Kaleb Athey (5'6", 135), senior kicker/punter Zach Wise (5'10", 158), and freshman running back Brady Tripatoe (5'10", 163). The defense is paced by junior defensive back/kick returner Preston Hovermale (5'11", 165). Senior linebacker Richard Recio (6', 210), considered to be the team's anchor, was lost to injury in a game against Petersburg.

Friday's kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

Family

- Raised two daughters who both went through Garrett County School Public Schools
- My husband and I are both first-generation college students
- We currently have grandchildren in the school system (A grandson at Northern Middle and 2 granddaughters at Grantsville)

I tell people all the time that Garrett County is a unique place to raise children. Not that we don't have problems like other communities, but I believe our children are still totally safe in our schools. It saddens me that we prepare our children to go out into the world and seek higher education, or look for work, and then they do not come back to our county. We need to work together to create a community where our children can grow, earn a living, and raise their families.

Garrett County Chamber of Commerce Questions Candidates To Assist Voters

To better acquaint voters with candidates in the November 6 general election, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, in partnership with The Republican newspaper, is providing the following information. The chamber's legislative committee surveyed candidates for Maryland's U.S. Senator, the 6th Congressional district representative, and the Garrett County Board of Education. Questions were developed for each race and provided to all of the candidates. The questions, along with the candidate's responses, follow. It was necessary to cut off some of the responses if the specified word limit was exceeded.

GARRETT COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION AT-LARGE CANDIDATES

Gary Barlow, Grantsville
Cindy Downton, Grantsville
Darlena Grady, Oakland
Charlotte Sebold, McHenry
Candidate Bios

Gary Barlow – I grew up in a small town in Pennsylvania and after high school chose to go to Ohio Diesel Tech, a 2-year trade school in Cleveland. I have lived and worked in Harrisburg, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, and Columbus, Ohio. I was in management for Con-way Transportation, supervising vehicle maintenance and repair, and I feel my analytical skills will help control cost and solve problems as they did at Con-way. Currently I am working part-time, which I feel will allow me to focus more time and energy on the Garrett County School Board if elected. I am married and…

Cindy Downton – I currently work as a pupil personnel worker for the Allegany County School System. Seven years ago I went there from Garrett County, where I had worked for 26 years in various jobs in the school system, ranging from Special Ed teacher at Southern Middle and Southern High, teacher at Northern High and Northern Middle, guidance counselor at Southern High, and PPW for the northern end of the county. I am originally from Bucks County, Pa., and have lived here for 32 years. My husband Mike works for Social Services and I have two daughters, Amanda and Emily. I now…

Darlena Grady – It is with great interest that I am running for a position on the Garrett County Board of Education. I received my doctorate of jurisprudence from WVU College of Law and have worked as the attorney for students at WVU. Currently, I am an owner of Grand Central Home Furnishings and work as a substitute teacher for the Garrett County school system. I am committed to the continued improvement of our school system and prepared to contribute my knowledge to the public school program and curriculum of Garrett County.

Charlotte Sebold – My involvement in the Garrett County School System began when my son started kindergarten in 1983. After years of attending Board of Education meetings as a PTA representative, I ran for the board and was elected in 1992. During the past 20 years, I have served as the board president and vice president four times and served on numerous advisory committees for education-related issues. It has been a privilege to be an elected member of this board, and my past experience has provided me with a wealth of information to help move this system forward in the future.

Question 1 – Why did you decide to run for a seat of the Garrett County Board of Education?

Gary Barlow – I would like to be a voice for working parents, children and taxpayers. I plan to vigorously debate with legislators the plan to shift pension costs onto the county. The people of Garrett County cannot afford property tax increases to pay for this problem. The governor, a Democrat, swears to have the backs of these three groups: educators, children, the working middle class. His plan will hurt one, if not all, of these groups either through property tax increases, cuts the school board will have to implement, pension beneficiaries through increased contributions. It is well known that many of…

Cindy Downton – For years I have thought that I would run for a seat on the Garrett County School Board when I retired from education. I am a strong believer in "life-long" learning and consider retirement that phase where I will have the time to try new things. I feel that I have a good understanding of educational policy and procedures. I have worked closely with parents and understand the need to enlist their support if we want their children to be successful in school. I was secretary of the GCTA in the past, as well as part of the A&S…

Darlena Grady – I am running for the board because I believe in our public education system. We have a great school system in Garrett County, but I think it could be better. As a parent of two children in Garrett County schools, I know what parents expect from their children's education system. And I want to help ensure that our board's primary focus is student achievement and learning. I believe all students can learn, given a positive learning atmosphere, and am committed to improving the achievement of every student – both high achievers and those who struggle to achieve grade-level success.

Charlotte Sebold – I am running for the Board of Education because I believe that a quality education is one of the most fundamental opportunities we can provide children. The economic times are going to require prioritizing the needs of the students and then efficiently using the funds available to implement programs that meet those needs. I understand the budgeting process and feel that my past experience will be an asset in this process.

Question 2 – What do you hope to accomplish as a member of the Garrett County Board of Education?

Gary Barlow – To promote a better vocational instruction. If high school graduates are not going to college, and we know this is not a path suitable to everyone, then they need to have a skill when they graduate that will help them earn a living wage. In addition, the graduates that choose college need to be challenged and prepared for that next step as well. The current board seems to be doing a fine job with preparing kids for that endeavor already. However, we cannot be lax about our education, as the level of competition is great in post-graduate education as…

Cindy Downton – I would like to get back to a time where school employees can remember why they went into education. The past year and a half has been a turbulent time of strained budgets, layoffs, a superintendent search, and numerous other issues that have taken the time of the Board of Education; time away from supporting teachers and schools in the job of educating children. I would like to go back to the time when we could purchase new textbooks, upgrade our technology, pay our employees, and take pride in the knowledge and success we have brought to our kids.

Darlena Grady – As a board member I hope to maintain and improve the overall quality of Garrett County schools. I want to develop a strong and trusting relationship with elected officials, teachers, parents, and other community members so we can make strategic decisions that are in line with the interest of the entire school community.

Charlotte Sebold – There are changes coming such as the Common Core State Standards and the Assessments of Readiness for College and Careers (PARCC), and we must be sure that every student is receiving the information they need to be successful on these assessments so they can become productive citizens. I look forward to working with our new superintendent to make sure that the superior level of education we now have in our system continues and grows.

Question 3 – Do you support adjusting the calendar so that Maryland schools do not start until after Labor Day?

Gary Barlow – I am undecided on this issue. The problem is Garrett County weather. Our schools have a large number of snow delays and cancellations that affect our education. That said, it makes it hard to thoroughly get through materials before state testing in the spring. They won't change testing dates just for Garrett County. The focus should be on the children's education, so they will have the knowledge & skills needed to own an ice cream stand, not just to work at one. If someone could get the state to change test dates, I probably would be more open to the...

Cindy Downton – I was appointed to the calendar committee last year as a non-voting member from the board. I believe that any BOE member will be a non-voting member to the committee. With that said, I feel I would have to support the recommendation of this committee. I don't understand how we could ask members from so many disciplines (e.g., business, parents, associations, administrators, central office) to make a recommendation and then disregard the preferred calendar of that committee. We had an extraordinarily mild winter last year. I am interested to see if that trend continues.

Darlena Grady – I know how important tourism is to our local and state economies and recognize the positive impact a post Labor Day start could have on our county. Therefore, I would be willing to support a post-Labor Day start provided it does not negatively impact our students' academic performance.

Charlotte Sebold – I could support adjusting the calendar so that Maryland schools do not start until after Labor Day if the law that adjusts the school calendar also changes the date for state testing from March to May to ensure as much time as possible for teaching before students are required to be accountable for what they have learned.

SIXTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT CANDIDATES

Roscoe Bartlett, Republican
John Delaney, Democrat
Nickolaus Mueller, Libertarian
Candidate Bios

Roscoe Bartlett – Raised in an extremely poor family, Roscoe Bartlett credits his parents' work ethic and dedication to education for motivating him to pursue his diverse and successful careers as a professor, research scientist and inventor, small business owner, and farmer prior to his election in 1992 to represent the Sixth District of Maryland in the Congress. For 20 consecutive years, he has been a leader and received awards for fighting to reducing federal government spending, deficits and debt, eliminating counterproductive regulations, lowering tax burdens, and supporting the ability of small businesses to create jobs and promote economic development.

John Delaney – I am an entrepreneur with real world experience creating jobs. My father worked as an electrician and I was the first in my family to attend college. I started two New York Stock Exchange listed companies by the age of 40 and have created thousands of jobs in Maryland. My company, CapitalSource, provided capital to thousands of small and medium-sized businesses. I serve on the board of Georgetown University and have been deeply involved in numerous non-profits. I'm running for Congress because we need a new commitment to economic growth and public service in Washington.

Nickolaus Mueller – I am Nickolaus Mueller, the Libertarian candidate for U.S. Congress in Maryland District 6, and I do not know what is best for anyone except for myself. That is why I will always vote on the side of liberty and personal choice. Everything the government does it can do only because it has a monopoly on the use of force. I do not believe that the ends justify the means, and consequently, I believe that it is immoral to point a gun at people's heads in order to achieve something, no matter how good the intentions.

Question 1 – Rural communities such as Western Maryland are at a greater disadvantage by rising fuel and energy costs. How can the U.S. become more energy self-sufficient and what legislation could help support the development of our natural energy resource rich region?

Roscoe Bartlett – As co-chairman of the 139-member House Renewable Energy and Energy Efficiency Caucus, I work with colleagues to advance bipartisan policies to lower all Americans' energy bills and to use our energy resources sustainably. Garrett County is Maryland's richest, most diverse source of coal, natural gas, biomass, and wind energy. Fossil fuels are finite, but government policies that make America's coal, natural gas, and oil more expensive only leaves Americans poorer with less money to develop or buy renewable resources. Coal generates more than half of Marylanders' electricity. Coal mining directly employs more than 1,000 people and supports more than 6,500 additional jobs. That's why I voted against President Obama's cap and trade bill and his regulatory war on coal. A pipeline will be built to meet world demand for Canada's oil. That's why I have voted to build the Keystone pipeline in America. I want Americans building the pipeline and transporting that Canadian oil and refining it in America. That's why I support responsible and safe hydrofracking of Marcellus natural gas in Garrett and Allegany counties. Maryland does not need regulation by the federal Environment Protection Agency (EPA) to learn from mistakes in Pennsylvania and West Virginia and adapt best practices to produce natural gas safely while protecting our environment. I authored the House bill and worked with its Democratic Senate sponsor and the president on the law that extends tax credits for energy efficiency and renewable energy.

John Delaney – I understand that western Maryland has different energy needs than other parts of the state. This is why I support a portfolio approach to energy based around a national energy policy with two goals: 1) greater energy independence, and 2) making the U.S. a global leader in alternative energy. What is needed in Ohio might not be what works best in California. I support greater use of natural gas and safe, regulated hydrofracking. Let's make sure the process is safe, make sure that it works for western Maryland, and then let the market dictate. More broadly, energy policy is another example of how Washington is broken. Energy costs directly impact the lives of every American, yet we don't have a coherent energy policy with any defined goals. There is no doubt that in the coming decades alternative energy will be the next great economic driver, the only question is if those jobs are here, or if they end up elsewhere.

Nickolaus Mueller – The federal government should play no role in the development, production, or trade of energy. Individual entrepreneurs and consumers are best suited for determining which energy sources offer the best cost/benefit ratio. Subsidies for various types of energy only distort the market and dis-incentivize the development of sources of energy that may otherwise be easier to produce, cheaper and cleaner.

Question 2 – Businesses are still concerned by the potential impending costs and impacts of the Affordable Patient Care Act. How can you ensure that the costs for health insurance will neither skyrocket nor become the burden of businesses across the country?

Roscoe Bartlett – Average cost of insurance policies went up $2,500, the opposite of what was promised under the Affordable Care Act, also known as Obamacare. That is one reason that I support its repeal. Obamacare's many one-size fits all mandates; its cuts in reimbursement to health care providers regardless of quality, and 12 separate tax increases on middle income Americans, among other changes, will worsen health care in America by increasing its costs and reducing Americans' ability to make decisions about their own health care. Instead, I support reforms that provide incentives to save patients money, reward healthy lifestyle habits, increase the quality of health care, and reduce health care costs without reducing access or rationing care. I support expanding the option of Health Care Savings (HSAs) accounts and making them more flexible for Americans. I would allocate the same funding level for subsidies to individuals under Obamacare. If you chose an HSA, you would spend a small fraction of that amount to purchase a policy to cover catastrophic medical expenses with no lifetime cap. The majority of the federal subsidy would be deposited in an interest-bearing account you could use to pay cash for health care expenses over the course of the year. If the cash account was used up before the end of the year, the insurance policy would kick in to cover your medical expenses. Any leftover funds would grow tax-free if you used it for other health-related expenses, such as co-pays, long-term health insurance or Medicare premiums.

John Delaney – I've spent a career building businesses here in Maryland. I know what it's like to make payroll, to work with a balance sheet, and to manage costs. While I understand the concern, the fact is that the alternative – doing nothing – would have been worse in the long-term, worse for business and worse for workers. We are on the road to greater cost certainty and ultimately that is the number one concern of business owners. We still have a lot to do to reduce health care costs, not just to help businesses, but to help the American people have access to quality and affordable health care. Utilizing technology and making health care delivery systems more efficient will help a great deal.

Nickolaus Mueller – No one person, nor any board of persons, is capable of determining what the appropriate prices for various goods and services should be. The healthcare market has seen rising costs along with growing government interference and distortions in the market. This is not a coincidence. Simply naming a bill the "Affordable Patient Care Act" will not produce affordable care. Rather, increasing government involvement will result in rising costs or a decrease in the quality of care or both. The free market, on the other hand, is responsible for lowering costs and improving quality when it is allowed to function. Only a return to market-based healthcare could ensure for businesses and consumers that costs will not skyrocket.

U.S. SENATE CANDIDATES

Brandy Baker, Unaffiliated
Daniel Bongino, Republican
Ben Cardin, Democrat
Mary Podlesak, Republican
S. Rob Sobhani, Unaffiliated
Ed Tinus, Unaffiliated
Lih Young, Democrat
Candidate Bios:

Brandy Baker – No response.

Daniel Bongino – Dan earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in psychology from City University of New York; master's in business administration at Penn State University. Dan joined the NYPD in 1995 and served for four years. Dan joined the U.S. Secret Service in 1999 as a Special Agent. In 2006, Daniel entered the elite Presidential Protective Division. Dan lives in Severna Park with his wife Paula and their two daughters.

Ben Cardin – I grew up in Maryland and raised my family here. It has been my honor to represent our state in the U.S. Senate for the last six years. During this time, I have established a strong record of accomplishment and successful track record of working across party lines to get things done for Marylanders. I've been recognized as a national leader on health care, retirement security, and the environment. I have fought for policies/initiatives that help our economy and create job opportunities by supporting small businesses, investing in transportation and water infrastructure, protecting our middle class, and striving for energy independence.

Mary Podlesak – I have been a legal resident of Maryland since January 2010. My paternal great-grandfather Jakob Wessel landed at the port of Baltimore, when he left Danzig in 1891. He settled in Buffalo, New York, where two generations later, I was born at Millard Fillmore Hospital in 1953. My degrees, BS in economics and statistics and an MS in industrial engineering with a concentration in operations research (thesis: A Simulation of Ambulatory Care) were earned at SUNY at Buffalo. I worked briefly at the hospital I was born in, married Thomas in 1989, moved to New Jersey, and had four children.

S. Rob Sobhani – I was born in Kansas, but Maryland has been my home for the last 33 years. I earned a bachelor's and master's in finance and a PhD in political economy from Georgetown University. I live with my wife and two children in Montgomery County. I have authored three books, including one on immigration reform. I am the founder and president of Caspian Group Holdings. As a businessman, I am more focused on solutions than worrying about who gets credit. America is the greatest country on Earth, and from my perspective, public service is a good way to give back.

Ed Tinus – Maryland; just saying her name brings a tear to my eyes. I have ventured and enjoyed this state all my life. Born and raised here, the land of pleasant living, God's blessed Maryland. From the gold and copper in our Piedmont hills, to the Chesapeake bay, the sandy beach of Ocean city, and Garrett County's natural gas reserves. We need to utilize our resources for our prosperity and not cap them off. I will represent and serve her citizens, giving the power of the U.S. Senate back to We the People to govern.

Lih Young – No response.

Question 1 – Rural communities such as Western Maryland are at a greater disadvantage by rising fuel and energy costs. How can the U.S. become more energy self-sufficient and what legislation could help support the development of our natural energy resource rich region?

Brandy Baker – No response.

Daniel Bongino – Renewed domestic production is not simply a matter of oil prices, but a matter of domestic job production. Increased exploration, discovery, and production of our own domestic natural resources is a proven job creator. Locally, western Maryland has proven natural gas reserves and the development of these resources would create well-paying jobs and needed income for the citizens of Maryland. We must prioritize domestic production of our own natural resources by expanding permitting while maintaining sound and reasonable environmental standards. Renewable energy sources such as wind, solar, biomass, and geothermal have shown promise, but they need to compete in a competitive market, free from government subsidies. I believe that these sources of energy have a future in our energy portfolio, but they must compete on a level playing field. When we insist on forcing consumers to choose amongst non-competitive options, we simply shift higher costs onto them and further strain their household budgets.

Ben Cardin – Reviving our economy is linked to rethinking how we solve our energy challenges. Investing in new technologies for oil and natural gas drilling, as well as alternative energy sources, creates new jobs while protecting public health, safety, and preserving our environment. Diversifying our energy sources creates competition – stabilizing and lowering energy prices. And thinking beyond fossil fuels buried in unstable or unreliable foreign countries strengthens our national security.

Mary Podlesak – As CEO of Podlesak Energy Laboratories (a work in progress), I can assure you I favor development of all energy resources, both conventional as well as green alternatives. As I write this, my son is studying to become a geologist specializing in drilling for gas – fracking. Both mining and fracking will be important economic engines of the western region of Maryland and indeed of the entire Appalachian region – but it must be done with due consideration for the health and well-being of the land, water resources, people and air. Valid objective studies by independent researchers must ascertain the economic and environmental criteria and consequences of these enterprises.

S. Rob Sobhani – Neither party has offered a realistic national energy strategy that takes our current and long-term needs into account. While we have the ability to safely expand our fossil fuel production in the United States, there is more we can also do to develop alternative, clean energy sources too. My plan for Maryland involves connecting the state to the global economy, and benefiting from private investment in a variety of fields. Like much of our state, western Maryland has not gotten the right kind of attention from elected officials. Our western counties have natural energy resources, which if properly utilized could create much needed jobs for the region. In the Senate, I will be an active advocate for growing the economy here, while preserving the environment. We need to do more to maximize the strategic benefit of this area's location in terms of economic development. We can strengthen our infrastructure, create jobs, and free ourselves of dependence on foreign energy sources. America can be energy independent. That means being less dependent on countries that don't like us very much, so it's not only an economic imperative, but a national security priority also. But all this begins by being more active and creative, which is precisely what I aim to do.

Ed Tinus – Putting us back into the U.S.! 60% of Maryland voters don't vote? "My vote does not affect anything," 20% of the Democrats seek liberal justice, and 20% of the Republicans seek conservative change. We have a system of government that technologically has not changed since the invention of television. Voting someone in office whose opinion has the potential to dramatically change your life is what we do. How can you justify doing the same thing for the past decades and expect different results. We should look to our most deeply held convictions when we address matters that affect our nation's activities at home and abroad. How can we continually be involved with the U.S. Senate to create effective change in our generation? Vote wisely. Vote for yourself. Vote Ed Tinus write-in candidate for U.S. Senate.

Lih Young – No response.

Question 2 – Businesses are still concerned by the potential impending costs and impacts of the Affordable Patient Care Act. How can you ensure that the costs for health insurance will neither skyrocket nor become the burden of businesses across the country?

Brandy Baker – No response.

Daniel Bongino – First, we need to repeal the Affordable Patient Care Act. I believe that competition improves efficiency and effectiveness of healthcare. It offers consumers and businesses higher quality goods and services at lower cost, which will also work with healthcare. We must allow individuals and small businesses to form purchasing pools. We must block grant Medicaid and other payments to states. We need to limit federal standards and requirements on both private insurance and Medicaid coverage; this will help the cost of insurance go down for businesses. We should promote flexibility to help the uninsured, including exchanges, and subsidies.

Ben Cardin – The Affordable Care Act helps Marylanders by allowing children to remain on their parents' policies until age 26, stops insurance companies from denying full coverage due to pre-existing conditions, and eliminates lifetime caps on policy limits. Small businesses make up 74.2 percent of all Maryland businesses, but only 44 percent offer health insurance to employees. Since 2010, more than 55,000 Maryland small businesses have been eligible for tax credits for a percentage of their contribution to their employees' health insurance. From 2010-13, eligible companies will receive tax credits of up to 35 percent of their contribution toward the employee premiums; and,a sliding-scale tax credit to small employers with fewer than 25 employees and average annual wages of less than $50,000; a full credit for employers with 10 employees or less and with average annual wages of less than $25,000. In 2014 and later, eligible companies who purchase health insurance coverage through the exchange can receive a tax credit for two years of up to 50 percent of their contribution. Insurance exchanges also will drive down rates by leveraging the collective buying power of small businesses in exchanges or group pools rather than forcing them to continue paying as much as 35 percent higher premium costs than comparable large businesses.

Mary Podlesak – As a business owner, I will have an intrinsic interest in holding down costs. The Affordable Patient Care Act has laudable features, including the coverage of the uninsured and those with medical conditions considered uninsurable. With those points being granted, I believe the legislation itself is an albatross, which I would vote to rescind, one that could have accomplished its goals without adding billions to our deficit, deforming the constitution, medicine, and the first amendment. As important as the distribution of health care is to our citizens, its substance is of greater importance. Having been trained in economics, statistics, and industrial engineering in health care and as a breast cancer patient, I have a horse in this race. Unfortunately, I feel medicine has been crippled by poor, inadequate, and misdirected training, research, regulation, and data gathering. In essence, the NIH, FDA, CDC, and HHS need to be reformed, along with medical education and most especially medical research. This will achieve true medical progress and cost savings for the electorate and the citizens of Maryland. One final point: This conviction regarding medicine is born from personal experience as well as from my education. One only needs to look at the ongoing autism epidemic which is devastating our young people with its physical, social, and academic effects to see the need for true medical reform.

S. Rob Sobhani – There are positive and negative aspects to the Affordable Care Act. While the act addressed some important problems in our nation's healthcare system, I worry that the way it is written now will not adequately balance cost and quality of care for the consumer. However, I agree with the provisions on limiting pre-existing conditions and extending parental coverage for young adults graduating college. I am also concerned that the mandate will effectually raise prices of healthcare by eliminating

Southern Girls Peak At Playoff Time By Recording Three Wins

Seemingly surging at the right time in their season are the members of the Southern High girls' varsity soccer team, who upped their record to 9-5 this past week by recording wins over host Mountain Ridge last Thursday, 1-0, at home against Fort Hill on Tuesday, 4-0, and last night at the Cove against Northern, 4-2.

The Rams will go into the Class 1A West Region playoffs as the #2 seed, and will host the winner of the Brunswick/Hancock match next Tuesday.

The 1-0 win over Mountain Ridge was huge for the Ram program, as the Miners came into the match with an undefeated mark of 12-0-1.

The match was won about 13 minutes into the first half when Southern's Lexi Metz scored off an assist by Anna Broadwater.

It would be the only goal of the match, which was shortened by inclement weather.

Southern keeper Annie Martin had six saves for the Rams, while Chelsea Muir stopped four shots for the Miners.

The Southern jayvee team was shut out in the first match, 5-0, as the Miner junior varsity finished its season with a 9-2 record.

Leading the Rams to their shutout of Fort Hill on Tuesday were Tess Watson and Alli Shaffer, who each scored a pair of goals.

Watson struck first, putting the ball into the back of the net unassisted at the 34:08 mark of the first half, and Shaffer doubled the Rams' lead less than five minutes later with an unassisted goal.

Watson made it 3-0 at the 30:02 mark of the second half when she scored off a feed by Alicia Harpole.

Shaffer recorded her second goal of the evening, again unassisted, with 23:17 left in the match.

In earning her fourth shutout of the season, Ram keeper Martin turned away five of the Sentinels' shots, while Fort Hill keeper Heather Frank was credited with six saves. The Rams finished with a 10-5 lead in shots and a 2-0 edge in corner kicks.

The Southern junior varsity also recorded a shutout in the first match, 2-0, with goals scored by Sierra Legeer and Mikhaila Missimer. Ayren Campbell and Kelsey Eichorn combined for three saves for the Rams.

In last night's contest at Northern, the Rams gave up a goal at the 24:48 mark of the first half when Emily Fratz scored unassisted for the Huskies.

Alicia Roth would tie the score about seven minutes later when she scored off an assist by Marley Merrick.

An unassisted goal by Alli Shaffer at the 11:07 mark of the first half would give the Rams the lead for good.

Making the score 3-1 at the 37:24 mark of the second half was Tess Watson with an unassisted goal.

Jess Cooper followed with a goal off a feed by Alicia Harpole less than five minutes later to give the Rams a 4-1 advantage.

The Huskies cut the lead to 4-2 when Callie Vernon scored off a corner kick by Madi Gallagher with 14:38 to play, but that would be the final goal of the night.

The Rams finished with an 8-6 edge in shots on goal and had a 6-3 advantage in corner kicks. Martin had two saves for Southern, and Kloey Werner recorded four for the Huskies.

The Huskies (7-6-1) will host Allegany this evening in a first-round 1A West Region playoff match.

Last night's junior varsity match between the Huskies and the Rams ended in a 2-2 tie.

market forces. A government mandate won't be enough to lower costs for the average American, and may only serve to worsen the healthcare crisis. Opening the healthcare industry to more competition will bring costs down without jeopardizing quality. The most promising solutions to reform the medical industry require more flexibility in how employers choose to cover their employees. The insurance market mechanism in the bill can be improved to make it less dependent on the government and better suited to free market forces. There is still much work to be done in the field of healthcare. We should never forget that the focus needs to be on the quality of care for the patient, not the needs of the insurer. As senator, my goal is to build on what has been achieved by both parties, without getting distracted by the politics, so Americans receive the best possible care at the lowest cost.

Ed Tinus – Our representatives decide what is best for you and the United States. Lobby groups and corporations are able to directly influence their votes, with little or no regard to the will of the majority. Preventing the checks/balances of the public vote from regulating government activities. Compassion for the concerns of my Maryland neighbors combined with my love for this great country has inspired me to take action. I want to re-simplify our political process: One subject for each bill. With bills that are written clearly and concisely for all to understand. I want to use the technology that already exists to return to the meeting house process, or Direct Democracy. I intend to re-establish a public vote on every issue, giving every registered Maryland voter the opportunity to vote on each bill, allowing citizens and government to again work together. "Putting us back into the U.S." In my term, with true transparency keep you informed, collect your educated votes, and carry them to Washington as your representative. Thereby returning the power of the senate to the citizens of Maryland. Do not vote for a politician and their financial supporters and lobbyist for the next six years. Vote Ed Tinus and create effective change, regulate government activities, eliminate corporate control, and force lobby groups to change their policies. Your vote will reestablish the checks/balances of our Founding Fathers intentions, return our government to the will of the majority, focus on what is best for our nation.

Rural Voters Competing For Attention In Diverse 6th Dist.

by Carl Straumsheim
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – The congressional race in Maryland's 6th District has this year become the most closely watched in the state, but some rural voters still worry they could become irrelevant as candidates vie for support in Montgomery County.

"Unfortunately, the new district lines divide communities all across the state, and the effect that it has is that rural Maryland is completely losing its voice," said Delegate Neil Parrott, a Washington County Republican.

Incumbent Rep. Roscoe Bartlett has kept the 6th District in the Republican column since he first won the seat in 1992, but after last year's redistricting process, half of its population now lives in suburban Montgomery County. Registered Democrats outnumber Republicans almost by a 3-1 margin there, which means the new district narrowly favors Democrat John Delaney.

While this year's race has demolished fundraising records for both candidates, some western Maryland Republicans appear to have resigned themselves to the fact that voters in Montgomery County will flip the district from red to blue – and that Delaney can win by focusing his efforts there.

"I don't think [Delaney]'s taking it for granted, but it's obvious with the redistricting that the race is probably going to be decided in Montgomery County. I can't blame them," said Delegate Wendell Beitzel, a Republican who represents Garrett and parts of Allegany counties. "The way I see it, the district was changed for one purpose: to kick out Roscoe Bartlett."

Maryland voters will have the final say on the redistricting plan, which appears as Question 5 on the November ballot.

"If the map had stayed the way it was, we'd be seeing a lot more of the candidates running for the 6th District seat now," said Parrott, who led the signature drive.

Bartlett, a Buckeystown resident, has drawn on support from rural communities to win 10 terms in the U.S. House of Representatives. His campaign declined to comment for this article.

Based on activity on the congressman's Facebook and Twitter profiles, Bartlett has campaigned less than Delaney, a wealthy businessman whose Potomac home falls about 350 yards outside the district's limits.

Should Delaney win on Nov. 6, Maryland law would not require him to move. Still, the Delaney campaign never worried its candidate would be branded as a carpetbagger, said Will McDonald, a spokesman for the Democrat.

Delaney escaped a brutal primary election after Democrats clashed for the opportunity to face Bartlett in the redrawn district. Most of Maryland's Democratic establishment, including Gov. Martin O'Malley, backed state Sen. Robert Garagiola, D-Montgomery, while Delaney landed the endorsement of former President Bill Clinton. Delaney also lent more than $1.5 million to his own campaign, and ended up winning an outright majority on April 3, taking 54 percent of the vote to Garagiola's 29 percent.

The combination of a well-funded opponent and a competitive district may have disheartened Republicans, but it has energized rural Democrats. To build support across the district, the Delaney campaign has tapped into a dormant volunteer base that hasn't seen its candidate win since 1990, when Beverly Byron won a seventh term in the House.

"Nobody paid attention to us before because we didn't have a candidate worth campaigning for," said Stephan Moyland, president of the Garrett County Democratic Club. "The quality of the campaign is different with Mr. Delaney.... The organization seems to be stronger."

Between the end of the primary and Oct. 16, the Delaney campaign recruited 1,754 volunteers who have knocked on doors and called supporters 371,189 times. About two-thirds of that grassroots operation has taken place in Montgomery County.

For campaign stops, however, the numbers are reversed. Of Delaney's roughly 150 campaign events, more than 100 of them have taken place across northern and western Maryland. And of the seven debates Bartlett and Delaney have agreed to attend, six will take place outside Montgomery County.

Before its lines were shuffled, the 6th District followed Maryland's border with Pennsylvania into Baltimore County. O'Malley, along with Democrats in Annapolis, carved out the city of Frederick, but divided Republicans in northern Maryland between Reps. Andy Harris, John Sarbanes, and Chris Van Hollen.

The Delaney campaign has sought to avoid the redistricting conflict by saying the responsibility lies with the Maryland legislature.

"John did not draw the lines," McDonald said.

Another factor helping Democrats is Montgomery County's diversity. The district's racial makeup has shifted from 90 percent white in 2010 to about two-thirds today, as it includes more than 100,000 minority residents. The 6th District now has the most Asian-Americans in the state, with about one in 10 residents identifying as such.

One of the arguments against the new district is that it has become too diverse, and that candidates have to represent the positions of both rural Marylanders and suburbanites – two groups of voters Parrott said share few beliefs.

"We both breathe," but other than that, Parrott said, "we don't have much in common with them at all."

The 6th District was recently rated the ninth-least-compact in the country by Philadelphia-based mapping company Azavea, but Democrats said it has always consisted of a diverse group of voters.

"What did [rural voters] have in common with suburban voters in Harford County?" Moylan said. "Northern Harford County is a long way from Oakland, Maryland. Certainly Montgomery County is much closer."

Even if voters reject the new districts, Democrats in Annapolis could find other ways to balance the population math without stripping the 6th District of most of its territory in Montgomery County. And the changes – if any – wouldn't go into effect until the 2014 elections.

"The thing is, it doesn't matter how the ballot issue comes out," Beitzel said. "If the voters decide to overturn the law that created the districts, whoever gets elected is still going to represent us for the next two years."

DNR Offers Safe Debris-Burning Tips

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Forest Service, in cooperation with the Garrett County Health Department and the Garrett County Emergency Management Office, reminds people to be careful with fire this fall. Fall is traditionally a time of moderate forest fire danger in Maryland. In 2011 there were 125 wildfires in the state that burned 8,310 acres.

Fall is the time of the year when many property owners are burning leaves and other debris; however, many people do not burn safely, resulting in wildfires.

In order to prevent wildfires from occurring and causing destruction to private homes and woodlands, the state of Maryland has established open-air burning regulations. These regulations apply to activities in woodlands and within 200 feet of woodlands, or activities adjacent to or within an area where flammable materials could ignite and carry fire to woodlands.

These regulations are:

1) A natural or constructed fire break at least 10 feet wide must completely surround the material to be burned.

2) Adequate personnel and equipment must be present to prevent the fire from escaping.

3) At least one responsible person must remain at the burning location until the last spark is out.

4) Permissible burning hours are between 5 p.m. and 1 a.m. Daylight Saving Time (DST). This will change on November 4 to 4 p.m. to midnight Eastern Standard Time (EST).

5) All open-air burning requires a permit from the county health department. Open-air burning prior to 5 p.m. DST also requires a burning permit from the DNR.

Open-air burning of any type not in accordance with these regulations is subject to citations and fines ranging from $70 to $260.

Landowners interested in conducting open-air burning are encouraged to burn after 5 p.m. when a burning permit from the DNR Forest Service is not required, and the air is generally more moist and calm, reducing the chances of the fire escaping.

Prior to doing any open air burning, the landowner should contact Garrett County Emergency Management at 301-334-1929, to let that agency know about the controlled burning. This reduces the chances of the local volunteer fire departments being dispatched on false alarms.

When conducting open-air burning, it is the landowner's responsibility to make sure the fire doesn't escape, and to make sure the fire is out cold before leaving it.

Center Provides Advice, Support To GC Students

The new Garrett College Advising and Academic Success Center (AASC) hosted an open house last week to familiarize students with the services available to them. These include academic, personal, career, and transfer advising, plus academic support in math, writing, testing, and individual tutoring.

A professional staff has been assembled to support students in achieving their education goals while at Garrett and through the transfer process for those moving on to a four-year college or university, according to Judy Carbone, director of advising, career, and transfer services.

"Brad Bennett and Ashley Ruby, who are both adjunct faculty members and new student advisors, have been hired as academic success advisors," said Carbone. "They will both be assigned a group of new students to work with throughout the semester, monitoring their academic success, intervening as necessary, and guiding them through their educational, career, and transfer planning. Madonna Pool, GC counselor, has also come on board as an academic success advisor. She will also have a designated group of advisees."

A new coordinator of academic support has also been hired. She is Rhonda Schwinabart, who previously was the director of the TRIO Program at Allegany College of Maryland. She will be responsible for coordinating the math and writing centers, testing, and tutoring.

"We are thrilled that she is with us and will be using her expertise and skills to help us coordinate our tutoring, testing, math, and writing centers, as well as other academic support services for students," Carbone added.

For information on services available in the Advising and Academic Success Center, students are encouraged to visit the main office in Room 519 or to call Christine Upole, office associate, at 301-387-3715.

Garrett College To Host National Roll Call November 12

For a second year, Garrett College will join the National Roll Call project to honor American service men and women by hosting simultaneous ceremonies across the nation.

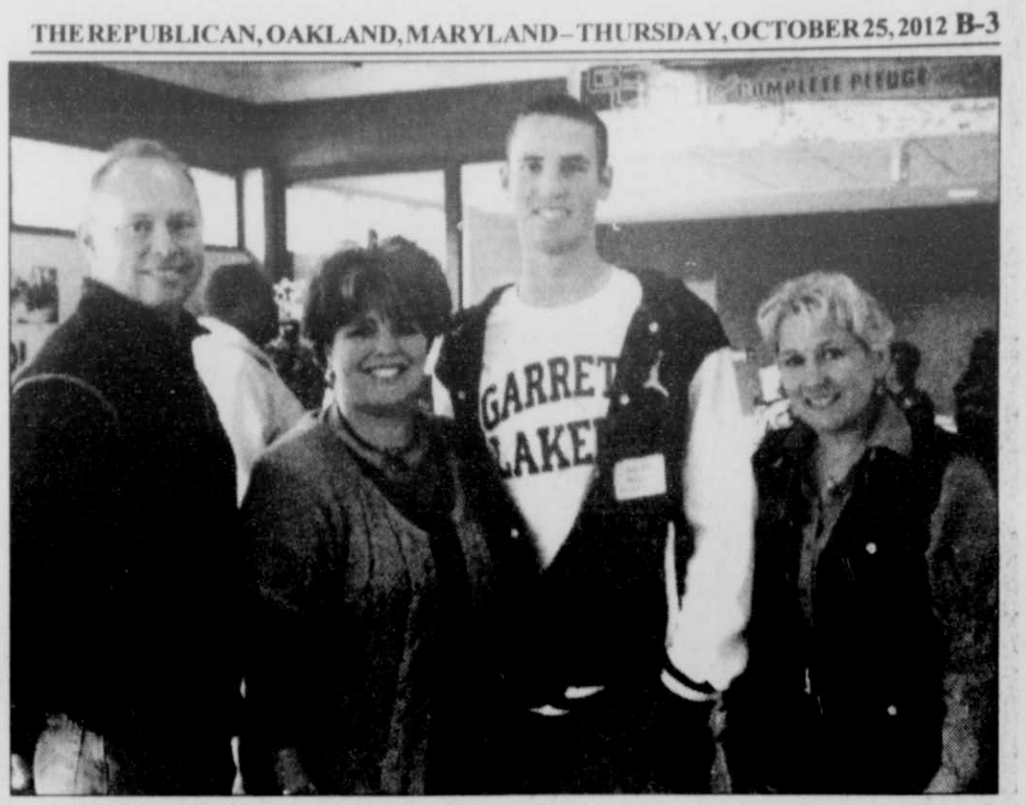
Campus and community volunteers at colleges and universities across the nation will read the names of the fallen during the Vietnam War on Monday, Nov. 12, the official holiday following Veterans Day on November 11.

"We will read the names of those from West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Maryland," said Kathy Fauber, Garrett College veterans affairs counselor. "Each campus has organized its own ceremony to recognize those who have served, are serving, and those who died in service to the nation. All participating campuses will observe a simultaneous nationwide minute of silence at 2 p.m. At Garrett College we will also dedicate a new lounge for our student veterans and follow with a 21-gun salute and the playing of taps."

The Remembrance Day National Roll Call is sponsored nationally by the Veterans Knowledge Community of NASPA Student Affairs Administrators in Higher Education. NASPA is a 12,000-member association for the advancement, health, and sustainability of the student affairs professionals. The Veterans Knowledge Community (VKC) mission is to advocate for best practices to help student veterans transition to college and succeed.

"We want to rally campus communities across the nation to send a message to the troops currently serving that we, as a national body of students, have not forgotten their sacrifices, or those of their fallen brethren," said Lt. Col. (Ret.) Brett Morris, the National Roll Call coordinator.

The National Roll Call will be held at Garrett College auditorium on Nov. 12 from 7:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Volunteers to read names are now being accepted. More information may be obtained by calling Kathy Fauber at 301-387-3057.



PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS participated in Garrett College's open house this past weekend, receiving firsthand information on the programs and facilities available at GC. "We were pleased to have an opportunity to show prospective students and their families all that Garrett College has to offer them," said Rachelle Davis, director of admissions. "In a few hours, we were able to share application, financial aid, housing, and program information, as well as show our visitors the physical campus and our new facilities. It was a productive day." In the photo, from left, are Kirk and Nicole Wassick and their son Garrett, all of Bruceton Mills, W.Va., along with Chrisi Mason, Garrett College admissions counselor. Garrett said he is interested in attending GC next fall to begin studies in physical therapy. Garrett's spring 2013 open house is scheduled for April 20.

Lean Management Conference Slated; Olive Will Speak

Michael Olive, director of the Lean and Operation Excellence Practice with GP Strategies, will be the keynote speaker at a the Western Maryland Lean Conference on principles of lean management, slated at the Garrett Information Enterprise Center (GIEC) at Garrett College on Tuesday, Nov. 13, from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. This workshop is offered in cooperation with the Garrett-Allegany Lean Forum and is designed for all types of organizations, regardless of size, industry, or for-profit status.

Olive has brought proven leadership in the design and implementation of lean to achieve systemic transformation and positive results for GP's clients, according to a GC spokesperson. He has been a keynote/guest speaker in many venues.

Olive has over 21 years of experience in application and consulting in the adoption, training, and implementation of the Toyota Production System that offers strategic transformation planning, coaching, and mentoring in lean manufacturing principles and lean operating systems design and deployment. He has led teams in the U.S., U.K., Germany, France, Belgium, Canada, Mexico, Colombia, Taiwan, China, Japan, and Spain.

Goals of the lean process include reducing human effort, time, and expense while increasing quality. Lean is implemented as a business-wide philosophy and not simply as a cost-cutting initiative, according to the Lean Enterprise Institute. Olive will define the concepts of "lean" and outline ways in which it can be implemented in any organization.

MICHAEL OLIVE

The 2012 Western Maryland Lean Conference, which will provide a choice of workshops, was designed to be beneficial for beginners and experts alike, according to Mike Tumbarello, GIEC coordinator. Topics will include key aspects of continuous improvement, and steps for developing a lean transformation plan.

Tumbarello also noted that lean concepts apply to all industries and all types and sizes of organization, including governmental and non-profit.

"The application of lean principles can help any organization compete in a dynamic, challenging global marketplace, and lean principles can also help enhance the customer experience as well as contain costs," he said.

For more information or to register for this conference, persons may call 301-387-3069.

Candles of Christmas

Upon the mantle, beautiful candles glow as they burn through special occasions throughout the holidays… reminders of those times when family and friends gather to celebrate the birth of Christ. Though the holidays will end, let us carry a candle for the Child in each of our hearts throughout the coming year. May the warmth of His spirit mold each of us into the person we are meant to be and may we share God's joy with everyone we meet. Give thanks to God for His greatest gift, and worship Him each week.

The Reality of the Unseen

William James characterized the religious life as "the belief that there is an unseen order, and that our supreme good lies in harmoniously adjusting ourselves thereto." Later in the same chapter of The Varieties of Religious Experience, James compared this belief in an unseen order to the phenomenon of magnetism. James goes a bit beyond the obvious point that we cannot see the forces of magnetism, and yet are compelled to believe in them, much as we cannot see, hear, or otherwise sense the spiritual order and yet are compelled to believe in them. James's point is more along the lines of suggesting that we consider our experience as if from the perspective of the magnet. That is, while the magnet is entirely free of any sense organs, he asks us to imagine the magnet "endowed with an inner capacity for magnetic feeling." Like us, James says that this magnet could never give you any description of the agencies which stir it and yet would be intensely aware of them 'through every fiber of its being." The religious consciousness is like that. While it cannot prove to the skeptic what it is experiencing, it has an almost immediate inner sense of the reality of this spiritual realm. There are things in heaven and earth not dreamt of in your philosophy, just as there are things in heaven and earth which we cannot see or feel, and yet we believe.

–Christopher Simon

TV's queen of comedy: Ellen DeGeneres receives The Mark Twain Prize

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

Reality TV stars such as Snooki and Honey Boo Boo may have their 15 minutes of fame, but true stars have staying power.

One such entertainer has risen through the ranks of stand-up comedy, quirky sitcoms and movies to become a virtual fixture in popular culture. After years of "paying her dues" in show biz, Ellen DeGeneres is being recognized for her vast body of work with The Kennedy Center Mark Twain Prize for American Humor.

Lily Tomlin, Sean Hayes, Steve Harvey and Jimmy Kimmel honor the performer in the 90-minute special "Ellen DeGeneres: The Mark Twain Prize," airing Tuesday, Oct. 30, on PBS. The stars joined other top entertainers such as Kristin Chenoweth, John Krasinski and Jason Mraz to pay tribute to DeGeneres at a ceremony taped at The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts on Oct. 22.

DeGeneres reacted with her trademark wit when she learned of the honor.

"It's such an honor to receive the Mark Twain Prize," she said. "To get the same award that has been given to people like Bill Cosby, Tina Fey and Will Ferrell, it really makes me wonder ... why didn't I get this sooner?"

It's that kind of tongue-in-cheek humor that's made DeGeneres one of the most popular entertainers today. She has written three incredibly popular books, headlined HBO specials and comedy tours, and has a hit daytime talk show. In fact, she's become one of the queens of daytime (alongside the likes of Katie Couric and Kelly Ripa) since Oprah Winfrey abdicated her post in 2011. Now in its 10th season, "The Ellen DeGeneres Show" is one of daytime's highest-rated shows with nearly three million average viewers, and has been awarded 35 Emmys.

She may be at the top of her game these days, but DeGeneres has truly worked her way up since her stand-up days in the 1980s. She began her career in coffeehouses and local comedy clubs in her hometown of New Orleans, and got her big break when a videotape of her club performances earned her the title of Showtime's "Funniest Person in America" in 1982.

She then toured nationally on the comedy club circuit and landed on "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" in 1986. She made history when she become the first female comedian to be invited to sit down and chat with Johnny after her stand-up set. That may not register with younger viewers, but back in the days of Carson's late night reign, being asked to sit down and chat was a big honor. Considering that "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" was the pinnacle of TV stand-up gigs, being the first woman to be invited over after a stand-up performance was hugely significant.

Things got even better for DeGeneres, and she began snagging sitcom roles on the major networks, including Fox's "Open House" and ABC's short-lived "Laurie Hill." ABC was so impressed with the performer, she was offered a part in the sitcom "These Friends of Mine," which premiered in 1994. The network decided to rename the show "Ellen" after its first season.

The show posted impressive ratings throughout its run from 1994 to 1998, and DeGeneres earned a Best Actress Emmy nomination each year. Not only that, "Ellen" pioneered the portrayal of gay and lesbian people on television when her character came out as a lesbian to her therapist (guest star Oprah Winfrey) in the acclaimed 1997 "Puppy Episode," which drew a record 46 million viewers. In this case, art imitated life as DeGeneres came out publicly in an episode of "The Oprah Winfrey Show." DeGeneres won a Peabody Award and an Emmy for writing the groundbreaking episode.

After "Ellen" ended, the performer went on to star in CBS's "The Ellen Show" from 2001 to 2003, and landed a memorable role as the voice of the fish Dory in Disney/Pixar's "Finding Nemo" (2003). The voice performance won her a Saturn Award for best supporting actress, marking the first time a voice performance won a Saturn for acting. More recently, she appeared as a judge in the ninth season of "American Idol."

DeGeneres has also earned acclaim for her work as an awards show host. In 2001, she stepped up as host of the Emmy Awards, which had been postponed amid concerns that the ceremony would appear insensitive following the terrorist attacks. She was praised for her balance of wit and genuine emotion. Later, her work as host of the 2006 Academy Awards ceremony following hurricane Katrina earned her an Emmy nomination.

Ellen DeGeneres

Even younger viewers seem to love her, as evidenced by her recent Teen Choice Award for Choice Comedian, marking her third consecutive win in the category. Her other accolades include 12 People's Choice Awards, at least 10 Emmys, a GLAAD Media Award, a Kids Choice Award, and even a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

All of this has made her a very influential and powerful figure in today's entertainment industry. She's been featured on Forbes list of the 100 Most Powerful Women, as well as "Time" magazine's 100 Most Influential People.

She uses that power and influence for good through various charitable efforts. Through "The Ellen DeGeneres Show" and Brad Pitt's "Make It Right" foundation, she's raised more than $10 million to help the people of New Orleans. DeGeneres has also been a spokesperson for General Mills' breast cancer initiative Pink for the Cure, and the show hosts an annual Toys for Tots program. In November of last year, Secretary of State Hillary Clinton named DeGeneres a Special Envoy for Global AIDS Awareness.

Her ability to connect with average, everyday people, not just extremely rich celebrities, has endeared her to millions of adoring fans. Few entertainers reach the height of popularity DeGeneres now enjoys, placing her in the company of funny ladies such as Lucille Ball and Carol Burnett. Tune in as she's recognized for her work in PBS's "Ellen DeGeneres: The Mark Twain Prize," Tuesday, Oct. 30.

Murphy's layers

Spike preparing tribute special for comedian

By Sheila Busteed
TV Media

MURPHY'S LAYERS: The thought of performing stand-up comedy is terrifying to most adults. Imagine, then, what it would be like to attempt such a feat at the young age of 15. That's when Eddie Murphy got his start.

Thirty years later, the legendary comedian is still going strong, so Spike TV is collaborating with Don Mischer Productions to honor this achievement in an upcoming tribute special.

"Eddie Murphy: One Night Only" will tape at the Saban Theatre in Los Angeles this Saturday, Nov. 3, and will air on Spike on Friday, Nov. 16.

Murphy is considered by many to be one of the top comedic influences of the '80s, yet he has proven to have great staying power. The two-hour event will highlight such milestones as his rise to fame through stand-up films "Delirious" (1983) and "Raw" (1987), plus his years on "Saturday Night Live." It'll also feature appearances by Murphy's co-stars from such films as "48 Hrs." (1982), "Trading Places" (1983), "Beverly Hills Cop" (1984), "Coming to America" (1988), "The Nutty Professor" (1996), "Shrek" (2001) and "Dreamgirls" (2006).

"Eddie's impact on comedy is immeasurable," said Viacom's Casey Patterson. "At 19, he changed the face of sketch comedy forever on 'Saturday Night Live' and within four years released '48 Hrs.,' 'Delirious,' and 'Beverly Hills Cop,' making him one of the biggest stand-up and movie stars in the world -- all before the age of 24 -- and he's never stopped evolving, innovating and entertaining."

The special will close with an appearance by Murphy himself.

In the new millennium, Murphy's films have suffered at the box office, but he's made up for this with huge successes through voice work in the "Shrek" franchise as the beloved, kooky sidekick Donkey.

Eddie Murphy will be honored in an upcoming Spike special

Facebook is adding a new thing, which is the "want" button. We've given Facebook so much personal information. At this point, shouldn't it already know what we want before we push that button?

I think Facebook should stick to doing what they do best, which is letting you know that your friends from high school got fat and bald.

Late Night: Jimmy Fallon
A new survey found that atheists are the fastest-growing religious group in the U.S. And if you find it hard to believe -- well, you're probably one of them.

Yesterday, two ATMs here in New York were shut down for dispensing counterfeit money. People were suspicious after one guy kept asking, "Hey, can you break a 23?"

A new survey found that over 35 per cent of Americans actually plan on voting before Election Day. Not for president of the United States, just for "Dancing With the Stars."

I heard that Costco is recalling its smoked salmon because of a possible salmonella contamination. That's right, their salmon has salmonella. Something tells me I don't want to know what their crabs have. But on the bright side, since it's Costco, customers did get a LOT of salmonella for their money.

Strange BUT TRUE

- It was 20th-century American author and actress Cornelia Otis Skinner who made the following sage observation: "One learns in life to keep silent and draw one's own confusions."
- If you grew up during a certain era in the United States, you are probably familiar with the board game Parcheesi. If you have a particularly good memory, you may recall that the game's subtitle is "The Royal Game of India." You may not realize, though, that the game is so-called because royalty in India used to play a life-size version of the game in gardens specially designed for the pursuit. Centuries ago, rajas would dress members of their harems in brightly colored costumes and use them as game pieces. • Everyone knows that a sophomore is someone in his or her second year of high school or college. Most people don't realize, though, that the word is derived from the Greek words "sophos," which means "wise," and "moros," which means "stupid."
- It's not unusual for music critics and the artists they critique to butt heads, but they usually do it in print, not in person. In 1978, though, the staff of Rolling Stone magazine and the band the Eagles went head-to-head in a softball match. The writers ended up losing to the rock stars.
- The creator of the ubiquitous smiley face earned a grand total of $45 for his creative effort. • Having trouble with your teenager? It's a worldwide problem, it seems -- though not always for the same reasons. In 2004, a 13-year-old boy in India ran away from home, declared that he was a Hindu holy man and founded a monastery. His parents arranged for him to be kidnapped and brought back home.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Oct. 30, 1893, the World's Columbian Exposition closes in Chicago. Fairgoers were offered a chance to see the first gas-powered motorcar, an alternating-current power plant, a 46-foot-long cannon, a 1,500-pound Venus de Milo made of chocolate, and Juicy Fruit gum.
- On Nov. 4, 1922, British archaeologist Howard Carter and his workmen discover a stone sarcophagus containing three coffins nested within each other. Inside the final coffin, which was made of solid gold, was the mummy of the boy-king Tutankhamen, preserved for more than 3,000 years.
- On Nov. 3, 1930, the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel between the United States and Canada is officially opened to auto traffic. Each end of the tunnel had a 100-foot-tall ventilation tower; each tower held 12 huge fans, six for pumping fresh air into the tunnel and six for exhaust. The tunnel's ventilation system still works just as well today as it did 80 years ago.
- On Oct. 29, 1948, a killer smog continues to hover over Donora, Pa. The town's steel mills and a zinc smelting plant had released excessive amounts of sulfuric acid, carbon monoxide and other pollutants into the atmosphere. Over a five-day period, the smog killed some 20 people and made thousands more seriously ill.
- On Oct. 31, 1950, 21-year-old Earl Lloyd becomes the first black man to play in an NBA game when he takes the court in the season opener for the Washington Capitols. The Capitols had picked him in the ninth round of the draft. After seven games with the Capitols, Lloyd was drafted into the military and sent to Korea for two years.

Q: I have almost a dozen VHS tapes, six that have never been opened. They are mostly Walt Disney movies. How can I sell them? -- Sue, Alton, Ill.

A: VHS tapes are becoming difficult to sell. In fact, most modern players do not even have VHS ports. Since you live fairly close to St. Louis, one of the better stores that might be able to help you is Record Exchange, a super outlet that specializes in vinyl, CDs, VHS tapes and even a limited number of 78s. The address is 5320 Hampton Ave., St. Louis, MO 63109.

Q: I was given a set of four water tumblers made by the Hazel Atlas Glass Company. Do you know anything about this company? -- Carol, Albuquerque, N.M.

A: The company was established in Clarksville, W.Va., in about 1902. A sales brochure from 1928 claimed that the company was the "World's Largest Tumbler Factory." It is, perhaps, most famous for the iconic blue Shirley Temple glassware produced during the 1930s. Collectors should be aware that the Temple items have been reproduced.

STICKELERS

For this puzzle, consider pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters only.

Molly has 5 coins in her pocket with an average value of $.22. If she added one more dime, the average of all coins would be $.20. How many nickels does Molly have in her pocket?

It isn't difficult to guess the answer after spending a little time thinking about it. What is more challenging is to see if you can solve this algebraically.

Stickelers Answer

Molly has no nickels in her pocket.

There are several ways to view this puzzle. One is to realize that the 6 coins she has after adding the dime are worth $1.20. That means that 4 quarters and 2 dimes are the only solution.

Total value of coins originally in Molly's pocket = x, and the number of coins = n

1. $x/n = 22$ or $x = 22n$
2. $x + 10/n + 1 = 20$
3. Substituting:
   $22n + 10 = 20 (n + 1)$
   $22n + 10 = 20n + 20$
4. $2n = 10$
5. $n = 5$ and $x = $1.10$

So, to begin, Molly had 4 quarters and 1 dime ... and no nickels.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE AT MARYLAND'S HIGHEST POINT – The Highpointers Foundation, dedicated to the education, support, and conservation of the highest point in each of the 50 United States, recently provided funding for additions at Maryland's highest point, which is located at Hoye Crest in Garrett County. The foundation provided a new mailbox, shown below, and a bench for the many hundreds who visit this historical site and marker annually. Hoye Crest is named for Charles E. Hoye, founder of the Garrett County Historical Society (GCHS). The foundation maintains positive relationships with owners of high points on private property, assists in the care and maintenance of high points through their liaisons, and supports public and private efforts to maintain the integrity of and access to state high points. To date the foundation has provided mailboxes and benches to more than 16 high points, and six are in the planning stage for 2013, a spokesperson said. Pictured behind the new bench, from left, are Paul Shogren, GCHS vice president, Dave Wolfe, Sandy Denton, Robert Pritchard, and Lillian and Gene Elliott. To date, the Elliotts, formerly of Garrett County, have climbed to 41 state high points, the latest this past May, which was Arizona's Humphrey's Peak at 12,637 feet. Hoye Crest is accessible from Rt. 219, south of Silver Lake in W.Va. (The high point is within Maryland's state line.) The high points are now being utitlized in "Memorial Expeditions" across the country, the Elliots reported. These expeditions, called "Cops on Top," honor fallen law enforcement officers. Police officers from Baltimore visited Hoye Crest in June to honor those officers killed in the line of duty in Maryland, and left their memorials. In June 2013, officers from Maryland will again climb to the high point for this purpose.

Service To Mark Reformation Set At St. Mark's Church

St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Oakland will celebrate Reformation Sunday at its 10 a.m. worship service on Sunday, Oct. 28. The church is located at the corner of Second and Center streets in Oakland, across from the Ruth Enlow Library. The public is invited to attend the service, which will feature special music, including the choir, brass, and the handbell choir.

"The Protestant Reformation began quietly when Martin Luther posted his now-famous 95 theses on the chapel door at the Castle Church in Wittenberg, Germany, on Oct. 31, 1517," said Pastor C. Scott Robinson of St. Mark's. "Those theses were actually proposed 'talking points' for regular university discussion, written in protest of the church's sale of 'indulgences' (forgiveness for past and present sins) then being sold by the church for cash. Later the protest expanded to include other areas of doctrine and practice that the reformers found to be faulty and corrupt."

Robinson said Luther did not intend to start his own church, but only to reform the teachings and practices of the present church, for which he served as an Augustinian monk and seminary professor. Today, however, there are more than 68 million Lutherans in the world.

"All Protestant denominations either borrowed or benefited from the efforts of the 16th century reformers, from Luther to Calvin, Cranmer to Knox," Robinson said. The pastor said that while the denomination was started by church division, today the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America is "the most ecumeznical of all Christian denominations."

"We continue to work with the Roman Catholic Church and other Protestant denominations to find common ground wherever possible," the pastor said. "We view the Reformation not only as a movement of the past, but as an ongoing effort to renew and revitalize the church, keeping it responsible, accountable, and relevant through the ages."

For more information, persons may call St. Mark's church office at 301-334-2668.

ST. MARK'S
CHRISTIAN EARLY LEARNING CENTER

EARNING REACCREDITATION as a pre-school from the state of Maryland recently was St. Mark's Lutheran Church Christian Early Learning Center, located along U.S. Rt. 219 just north of Oakland. The school has begun its 13th year of operation as a ministry of St. Mark's and has attained an outstanding record of preparing children to enter into the public school system. The CELC is open to all children ages 3-5, regardless of faith or church affiliation, and utilizes a Christian-based curriculum while providing lessons in all of the major subjects. The photo above was taken in the school playground during recess. At far left (and below) is Becky Moyer, who has been the teacher at the school since its opening in the fall of 2000.

LEADING A SING-ALONG weekly at the CELC is Rev. Dr. Scott Robinson, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Oakland, who is often accompanied to the school by his Lab retriever Sophie, much to the delight of the students.

Music and art are among the lessons incorporated into the day's schedule. Working with the children on an art project in the photo below is CELC assistant teacher Tracy Valentine.

St. Mark's Christian Early Learning Center Achieves Md. Reaccreditation

by Don Sincell

Successfully completing the arduous task of state reaccreditation from the Maryland State Board of Education recently was St. Mark's Lutheran Church's Christian Early Learning Center (CELC), located along U.S. Rt. 219 just north of Oakland.

In fact, St. Mark's CELC, which opened its doors in the fall of 2000, is the only state-accredited Christian pre-school in Garrett County, and has a proven record of preparing students well for entry into the public school system – socially, academically, and spiritually.

Open to children ages 3-5, the school is staffed by a state certified teacher and two assistants, an educational supervisor, and a board of directors.

Becky Moyer, who holds a bachelor's degree in education from Fairmont State College (now University) and a master's degree from Frostburg State University, has been the CELC director/teacher since it opened. Current assistants are Jodi Smith and Tracy Valentine, and retired local educator Suzie Sincell is the school supervisor. Rev. Dr. Scott Robinson, pastor of St. Mark's, is a regular visitor at the school, and there are a number of involved parent volunteers.

The CELC operates on the same schedule as the public school system. Some students attend all five weekdays, while others attend two, three, or four days each week, with two being the minimum.

Even though the CELC is sponsored by a Lutheran church, Lutheranism is not among the topics/subjects taught there, and students of all denominations/faiths are welcome to enroll. However, teaching the basic tenets of Christianity – not permitted in the public school system – is incorporated into the curriculum and throughout the students' activities.

"We certainly do not teach theology or anything that is specifically Lutheran," said Moyer. "Our students are preschoolers. So we try to incorporate aspects of Christian behavior in everything we do. For example, we say grace before our snacks and lunch, we talk about the many wonderful things that God has created, and we emphasize sharing, kindness, taking turns, helping each other, and working together."

READING A BOOK and having the children repeat the words is one method of teaching them how to recognize letters and to learn their sounds, which is the activity being conducted in the photo above by CELC teacher Becky Moyer. Proper nutrition is also a focus of the CELC curriculum, with the utilization of the Color Me Healthy program that incorporates color, music, and exploration of the senses to teach children the importance of healthy eating and physical activity. The photo below was taken just before the children's lunch time.

According to the CELC parent guide, the school's hands-on Bible curriculum is REAL – relational, because student-to-student interaction enhances learning and builds Christian friendships; experiential, because what students experience stays with them up to nine times longer than what they simply hear or read; applicable, because the aim of Christian education is to be both hearers and doers of the Word; and learner-based, because students learn more and retain longer when the process is designed according to how they learn best.

Academics, the arts, nutrition, and physical education are also included in the CELC curriculum.

"Circle time" is held every morning, which teaches children to listen, sit still, and wait their turn. Memorization of songs and finger plays are included. The children learn the names of their classmates and how to cooperate and be considerate of each other. Each becomes responsible for a certain job in the classroom.

A phonics program is utilized to teach children the alphabet and letter sounds. Letters are taught via the Pre-K Letter People Program, which is also used in the public school system. Preprimer sight words are taught during the second half of the year.

Another subject is communication skills, through which children are encouraged to share their experiences and participate in show-and-tell, which helps them learn how to speak easily, freely, and clearly.

Math is included, with instruction provided in how to recognize numbers and how to write them. Math and science lessons are enhanced by a variety of educational games and activities that are available on the CELC computers.

There are art lessons in painting and drawing, and lessons in music, through which children become conscious of musical rhythms and learn the concepts of fast, slow, loud, and soft. Memory skills, sequencing, and listening skills are developed.

In the area of physical education, the children participate in balance, coordination, and rhythm exercises, and also learn to lead, to follow, to communicate, to contribute to a group, and to develop socially. The school also has a fully equipped outdoor playground for additional exercise and play time.

In the area of nutrition, the CELC utilizes the Color Me Healthy program, which incorporates color, music, and exploration of the senses to teach children the importance of healthy eating and physical activity.

Finally, the 2nd Step Program provides empathy training, emotion management, and problem solving, which help reduce aggressive behavior and increase social confidence in children.

Field trips are held over the course of the school year, with some of the destinations being the Pittsburgh Zoo, the WVU School of Agriculture barn, Jellystone Park in Mill Run, Pa., and Rich's Pumpkin Patch in Smithfield, Pa.

The Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club annually conducts vision testing of the CELC students, and personnel from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office come to the school to provide safety IDs and fingerprinting.

The educational goals and outcomes of the CELC are aligned with the Maryland State Curriculum, and the school is affiliated with the Judy Center.

While a goal of St. Mark's Church Council and congregation is for the school to ultimately become self-sufficient, it was never intended to be a "money-making" ministry of the church, according to Dorothy Andreas, council president. She said that the congregation has continued to vote in favor of subsidizing the school each year in order to keep it in operation, believing it to be an effective and an important ministry.

"Our members support the CELC on an annual basis through their giving, and we do everything we can to contain enrollment costs and to keep the school in operation," said Andreas, adding that the daily tuition rate is not much greater than that of a number of local day-care operations.

"And what we offer is not day-care, but an accredited school that has an excellent record of preparing children for the public school system," she added.

Educational supervisor Suzie Sincell, who retired last year as principal of Broad Ford Elementary School, confirmed that record.

"My kindergarten teachers would express to me every year that former enrollees of St. Mark's CELC are among the best prepared students who enter the public school system."

Keith Harvey, former principal of Yough Glades Elementary School and now director of human resources for the Garrett County Board of Education, reiterated, "St. Mark's Early Learning Center provides children with a positive, enriched learning environment, allowing for a smooth transition into the public school system."

"As a teacher, I view myself as much a learner as my students," Moyer said. "We teach each other; I am merely the facilitator in this exchange, encouraging my students to offer more of themselves. The excitement in their voices and facial expressions is my reward each day. I continually look for new strategies that will help them grow and prepare them for success in kindergarten."

Moyer also noted that children may enroll at any time during the school year.

"Parents are invited to come see the school at any time," she said. "All they need to do is call us at 301-334-3084 during the school day and we will arrange a visit for them."

Persons can also obtain information about the CELC by calling St. Mark's church office at 301-334-2668.

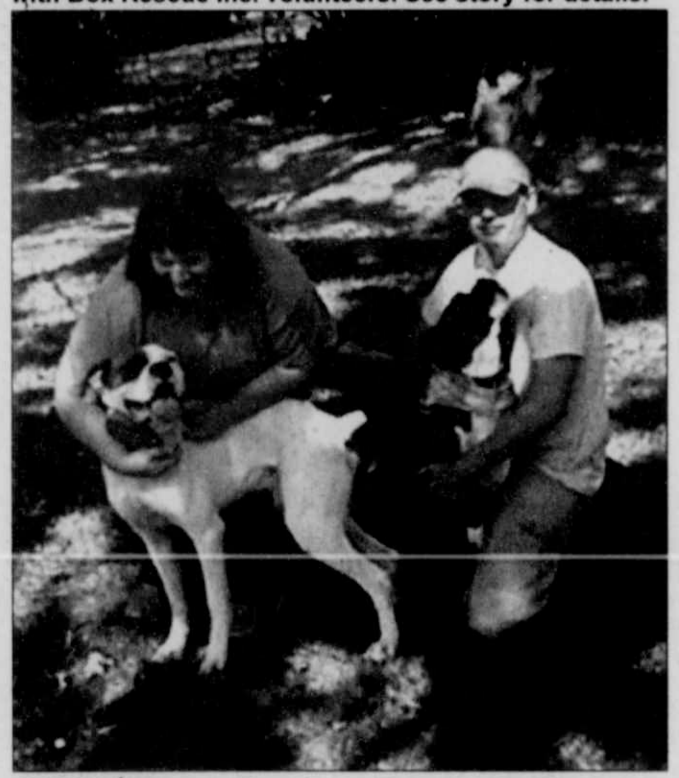
A HAPPY ENDING TO A TRAGIC SITUATION – Six young adult boxers and several other animals were recently rescued from conditions described by Garrett County Humane Society volunteers as "nearly life threatening." Below are two of the boxers with Box Rescue Inc. volunteers. See story for details.



GC Humane Society Rescues Boxers From Local Unlicensed "Puppy Mill"

by Mercedes Pellet, HART development director

Garrett County has three animal welfare organizations, dedicated to helping all animals in the county and in the general area. They are the Garrett County Humane Society, Partners for Animal Welfare & Safety (PAWS), and HART for Animals. There are many elements that unite these organizations in order to create a safety net for animals in need.

Their purposes, however, differ in order to avoid duplication of effort. HART for Animals rescues and transports cats and dogs from the county shelter, provides low-cost spay/neuter services at its clinic, and is building an animal center in the county.

PAWS raises money to provide vouchers for pet owners who cannot afford to spay or neuter their pets.

The Garrett County Humane Society helps small and large animals who, by neglect or abuse, find themselves in critical need, provides vouchers to encourage owners to spay and neuter their pets, and publishes photographs of the shelter animals to encourage local adoptions.

The oldest of the three organizations is the Garrett County Humane Society, founded 26 years ago by Bernadine Friend of Friendsville. The society's representatives are the first line of protection for animals in need: Deb Clatterbuck, animal control officer for the GCHS, and her assistant, Janet Ridder, are the first to respond to calls made to the GCHS phone line.

Two months ago, they received an anonymous call alerting them to an unlicensed puppy mill in the southern end of the county. The caller reported the presence of many neglected young dogs, extremely thin, with no shelter, and secured by chains to pieces of junk. The caller further detailed the presence of six cows and one bull in a 30-foot by 30-foot shed, without being able to move, with their only source of water being an old wash tub. Although there was hay in the barn, the cattle were suffering from hunger and dehydration.

Upon arriving at the site, the humane officers confirmed the report from the anonymous source and discovered six young adult boxers in nearly life-threatening condition, plus an additional 18 beagle puppies, approximately 7 to 8 months old, one of which was running loose.

As they have in similar situations, Officer Clatterbuck – who has been trained and certified as an animal control officer – located and interviewed the owner and informed him of their findings. The animals were in poor condition; flea infested; had not been vaccinated against rabies, distemper, or parvovirus; were not provided clean water or food; lacked appropriate shelter; and did not have enough space to move around.

After assessing the situation and determining that the animals had been acquired to begin a breeding operation, the owner was asked to relinquish the boxers so they could be taken to the veterinarian for immediate care. He was also given two weeks to come into compliance with respect to the other animals, including the livestock.

The boxers, consisting of three whites (two females, one male), two fawns (one male, one female), and a brindle female, were transported to veterinarian Dr. Paul Deal of Oakland. After four days at Deal's Countryside Animal Hospital, they were transported to Boxer Rescue Inc. at the end of September.

For the GCHS officers, the rescue was a successful end to yet another heartbreaking case of animal neglect. For the six boxer puppies, it was the difference between life and death.

Officer Clatterbuck and assistant officer Ridder do their work on a daily basis because of the strength of their belief that no living being deserves to be subjected to the conditions in which they find so many animals.

"In a community like ours, animal abuse and neglect is everybody's business," Clatterbuck said.

She advises citizens to be proactive in helping animals who cannot speak on their own behalf. If cruelty to animals is witnessed or suspected, be it by omission (neglect) or commission (abuse), she recommends calling the Garrett County Animal Shelter at 301-334-3554 or the Garrett County Humane Society at 301-334-4470.

October Is Adopt A Shelter Dog Month

by Lisa Baker, GC Humane Society president

The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has designated October as National Adopt a Shelter Dog Month. Animals lovers across the nation are encouraged to observe National Adopt a Shelter Dog Month by spreading the word to raise awareness about the positive aspects of adopting from your local shelter.

This brings attention to the 3 to 4 million dogs in shelters at any given time across the country, as well as bringing an opportunity to educate people about adoption as the best option when adding a dog to your family. At our Garrett County Animal Shelter most of the dogs are medium to large mixed-breeds.

Most shelters will require you to have your new pet spayed or neutered to prevent more unwanted dogs from being born. Locally, HART and the Garrett County Humane Society offer discounts to have the dog spayed or neutered.

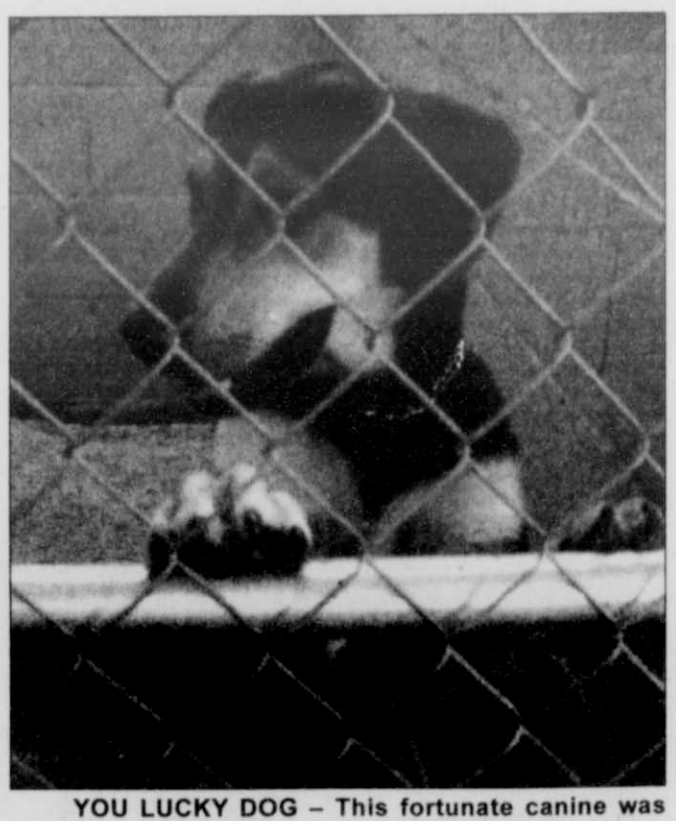
Studies show that adopting from a shelter is a better experience than buying from a pet store or puppy mill. Most shelters in the United States are not no-kill, so when you adopt from one you are truly saving a life.

People who have the experience of shelter adoptions feel they have had a more positive overall experience and are twice as likely to recommend the shelter based on that experience. Even if you don't want to add a dog to your family, now is a great time to visit your local shelter just to become more educated about what they do there, volunteer, or even do a donation drive. Locally you can donate blankets, towels, rugs, and newspapers, plus cash donations to be used to purchase things such as flea medication.

"My dog was adopted from a local shelter, and at any given time our local shelters in Garrett, Preston (W.Va.), and Tucker (W.Va.) counties will be full of dogs needing a home.

Just this week, two people I know adopted a dog from a shelter. One adopted an adorable beagle mix from the Preston County shelter, and the other adopted a hound mix from the Garrett County shelter. Both dogs are friendly, lovable, and well behaved. So those are two happy endings!

Go to www.Petfinder.com, enter your Zip code, the type of breed you are looking for, and click on "GO." It's that easy. Additional information is available by calling the Garrett County Animal Shelter at 301-334-3553.



YOU LUCKY DOG – This fortunate canine was recently adopted from a local animal shelter, but there are an estimated 4 million others in need of new homes across the United States. To bring attention to this situation, the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has deemed October as National Adopt a Shelter Dog Month. See story for details. Second Step Social Campaign Launched; Anti-Bullying Is First Of Six Messages

by Sandy Miller
Substance Abuse Prevention Coordinator
GC Health Department

October is National Bullying Prevention Month, and is a great time for looking at what can be done to address this important issue. In keeping with that, the 2012-13 Preschool Second Step Social Media Campaign was launched this week, with a billboard display along Route 219 in Oakland and radio ads on WKHJ and WFRB.

Second Step is a violence prevention/social skills program that has been implemented in the county for many years under the guidance of administrators from Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc. (CAC), health department, and Board of Education. The Second Step early learning program has been designed to guide children to learn, practice, and apply skills for self-regulation and social-emotional competence.

"Children are learning how to get along with others, prevent problem behavior and promote success in school and life," said Mark Colaw, director of early child and family development for CAC.

"The program teaches younger children about the development of 'emotional intelligence,' which lays a firm foundation that promotes the makings for empathy," said Sandy Miller, substance abuse prevention coordinator. "Empathy is identifying one's own and others' feelings, taking others' perspectives, and showing care and concern for others. Empathy is the showcase topic for the first of five sequence social media messages."

The Head Start classrooms will have a bulletin board display personalized by Head Start children. In addition, to promote the concepts of the program, Head Start teachers encourage each family to consider completing home links with their child. Home Links are simple, fun activities adult family members can do with children at home. The links provide skill practice and help parents or caregivers understand what children are learning. If families participate in the activities, children will receive free books at the end of the 28-week program.

Second Step is successful when skills are practiced and utilized daily and all parties involved are vested in the program. To learn more about the Second Step program, persons may contact their child's teacher.

QUESTION SUMMARIES

SUMMARY OF QUESTION 1: CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

Prince George's County Orphans' Court Judges Qualifications

Chapter 394 of 2011 (Senate Bill 281)

This constitutional amendment would require that, in addition to the current eligibility requirements, each of the three judges of the Orphans' Court for Prince George's County be admitted to practice law in this State and be a member in good standing of the Maryland Bar.

An orphans' court hears all contested matters regarding a decedent's estate, including validity of wills and legal questions involving transfers of property. The court also supervises estates that are probated judicially; approves accounts, awards of personal representatives' commissions, and attorney's fees in all estates; and has concurrent jurisdiction with the circuit courts over the guardianship of minors and their property.

Currently, the Maryland Constitution provides for the election of three orphans' court judges in Baltimore City and in each county, except in Harford and Montgomery counties, where a circuit court judge sits as the orphans' court. Except in Baltimore City, the only requirements to qualify for election as an orphans' court judge are that an individual be a citizen of Maryland and reside for the preceding 12 months in the jurisdiction from which the individual is elected. In 2010, the voters of Maryland and Baltimore City adopted a constitutional amendment to require orphans' court judges in Baltimore City to also be admitted to practice law in this State and be members in good standing of the Maryland Bar.

For this constitutional amendment to be implemented, it must be approved by both a majority of the statewide voters and a majority of the voters in Prince George's County.

SUMMARY OF QUESTION 2: CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

Baltimore County Orphans' Court Judges Qualifications

Chapter 146 of 2012 (Senate Bill 48)

This constitutional amendment would require that, in addition to the current eligibility requirements, each of the three judges of the Orphans' Court for Baltimore County be admitted to practice law in this State and be a member in good standing of the Maryland Bar.

An orphans' court hears all contested matters regarding a decedent's estate, including validity of wills and legal questions involving transfers of property. The court also supervises estates that are probated judicially; approves accounts, awards of personal representatives' commissions, and attorney's fees in all estates; and has concurrent jurisdiction with the circuit courts over the guardianship of minors and their property.

Currently, the Maryland Constitution provides for the election of three orphans' court judges in Baltimore City and in each county, except in Harford and Montgomery counties, where a circuit court judge sits as the orphans' court. Except in Baltimore City, the only requirements to qualify for election as an orphans' court judge are that an individual be a citizen of Maryland and reside for the preceding 12 months in the jurisdiction from which the individual is elected. In 2010, the voters of Maryland and Baltimore City adopted a constitutional amendment to require orphans' court judges in Baltimore City to also be admitted to practice law in this State and be members in good standing of the Maryland Bar.

For this constitutional amendment to be implemented, it must be approved by both a majority of the statewide voters and a majority of the voters in Baltimore County.

SUMMARY OF QUESTION 3: CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

Elected Officials – Removal from Office – Crimes

Chapter 147 of 2012 (House Bill 211)

This proposed constitutional amendment changes the point at which an elected official charged with certain crimes is suspended or removed from office.

Under the State Constitution, there is a two-step process for removing a State or local elected official who, while in office, is convicted of or pleads nolo contendere (a plea stating that the defendant will not contest the charge but does not admit guilt or claim innocence) to a crime that is (1) a felony; or (2) a misdemeanor that is related to the elected official's public duties and responsibilities and involves moral turpitude, and for which the penalty may be imprisonment ("disqualifying misdemeanor"). First, if the elected official is convicted or pleads nolo contendere, the elected official is suspended from office. During the suspension, the elected official may not receive pay or benefits and the office is filled temporarily. Second, if the conviction is not appealed or is affirmed on appeal, the elected official is removed from office. If the conviction is reversed or overturned, the elected official is reinstated automatically for the remainder of the term, if any, and all pay and benefits are restored.

Under current law, a "conviction" occurs upon sentencing. Thus, an elected official who is found guilty or enters a guilty plea may continue in office until the official is sentenced for the crime, which may be months later. This proposed constitutional amendment establishes that a State or local official who is found guilty is suspended immediately upon the finding of guilt. A State or local official who pleads guilty or nolo contendere would be removed from office immediately without the possibility of reinstatement.

SUMMARY OF QUESTION 4: REFERENDUM BY PETITION

Statutory Enactment Petitioned to Statewide Referendum
Public Institutions of Higher Education – Tuition Rates – Exemptions

Chapter 191 of 2011 (Senate Bill 167)

This Act allows certain individuals who attended and graduated from Maryland high schools to pay in-state tuition and, in certain instances, in-county tuition at community colleges. An individual who graduates from or earns a certain number of credits from a community college in the State is then eligible under the Act to pay the resident tuition rate at a public four-year higher education institution in Maryland under specified circumstances. Because of their inability to establish permanent residency, these individuals, including many immigrants, both documented and undocumented, are considered nonresidents for tuition purposes regardless of how long they have lived in Maryland. The Act also extends the time in which honorably discharged military veterans may qualify for in-state tuition rates.

Under the Act, an individual, including an undocumented individual, is authorized, regardless of residency status, to pay in-state tuition at a community college in Maryland if the individual:

- attended a Maryland high school for at least three years and either graduated from a Maryland high school or received the equivalent of a high school diploma in Maryland;
- provides the community college with documentation that the individual or the individual's parent or legal guardian has filed a Maryland income tax return annually (1) for the three years during which the individual attended high school in the State; (2) during any period between graduation from high school in the State and registration at a community college; and (3) during the period of attendance at the community college;
- provides an affidavit stating that the individual will file an application to become a permanent resident within 30 days after the individual becomes eligible to do so, if the individual is not a permanent resident;
- provides documentation that the individual has registered with the Selective Service System, if the individual is required to do so; and
- registers at the community college within four years after graduating from high school or within four years after receiving the equivalent of a high school diploma in Maryland.

An individual who meets the above requirements is eligible to pay the in-county tuition rate at a community college in Maryland if:

- the individual attends a community college supported by the county in which the high school from which the individual graduated is located; or
- in the case of an individual who received the equivalent of a high school diploma, the individual attends a community college supported by the county in which the high school most recently attended by the individual is located.

An individual who meets the above requirements and is awarded an associate's degree by, or earned 60 credits at, a community college in the State is eligible for the resident tuition rate at a public four-year higher education institution in Maryland if the individual:

- provides the institution a copy of the affidavit regarding application to become a permanent resident;
- provides the institution documentation regarding the annual filing of Maryland income tax returns by the individual or by the individual's parent or legal guardian up to and including the period of attendance at the institution; and
- registers at the institution within four years after graduating from, or achieving 60 credits at, a community college in the State.

For honorably discharged veterans of the U.S. Armed Forces, the Act extends the time period from one year after discharge to four years after discharge during which these veterans may present documentation to qualify for in-state tuition at public institutions of higher education in the State. The required documentation includes evidence that the veteran attended a Maryland high school for at least three years and documentation that the veteran graduated from a high school in the State or received the equivalent of a high school diploma in the State.

Currently, tuition policies at community colleges are set by State regulations and the boards of trustees for the colleges. There are three levels of tuition at community colleges: in-county, out-of-county, and out-of-state. In general, there is a three-month residency requirement for community colleges.

Tuition policies for public four-year higher education institutions require individuals to have the legal ability under federal and State law to live permanently in Maryland in order to qualify for in-state tuition rates. In general, these individuals qualify for in-state tuition when they can document that they have lived continuously in Maryland for at least 12 consecutive months.

Statutory Enactment Petitioned to Statewide Referendum – Congressional Districting Plan

Chapter 1 of the Special Session of 2011 (Senate Bill 1)

This Act establishes a new congressional districting plan for the election of Maryland's eight representatives in the U.S. House of Representatives based on new census figures, as required by law.

The U.S. Constitution requires each state to redraw its congressional district boundaries every 10 years after a census of the United States is taken by the federal government. Several legal requirements govern the process of drawing district lines. First, federal law requires that district boundaries be drawn so that the populations in each district are equal. Second, under federal law, district boundaries must be drawn so that minorities have an equal opportunity to participate in the electoral process and elect a representative of their choice. Finally, Maryland law requires that prisoners be counted at their last known address if they were Maryland residents before their incarceration. Prisoners who were not residents of Maryland before being incarcerated must be excluded from the census data that is used to establish the districts.

In the fall of 2011, the State of Maryland enacted a new congressional districting plan based on census data collected in 2010. The plan subsequently was challenged in federal court, but in December 2011 a three-judge panel of the U.S. District Court for the District of Maryland ruled that the plan was legal and constitutional. On June 25, 2012, the U.S. Supreme Court affirmed the district court ruling.

The State's plan provides that the 1st Congressional District consists of the entire Eastern Shore (Caroline, Cecil, Dorchester, Kent, Queen Anne's, Somerset, Talbot, Wicomico, and Worcester counties) and parts of Baltimore, Carroll, and Harford counties; the 2nd Congressional District consists of parts of Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Harford, and Howard counties and parts of Baltimore City; the 3rd Congressional District consists of parts of Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Howard, and Montgomery counties and parts of Baltimore City; the 4th Congressional District consists of parts of Anne Arundel and Prince George's counties; the 5th Congressional District consists of the entire Southern Maryland counties of Calvert, Charles, and St. Mary's and parts of Anne Arundel and Prince George's counties; the 6th Congressional District consists of the entire Western Maryland counties of Allegany, Garrett, and Washington and parts of Frederick and Montgomery counties; the 7th Congressional District consists of parts of Baltimore and Howard counties and parts of Baltimore City; and the 8th Congressional District consists of parts of Carroll, Frederick, and Montgomery counties.

If this question receives a majority of votes at the 2012 general election, the State's plan will remain in force. If, however, the question does not receive a majority of votes, the plan will be repealed 30 days after the official canvass of votes and a different plan will be enacted. Regardless of the outcome of the vote on the question at the 2012 general election, however, the congressional districting plan enacted under Chapter 1 will remain in effect for the duration of the two-year term of the U.S. Congress that begins in January 2013, and any member elected to the U.S. Congress at the November 2012 general election from those districts will remain in office until the end of that two-year term.

SUMMARY OF QUESTION 6: REFERENDUM BY PETITION

Statutory Enactment Petitioned to Statewide Referendum –
Civil Marriage Protection Act

Chapter 2 of 2012 (House Bill 438)

This Act amends current law to allow gay and lesbian couples to obtain a civil marriage license. Other prohibitions and age restrictions relating to who may legally marry remain in place.

The Act also provides religious protections. Religious entities retain exclusive control over their own theological doctrines, policy teachings, and beliefs regarding who may marry within that faith. No official of a religious order or body authorized to perform a marriage ceremony may be required to celebrate or officiate any particular marriage or religious rite of marriage in violation of the right to free exercise of religion as guaranteed by the U.S. and Maryland constitutions, and may not be subject to any fines or other penalties for the failure or refusal to do so.

Further, under the Act no religious entity may be required to provide services, accommodations, advantages, facilities, goods, or privileges if they are related to the celebration of a marriage that violates the entity's religious beliefs or to the promotion of marriage through any social or religious programs or services, unless State or federal funds are received for that specific program or service, nor does a refusal to provide any create a civil claim or cause of action. Moreover, the State may not penalize, withhold benefits from, or discriminate against the entity because of the refusal. The protections in the Act extend to associations, societies, or nonprofit institutions or organizations operated, supervised, or controlled by a religious entity. If this question is approved by voters, the resulting changes to the statute cannot be interpreted to prohibit any religious entities from limiting admission to or giving preferences to individuals of the same religion or denomination when otherwise permitted by law.

Finally, the Act also states that a fraternal benefit society that is operated, supervised, or controlled by a religious organization may not be required to admit individuals as members or provide insurance benefits if doing so would be a violation of its religious beliefs. Such refusals may not create a civil claim or cause of action or form the basis for the withholding of governmental benefits or services.

The Act does not affect existing laws prohibiting discrimination in employment, housing, or public accommodations on the basis of sexual orientation.

SUMMARY OF QUESTION 7: REFERENDUM BY STATUTORY ENACTMENT

Gaming Expansion – Video Lottery Terminals and Table Games

Chapter 1 of the Second Special Session of 2012 (Senate Bill 1)

Chapter 1 of the Acts of the General Assembly of the second special session of 2012 (1) authorizes video lottery operation licensees to operate "table games"; (2) increases from 15,000 to 16,500 the maximum number of video lottery terminals that may be operated in the State; and (3) increases from five to six the maximum number of video lottery operation licenses that may be awarded in the State and allows a video lottery facility to operate in Prince George's County.

Article XIX of the Maryland Constitution, approved by the voters at the November 2008 general election, authorized a maximum of five video lottery facility licenses at specified locations in Allegany County, Anne Arundel County, Baltimore City, Cecil County, and Worcester County. All five licenses have been awarded, and the facilities in Anne Arundel County, Cecil County, and Worcester County are open to the public.

Article XIX also requires that additional forms or expansion of commercial gaming in the State, such as provided under Chapter 1, be approved by referendum in a general election.

Prince George's County Facility

Chapter 1 states the intent of the General Assembly that a video lottery operation license may not be awarded in Prince George's County unless this referendum is approved by a majority of the voters in Prince George's County voting on the question.

If a video lottery facility is authorized in Prince George's County, it must be located within a four-mile radius of the intersection of Bock Road and St. Barnabas Road, which encompasses both National Harbor and Rosecroft Raceway. A facility in Prince George's County may be allocated up to 3,000 video lottery terminals. Neither video lottery terminals nor table games may be operational in Prince George's County until the earlier of July 1, 2016, or 30 months after the video lottery facility in Baltimore City is open.

Upon the opening of a Prince George's County facility, a guaranteed additional allocation from video lottery terminal proceeds is provided to certain video lottery licensees for capital improvements and marketing and promotional costs.

Use of Gaming Proceeds

Chapter 1 adds expansion of public early childhood education programs to the permitted uses of gaming proceeds, including proceeds from table games if the referendum is approved statewide. Under current law, the primary purpose of video lottery terminals is to raise revenue for: (1) education for the children of the State in public schools (prekindergarten through grade 12); (2) public school construction and public school capital improvements; and (3) construction of capital projects at community colleges and public senior higher education institutions.

Additional Changes to State Gaming Laws

If the voters statewide approve this referendum, other changes to current law will take effect, including:

- Allowing a video lottery facility to operate 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Under current law, a video lottery facility may be open from 8 a.m. to 2 a.m., Sunday through Thursday, and 8 a.m. to 4 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.
- Altering the distribution of and required uses of video lottery terminal proceeds.
- Providing for the distribution of proceeds from the operation of table games.

GCMH EMPLOYEES SHOW SUPPORT – Garrett County Memorial Hospital recognized Breast Cancer Awareness Month last Friday. Many activities took place to help raise awareness of the disease. GCMH employees were encouraged to wear pink to show their support. Employees who wore pink received a pink cookie in the cafeteria. Pink gloves were distributed throughout the hospital for the staff to use through the week. A Dr. Oz breast cancer awareness quiz was available for the employees to complete. All employees who completed the quiz received a breast cancer awareness car magnet. Others may visit www.doctoroz.com to take the quiz and learn about reducing risk and increasing survival. A display in the hospital's main lobby featured digital vs. film mammograms, along with information on mammograms and breast cancer provided by Oakland MRI & Diagnostics. A display outside the hospital cafeteria featured information on breast cancer and giveaways for GCMH employees. The Loar Auxiliary Gift Shop also planned several activities for the day. Anyone who wore pink on Friday received 10 percent off any breast cancer awareness item. Customers who spent $10 or more received a breast cancer awareness tote bag. The Loar Auxiliary also sponsored a bead sale in the main lobby, promoting breast cancer awareness beads. The group also sponsored an awareness walk. Participants walked the indoor/outdoor walking trail and then received a breast cancer awareness item. Participants were entered into a drawing to win a Gift Shop gift card. The winner of the drawing was Linda Peterson. This month the hospital's Wellness Department is holding weekly exercise classes for the employees. A study found that even mild physical activity like walking can reduce risk for the disease.

First United Bank & Trust Offers Support To United Way Efforts

by Jessica Smith
FSU/United Way Intern

For the past 10 years, First United Bank & Trust has partnered with the United Way for its annual Pacesetters Campaign. This begins with a major golf tournament in July, which raises almost one-quarter of the goal for the United Way of Garrett County. The event requires many hours of work from the coordinating committee, as well as a long day of work during the tournament.

Campaign Pacesetters is a community-wide effort to lead the kick-off of the annual campaign with pledge commitments from loyal donors and supporters who set the pace for others to join in to meet the goal of the campaign for the United Way.

First United also conducts an employee campaign to raise additional monies for United Way.

"Our company matches 50 cents for every dollar donated by our employees, and we encourage our employees to consider a one dollar donation per pay through payroll deduction," said Philip Rodeheaver, market area president. "We offer an incentive, a drawing for a day off with pay, for those who increase their donation by at least one dollar, or begin donating with at least one dollar."

Offering many different ways to donate allows more employees to participate in the campaign.

Rodeheaver says that First United Bank & Trust continues to support the United Way in this campaign because "United Way is a great way to support the needs of people that live in the market areas served by First United. United Way contributions touch our employees, customers, family, and friends in all of the areas we serve."

First United supports the United Way in Allegany, Garrett, and Mineral counties, and also allows their employees to choose their county of choice to receive their donation, with 99 cents out of every dollar raised staying in the local community. It is significant to note that one out of every three people in the area are affected in some way by the money raised in this campaign.

According to Rodeheaver, First United Bank & Trust is "an outstanding corporate citizen and a conscientious community partner whose employees give of their time and talent to the United Way." He added that First United encourages its employees to be involved with other local charitable organizations.

"In addition to being a pacesetter, First United employees devote a lot of time throughout the year assisting with United Way initiatives, including serving on the local Executive Committee, Community Response (Allocations) Committee, and Golf Tournament Planning Committee, and providing a large number of employees who volunteered for prior Days of Caring and Sharing, and this year helping with the Garrett Art & Wine Festival that benefits the American Red Cross," he said.

First United plans to participate in the campaign again next year.

The United Way is a nonprofit organization that supports education, income, and healthy living initiatives for those in need so that individuals and families can become self-sufficient and lead productive lives.

Chamber To Offer Preview Of 2013 Trip To Ireland

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce will hold a preview of its 2013 trip to Ireland on Monday, Nov. 5, from 4 to 5 p.m. at the Visitors Center, located at 15 Visitors Center Drive in McHenry.

"Come and get your green on and enjoy some authentic Irish snacks while previewing sites and scenes of the upcoming Ireland tour," said a chamber spokesperson.

The trip is being organized by Chamber Discoveries, and a company representative will be available by conference call to answer questions.

Garrett County chamber members Tom Yusko and his family participated in the chamber's trip to Italy in November 2011.

"It was a wonderful trip – a trip of a lifetime," Yusko said. "The price was a great value, and I can't say enough about Chamber Discoveries and the top-notch tour guides, specifically the West Coast tour manager. It was convenient to be able to unpack once and return to the same hotel and it was very nice being able to meet other chamber members from other parts of the country."

The chamber invites the public to discover and explore scenic Ireland over St. Patrick's Day on this eight-day journey departing Dulles International Airport on March 13 for the village of Adare, County Limerick.

On this single hotel holiday, guests will be staying in the Dunraven Hotel and visiting numerous locations, including the Rock of Cashel, Kilkenney Castle, the Cliffs of Mohr, Galway Bay, Bunratty Folk Park, the St. Patrick's Day Parade in Limerick, Dingle Peninsula and Adare Manor, and Blarney Castle, where they can kiss the Blarney Stone.

The trip is highlighted by round-trip scheduled airfare, round-trip transfers between airports and hotels, personal airport VIP greeting and check-in service, hotel luggage handling, six nights at the Dunraven Hotel, three dinners (including one at the Bunratty Castle medieval banquet), and breakfast provided daily.

The price for the trip is $2,399 for chamber members and $2,549 for nonmembers, double occupancy. Those who make reservations and deposits by Nov. 30 receive a $100 discount.

For more information, to sign up for the trip, or to register for the trip preview, persons may contact Paula Thomas, membership development manager, at 301-387-5237 or paula@garrettchamber.com.

Chamber members can also register online for the trip preview by logging onto visitdeepcreek.com.

Martin O'Malley deeming Oct. 21-27 as Forest Products Week. "MY WHOLE STATE IS NOW GARRETT COUNTY," Gov. Martin O'Malley said this morning about his commitment to helping with the clean-up following the aftermath of Hurricane Sandy. The governor sat down with local mayors and other officials at the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad hall, where an emergency shelter has been set up, to assess the county's needs. Those included restoration of power, generators, and tree removal. See story. Left to right are Joseph Brocato, manager of the State Emergency Operations Center; O'Malley; Leo Martin, Mtn. Veterans Day Program To Be Held On Nov. 11; Guests Noted

The Proctor Kildow American Legion Post #71 will host a Veterans Day program on Sunday, Nov. 11, with a parade in downtown Oakland. This year's program will be different from those past, as the guest speakers will be members from the local Mountain Laurel Garden Club, District 5, Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland, and National Garden Clubs Inc.

The garden clubs will be dedicating a Blue Star By-Way Marker at the Veterans' Park in Oakland as part of the program on Nov. 11, starting at 1 p.m.

The Blue Star Memorial Program, an ongoing service project of the National Garden Clubs, began with the planting of 8,000 dogwood trees by the New Jersey Council of Garden Clubs in 1944 as a living memorial to veterans of World War II. In 1945, the National Council of State Garden Clubs (today the National Garden Clubs Inc.) adopted the program and began a Blue Star Highway system, which covers thousands of miles across the continental United States, Alaska, and Hawaii. A large metal Blue Star Memorial Highway marker was placed at appropriate locations along the way.

The program was expanded to include all men and women who had served, were serving, or would serve in the armed services of the United States. Memorial markers and by-way markers were added to the highway markers, to be used at locations such as national cemeteries, parks, veteran's facilities, and gardens.

The speakers for the program will be Linda Masland, president of Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland; Jackie Handley, first vice chairperson; Nickie Schwab, chairperson of the Blue Star Markers Program and second vice chairperson; and Ginny Decker, District 5 director.

The Southern Garrett Marching Band will also participate in the Sunday event.

The American Legion will also host its 81st annual Pig Roast on Nov. 9 starting at 7 p.m. Members' dues must be paid in order to attend the roast. The guest speaker this year will be J.D. Larson, department commander.

CitizenShale, Others Petition EPA To Make Fracking Chemistry Public

The Environmental Integrity Project (EIP), along with 16 other local, regional, and national organizations – including the local group CitizenShale – petitioned the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency last week to require the oil and gas extraction industry – including companies engaged in fracking – to report to the Toxics Release Inventory (TRI). The oil and gas extraction industry has long used and released large amounts of TRI-listed toxic chemicals, and this has dramatically increased in the last decade with the rapid spread of horizontal hydraulic fracturing (or "fracking").

The petition would finally make this information available for the first time to citizens, communities, and lawmakers. The full text of the petition is available online at: http://www.environmentalintegrity.org/news_reports.php.

Others joining EIP on the petition are the Natural Resources Defense Council, Chesapeake Climate Action Network, Clean Air Council, Clean Water Action, Delaware Riverkeeper Network, Earthworks, Elected Officials to Protect New York, Environmental Advocates of New York, Lower Susquehanna Riverkeeper, OMB Watch, PennEnvironment, Powder River Basin Resource Council, San Juan Citizens Council, Sierra Club, and Texas Campaign for the Environment.

"The Toxics Release Inventory brings daylight to dark corners, by requiring companies to quantify and report their pollution to a public data base for everyone to see," said Environmental Integrity Project director Eric Schaeffer. "That makes it easier for communities to measure the environmental impact of local industries, motivates companies to reduce their emissions, and gives all of us insight into how well our environmental laws are working. The EPA estimates the oil and gas industry releases 127,000 tons of hazardous air pollutants every year, second only to power plants and more than any of the other industries already reporting

Trick Or Treat Times Changed; Set For Saturday

Trick-or-Treat in the towns of Oakland, Mtn. Lake Park, and Loch Lynn was canceled last evening, Oct. 31, because of the dangerous weather conditions.

It will be held in those towns on Saturday, Nov. 3. In Oakland, the times are 5 to 7 p.m. In the other two towns, it will be from 5 to 6 p.m.

SOMETIMES THE ONLY WAY AROUND IS THROUGH – In order to get out of one's home in Garrett County this week, it is best to be armed with a chainsaw and shovel. Neither major arteries nor the small side roads throughout the county were spared from fallen debris in this smash-up between Hurricane Sandy and a northern cold front. Had the storm waited just a few more weeks, the damage would have been drastically reduced. As it was, the heavy snow piled onto the not-yet-fallen leaves, proving too much for the trees, which fell in the thousands, hitting houses, cars, garages, and other structures, and crossing roadways everywhere. The hardship for residents is becoming extreme, as power has been out in many areas since Monday, leaving up to 10,000 still with no heat, no water, no refrigeration, and often no phone service. Residents are asked to check on one another, especially the elderly and very young. Crews are working around the clock to restore power and clear roads. Photo by Becky Mellinger.

Hurricane Sandy Heads Inland;Thousands In GC Without Power; O'Malley Arrives To Assess Needs

More than 15,000 Potomac Edison customers in Garrett County are still without power this morning, according to First Energy. In Preston County, W.Va., more than 14,000 Mon Power customers have no electricity.

Outages began Monday evening when high winds from hurricane Sandy collided with a major cold front from the northwest, bringing more than two feet inches of wet, heavy snow in some areas, particularly in the southern end of Garrett County, by Wednesday morning. As of this morning, Thursday, some areas are reporting nearly three feet of snow, following more accumulations on yesterday and last night.

This morning, Gov. Martin O'Malley toured the devastation, met with local officials, and stopped by the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad hall, where an emergency shelter has been established.

"My whole state now is Garrett County," O'Malley said. "We will do whatever it take to get you all back up on your feet."

He spoke with mayors from seven of the county's eight municipalities, the county commissioners, Duane Yoder of Community Action, Del. Wendell Beitzel, and Sen. George Edwards. O'Malley asked them what their needs were and what the state could do to help. The general consensus was the need for restoration of power and for generators for senior housing units and water treatment plants, as well as the removal of downed trees and power lines.

The governor indicated generators and help with cutting trees were forthcoming. He noted that First Energy conducted a flyover of the power lines yesterday and was assessing the situation.

State Emergency Operations Center manager Joseph V. Brocato, who attended the governor's meeting, is mapping the county and is identifying the roads that are blocked by trees.

Edwards asked the gover-

Today's Issue...

The weather situation in Garrett County, a winter storm bringing more than two feet of snow in late October, causing widespread property damage, tree destruction, and power outages, has presented some unprecedented obstacles in the path of all those attempting to carry on with family life, school, and business. The Republican newspaper office was not spared these obstacles, and publishing today's issue of the newspaper was a difficult task. Despite a power outage and half the staff snowbound in their homes, it was deemed necessary and vitally important to publish today. The Garrett County community is in need of information and updates, and will also possibly benefit from some sense of normalcy – being able to get a paper – in this week of struggles and frustration.

It is important to note, however, that although the staff was indeed able to produce a newspaper today, regular readers will see some differences from the usual, such as the classified advertisements being included in the A section. There also may be missing reports and/or errors, simply as a result of the obstacles already noted. It is hoped that next week's issue will be more complete, and back to the standard format. We also have many more storm photographs to use next week.

Residents of Garrett County are experiencing possibly unprecedented hardships from this storm. The staff of The Republican newspaper commends those working so hard to repair the power lines, clear the roadways, and check on the elderly and infirm, trapped in homes with no heat, power, or water. We are with you, and wish a rapid recovery to all.

Don't forget to turn clocks back one hour this Saturday night for Daylight Savings!

CASSELMAN BRIDGE REPAIR UNDER WAY – Crews from Brayman Construction in Saxonburg, Pa., began repair work on the historic Casselman Bridge in Grantsville on Oct. 1. Currently, work is focused on using a drill rig to drive piles to support the subgrade under the bridge deck. The contract for the work was awarded to Brayman by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources. According to Jordan Loran of the DNR, the northwest wing-wall of the bridge was reported to have collapsed on Feb. 29. "The bridge was closed to the public, and we had it inspected by an engineering firm," he said. "The result was that the arch and bridge were stable, but should remain closed until repaired." The project includes the installation of a series of micropiles for stabilization and the rebuilding of the outer stone veneer. Weather permitting, work is expected to be complete by the end of the year. Photo by Lisa Broadwater.

THE LANDSCAPE HAS CHANGED in Garrett County, most definitely, as a result of the colliding of two storm systems this week – Hurricane Sandy and a northern cold front. The two together brought heavy snow, up to 30 inches in some areas, and wind to the mountaintop, devastating thousands and thousands of trees, such as in the photo above, taken by Lisa Rook along Third Street Extended, just south of the town of Oakland. The area is decidedly different, as so many trees, many of them long-standing and familiar, now lie on the ground. The clean-up has only just started, with surely many weeks of repairs ahead.

PREPARATIONS UNDER WAY FOR FESTIVAL OF TREES – Jeannie Bailey and Kris Yusko of the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland are busy in Jeannie's workroom designing one of the two entries to be donated to the fifth annual Festival of Trees, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Nov. 23 and 24, at the Exhibit Hall, located on the fairgrounds in McHenry. Proceeds benefit the Dove Center, a resource center for victims of domestic violence and sexual assault. Jeannie and Kris's entries are titled "Olde World Charm," inspired by Kris's memories of her childhood in Germany. Her father handmade all the tree ornaments, and the children were not allowed to see it until Christmas Eve. Jeannie won Best of Show and first prize for her wreath entries in last year's festival. This year she will donate again, as well as be one of 40 vendors at the event. Many designers are working against a deadline to have their trees, wreaths, centerpieces, and gingerbread houses ready to donate to the festival. They are individuals, organizations and business people, all hoping to win a ribbon for their entries. All the designer entries will be auctioned at the 6 p.m. live auction on Saturday. There is also a silent auction Friday and Saturday, with donations from individuals, organizations and business people. The silent auction closes at 5 p.m. on Saturday before the live auction begins. Those items are not available at the live auction. Free entertainment will be offered on Friday. Jessica's Creations will be on the stage at 1 p.m. From 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. there will be a robotics demonstration that the children can participate in "hands on." Also free with admission will be Frosty's Funland with crafts and balloons and Santa's Bakery, where children can decorate their own cookies. Friday and Saturday mornings will feature Breakfast with Santa. Each day offers a 9 a.m. or a 10 a.m. seating for a full pancake breakfast. The $10 special ticket includes admission, a gift, and a free photo with Santa in his sleigh. "Reservations are appreciated, and you can contact Sherry at 301-746-8117 or sherbrad@verizon.net," said a spokesperson. "You can also go to fotgc.com and use PayPal. Parents and children are also invited to shop in the festival's Elfenheim Mall, where gifts for family and friends can be purchased for $1 per item.

Yay Or Nay?...

It could be that more Maryland voters will turn out at the polls next Tuesday not so much to cast votes in the presidential, congressional, and senatorial races, but to vote for or against four controversial questions (among a total of seven) that were petitioned to referendum.

Question 4, known as the Dream Act, would make individuals – including undocumented immigrants – meeting certain conditions eligible to pay in-state tuition rates at community colleges in Maryland, and upon meeting certain criteria there, also qualifying for in-state tuition at four-year colleges/universities. The knee-jerk reaction to this has been negative, as many believe that illegal aliens should not have this right.

However, allowing undocumented immigrants who were brought as children to the United States to attend state universities as residents will position them much better to become productive members of society. They will be eligible only if they get good grades in high school, and then they must complete at least 60 credit hours in a community college in order to receive the tuition break for their third and fourth years of college. They also must meet certain conditions relating to attendance and graduation from a Maryland high school, filing of income taxes, intent to apply for permanent residency, and registration with the selective service system (if required). Immigrants in general have shown to have good to excellent records of achievement in education, and it makes sense to try to keep successful college grads, regardless of where they were born, in Maryland.

A vote against Question 5 would repeal the new boundaries for Maryland's eight U.S. congressional districts. The restructuring of District 6, which includes Garrett County, was clearly little more than a political move by Democrats to swing the majority of the district's citizens from Republican to Democrat. The new boundaries lumps together citizens of distant communities with totally different needs. This is known as gerrymandering, which should be rejected, regardless of which party is responsible.

The most controversial question on the ballot is #6, titled the Civil Marriage Protection Act, which was passed by the state legislature this year and allows gay and lesbian couples to obtain a civil marriage license. Regardless of one's personal/religious views on such unions, this is a question of equal rights, and gay couples are absolutely entitled to the same rights as those of their heterosexual counterparts. Maryland's expansion of marriage equality will not affect religious institutions, because protections were specifically written into the bill. A vote upholding the law will also send a message to gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender teens in the state that they, too, are full members of society.

Question 7 is the Gaming Expansion Referendum, which allows for the expansion of commercial gaming in Maryland, supposedly for the purpose of raising revenue for education. Generating more funds for education is always a worthy endeavor; however, there is doubt as to just how much gambling revenue will ultimately be spent for that purpose. There are also a number of exclusive, significant economic advantages being offered to casino owners (e.g., tax breaks) that the rest of the state's business owners can only dream about. Finally, one must always consider the various adverse social consequences associated with gambling. With all of this in mind, a no vote on Question 7 seems prudent.

To the Editor:

A crucial meeting in Oakland on November 14 will offer a chance for Garrett County residents to voice support for restoring the economic engine of our region. Maryland DNR Secretary John Griffin will present a "state of the lake" report summarizing the challenges of aging and degradation facing Deep Creek Lake. Thanks to an excellent recent series of special reports in The Republican, we better appreciate the links between the health of the lake and Garrett County's continued prosperity. The Republican's September 27 editorial about an interview with Secretary Griffin offers glimpses into the report and responses the secretary may propose.

As one who has witnessed the lake's worsening problems in recent decades, I'll be interested to learn why the secretary still feels the lake – as he said in that interview – is "not in serious trouble." The lake's daunting problems and the inability or unwillingness of current lake management to address them suggest otherwise.

The state of the lake report will confirm that spreading invasive aquatic plants and sedimentation in the coves are "threatening problems." The secretary will acknowledge that the costs of addressing these problems are monumental, and that the state of Maryland, which owns the lake, will not devote resources to addressing them.

The state claims there are no funds to restore the lake, despite the various taxes and fees it collects from lake users and property owners. Instead, the secretary believes lake property owners should pay more to restore this public resource.

In fairness to the state, responsibility for sediment flowing into the lake from surrounding streams rests with Garrett County, whose regulations are obviously insufficient to stem the problem. The county, which also gains many millions of property and business tax dollars from the lake economy each year, reinvests almost nothing in protecting or restoring the source of local prosperity. Lake degradation hurts property values and tourist appeal, threatening state and county revenues.

As Secretary Griffin has stated, a watershed management approach is essential for protecting and restoring the lake. Yet in the current, fragmented system, agencies have revenue authority but no management responsibility or accountability for the lake's well-being. That arrangement makes integrated watershed management – a norm in other areas – a painful tease for Garrett County. In this situation, the apparent complacency and inaction of lake managers at many levels is tough to understand or justify.

To the Editor:

I thought with the election right around the corner it would be a good time to talk about the candidate I feel has this one in the bag. He is ethically sound, highly intelligent, and his moral compass never strays far from north. I am of course talking about my personal hero, Mitt Romney.

When Mitt needed money to fund the start-up of Bain Capital and couldn't find equity here at home, what did he do? What any natural patriot would – found South American investors tied to death squads to give him some dough. When companies with thousands of employees weren't making Mitt rich, he took the high road. He forced them into bankruptcy, making sure thousands lost their jobs and his coffers got filled. When tens of thousands of young Americans were mindlessly being sent to Vietnam against their will, how did Mitt stand up for America? He protested in favor of the war and draft while he received four deferments living in a mansion in France.

When Detroit was poised to go bankrupt, how did Mitt stand up for the American worker? By suggesting that GM go under, leaving thousands with the devastation of being unemployed. When Mitt was a young man attending school with a homosexual student, how did the open-minded and compassionate Mitt make him feel acceptance? He held him down and cut his hair while others mocked him.

Just recently at a private $50-k per plate fundraiser, Mitt, in front of dozens of millionaires, stood up for the American worker. He reminded us lowly peons that 47% of us are dependent on government handouts. He reminded stay-at-home moms that they lack the dignity to work, even though his own wonderfully forgiving wife was a stay-at-home mom. Like Ann Romney herself said, "Just trust Mitt."

What has that socialist Obama done? Repeal Don't Ask, Don't Tell and make sure everyone has a functioning and affordable health care system. Oh, and he lowered taxes for small business and the middle class at the same time. What a give, give, give philosophy! Then he ended the Iraq war. Does the man lack a spine? After that he pretended to kill Osama Bin Laden – where is the body? Why didn't they hang him Texas-style and record it with a cell phone? Where are his college transcripts and how did he forge that obviously fake birth certificate?

Yes, it is time that a God-fearing patriot takes the oval office. I can't think of a candidate the middle class can better relate to than Mitt Romney!

To the Editor:

Because of the Depression, my mom and dad were forced to quit school and go to work at ages 14 and 16, respectively. After I went to school, my mom returned to work. They worked, raised their family, cared for my grandmother, paid all taxes required of them, and received no government assistance.

After becoming a widow at age 70, my mom continued to work part-time into her 80s. In her later years, she paid no federal income tax while living on her savings and an incredible $12,000 per year annual Social Security benefit.

It is insulting for Mitt Romney to suggest, in any context, that senior citizens like my mom "believe that they are victims, who believe the government has a responsibility to care for them" and whom you'll never convince that "they should take personal responsibility and care for their lives."

I'm not part of the 47%, but Barack Obama will get my vote. Apparently, from Mitt Romney's perspective, it's okay for large corporations to pay little or no federal income tax, but it's not okay for my mom and others like her.

nor to cut through the Department of Natural Resources' red tape for help in removing trees.

The governor concluded the half hour meeting with officials, stating, "Let's focus on what we can do now, instead of what we haven't done before."

Weather conditions began deteriorating Monday afternoon as steady rain turned into large wet flakes of snow. At 3 p.m. that day, the Maryland State Highway Administration (SHA), state police, and Transportation Authority lowered speed limits on all interstate and U.S. routes to 45 mph, and urged the public to stay off the roads as the "unprecedented storm" struck Maryland.

"With the loss of power, not only will signals not be operating, but overhead lighting will be dark and pedestrian signals will not operate," SHA administrator Melinda B. Peters said Monday. "Staying off Maryland roadways tonight is the responsible thing to do. It also allows crews to respond to emergencies."

More than 1,200 SHA crews began responding to flooding, snow, and felled trees across the state. Crews in Garrett County began working around the clock, plowing and applying salt as needed.

Snow fell at the rate of two inches an hour in the local area on Monday. The Keysers Ridge SHA garage reported seven inches of snow at 11:30 p.m. I-68 was closed west of Cumberland in both directions as well as Md. 495, U.S. 40, and Md. 42, because of blizzard conditions. Prior to that, Peters reported, traffic was stopped on I-68 for some time while disabled vehicles were removed from the highway. Both lanes were open by noon on Tuesday.

Other major highways were open by Tuesday afternoon, but SHA cautioned drivers to be aware of falling trees and power lines on their journeys.

Garrett County Roads Department crews have also been working around the clock, taking breaks only as needed to rest and attend to problems at home, general roads superintendent Jay Moyer said yesterday. Snow plow operators, however, have been impeded by downed power lines. For safety reasons, when county workers encounter a line they must wait until a power company crew arrives on the scene to de-engergize the line before proceeding any further.

"We're trying to coordinate our efforts with power companies, as they bring in many crews from other areas," he noted.

Moyer said major county arteries such as New Germany, Glendale, and Sand Flat roads are passable.

"But secondary roads are horrendous," he noted. "Most are only partially open, one lane or less."

Moyer said SHA sent crews yesterday to assist the county's Grantsville Roads Garage. The Allegany County Roads Department is assisting the Accident Roads Garage in its efforts. In addition, a group of Mennonite men volunteered to work in the Accident area, clearing trees with chain saws. National Guard units have been deployed to assist in that effort.

Hopefully, Moyer said, SHA and National Guard units will be able to help out the Oakland area later. He noted that the county has not asked for much assistance from the state, as there is much that it has to deal with right now. He indicated that Brad Frantz, emergency management coordinator, is working with numerous agencies to arrange assistance.

With regard to downed lines and tree, Moyer said, this is probably the worst storm to hit the county since the winter of 1974-75.

He asked for residents' patience and understanding during this difficult situation.

"It's just going to take time – a lot of time," he said about clearing roads.

When power was lost and a back-up generator failed Monday evening, about 100 residents of Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home, Oakland, were evacuated to the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad hall in Mtn. Lake Park. The residents were taken back to the facility Tuesday night after power was restored, according to a Garrett County Department of Public Safety and Emergency Services spokesman.

The department and other agencies implemented the Garrett County Multi-Hazard Mitigation Plan on Monday at about noon. The plan was developed previously to prevent or reduce loss of life and injury and to limit future damage costs by developing methods to mitigate or eliminate damage from various hazards.

In addition to the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad hall, emergency shelters have been set up at Friendsville and the Deer Park volunteer fire departments. Although the Deer Park hall is open, it is recommended that persons now go to the Southern Squad hall since Dennett Road Manor residents are now back at their facility and space is available.

Deep Creek Baptist Church and the New Beginnings Church in Oakland have also set up emergency shelters.

The Oakland Nursing and Rehab Center has offered its facility as a warming station. People cannot spend the night, but may stop by for coffee and a chance to get warm, a spokesperson noted.

The American Legion Post in Oakland is providing free meals to emergency workers.

The Department of Public Utilities is asking its customers to conserve water until further notice, especially those in Mtn. Lake Park, Loch Lynn, and Gorman.

Garrett County schools were closed on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and will be closed for the rest of the week.

Likewise, Garrett County government offices were closed on Tuesday and Wednesday, and are also closed today, Thursday, Nov. 1, and tomorrow, Friday, Nov. 2. Administrative leave is in effect for all nonemergency personnel.

Early voting in Maryland was canceled on Monday and Tuesday. Gov. Martin O'Malley signed an executive order on Tuesday to resume early voting on Wednesday, extending it to Friday, Nov. 2, and extending the hours for every remaining day. Thursday and Friday voting hours are 8 a.m. to 9 p.m.

"Anyone standing in line at an early voting location by 9 p.m. will be guaranteed the right to cast a ballot," the governor said Tuesday afternoon. "You came together during this storm to protect your family and ensure the safety of your neighbors. Now, in these last remaining hours, we need you to stand up and take action by casting your ballot in this critically important election."

Garrett County's early voting site is the Oakland Community Center and will be open today and Friday.

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce is the official management entity for the heritage area and also serves as the destination marketing organization for the county. The Garrett County heritage director, Dawn Hein, administers the Heritage Area Program and works with a 15 member Heritage Area Advisory Board (HAAB) that assists with the administration of the Heritage Area Management Plan.

"The chamber, in cooperation with the HAAB, strives to offer to stakeholders and partners technical and financial assistance for heritage related initiatives that preserve valuable heritage resources and enhance tourism in the county," Hein said.

This is the first year for the Mini-Grant Program, which aims to contribute to interpretation, promotion, and preservation of the county's historical, cultural, and natural resources in an effort to encourage heritage tourism to the area.

METER CONTEST RAISES FUNDS FOR MUSEUM – Oakland's parking meter decorating contest recently concluded. Proceeds from the fundraiser will benefit the Oakland B&O Railroad Museum. The contest was coordinated by Lessa Towles, Greater Oakland Business Association Design Committee, and Michelle Ross, Oakland business coordinator, in conjunction with the town. "We had roughly 25 meters that were decorated, and all together we raised $876.89," Ross said. "The town of Oakland graciously donated half of the proceeds from the parking meters to the contest." Nola's Salon was the contest winner, raising $176.20 between what they collected in the shop and in the meter. Towles presented a check from the town to museum committee member/former Oakland mayor Asa McCain during the committee's meeting last Wednesday.

Cindy Downton Running For Seat On Board Of Ed.

Cindy Downton of Grantsville has announced her candidacy for Garrett County Board of Education.

"Thirty years ago, when I was working on my teacher's certification in special education at California State College (now California University), I traveled to visit my parents who lived in Delaware." Downton said. "While driving on Route 40, we often stopped at the White Coffee Pot in LaVale because it was open all night. Little did I know then that I was driving past the house where I would live for 32 years, and through the county where I would spend most of my career as an educator."

Downton came to Garrett County shortly after the passage of IDEA (Individuals with Disabilities Education Act), and began teaching special education at Southern Middle School. She helped to start the first alternative program at Southern High School. Later, she worked in the first county program for students with emotional impairments.

"I continued to work with children with challenging behaviors and learning difficulties," she said. "This was when I developed my philosophy that there are no 'bad' children, just kids who make poor decisions."

Downton has worked in the Pupil Services Department in Allegany County for the last seven years.

"I saw this as a chance to work with more diverse populations and improve my skills as a pupil personnel worker," she said. "I started at Allegany High School in Cumberland, then moved to Mountain Ridge High School and Mount Savage (K-8). I have learned a great deal about working with students who come from challenging home lives. This job also gives me the opportunity to network with many community agencies in an effort to provide services to my students and their families. Graduation day remains our 'best day' as we watch students who could have given up many times along the way joyfully accept their high school diplomas."

Downton was appointed to a position on the Garrrett County Board of Education by the commissioners two years ago. She noted that she has gained a new appreciation for the responsibility of leadership in that role.

"These two years have found us with declining enrollment, decreased state funding, and the need to work together under a much leaner budget," she said. "Only through the coordinated efforts of the county government, administrators, teachers, and parents have we been able to work together to maintain the high quality of education in our county."

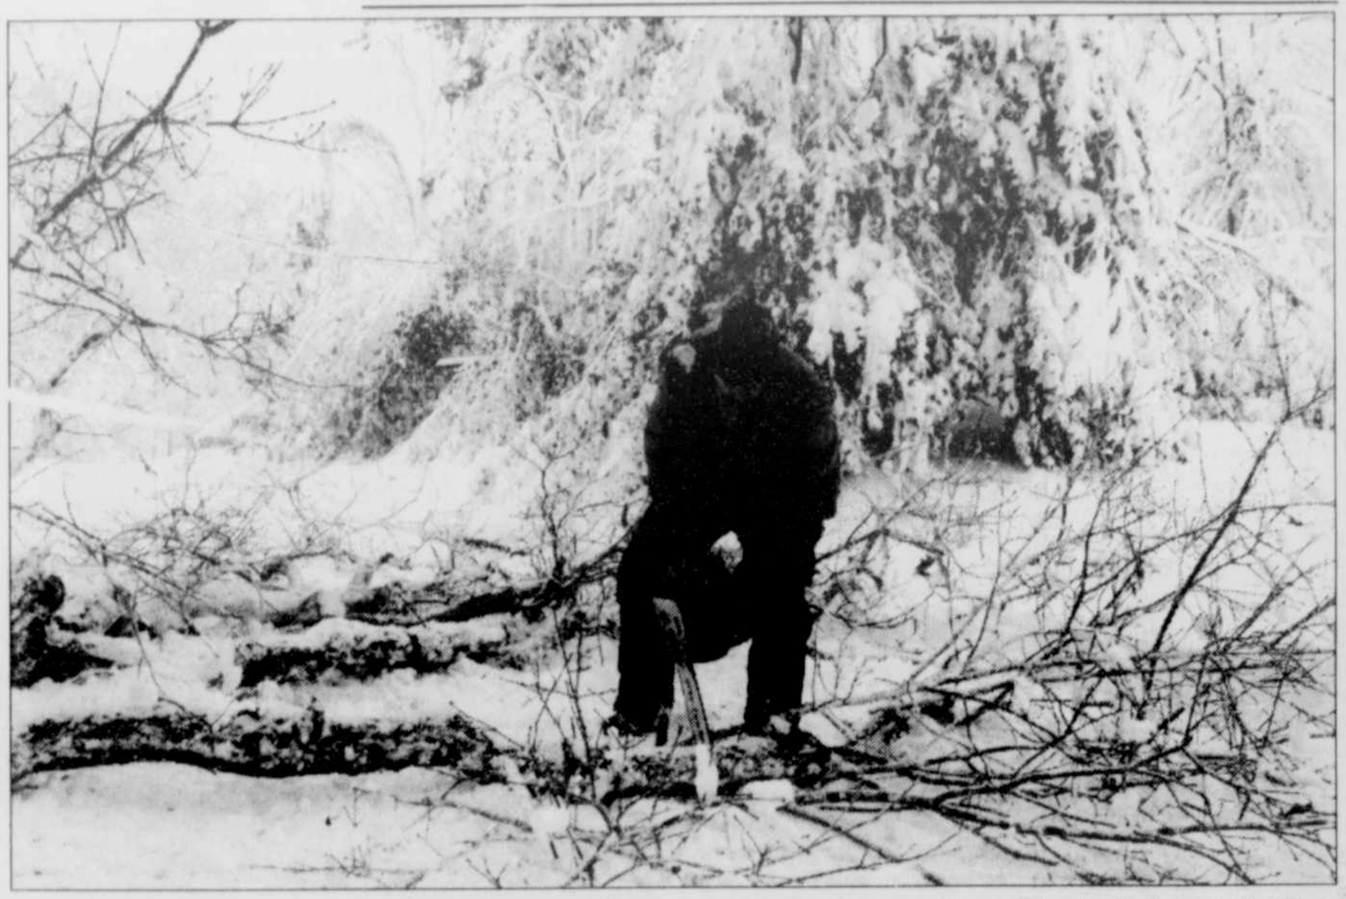
Downton has attended the state Maryland Association of Boards of Education Conference for two years, and has traveled to Annapolis to try to get increased funding for the county. She has served as an alternate member on the ACE Committee, served on the Calendar Committee, and attended many Success Nights, JROTC, Arts Fair, and local school-sponsored activities.

"I am so proud of our students who consistently score above state averages on assessments and exceed state standards for attendance and graduation rates," she said. "I am also proud of our teachers who have worked so hard to make our students successful. I am extremely honored that the Garrett County Education Association has endorsed my candidacy. The next four years will see us continue on this challenging road to implement Common Core Standards and meet the requirements of Race to the Top. I would like to use my knowledge of the educational system of Garrett County to help the Board of Education continue to support our students, parents, and teachers through this process."

Benefit Slated At Grantsville Legion Hall

A benefit event will be held at the Grantsville American Legion hall on Friday, Nov. 9, with all proceeds helping to defray medical costs of Donna (Broadwater) Beachy, who will soon be a surgical patient at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

The evening will include an auction, raffles, music, and other activities, all beginning at 8 p.m. There will be a cover charge of $5 per person.



VERY COMMON SIGHTS – Sore arms and worn down chainsaws are common across Garrett County today, as residents work hard to saw up the millions of fallen limbs and shovel the heavy, compact snow blanketing the entire mountaintop. Pat Hudnall is shown above as he works on fallen trees in a neighbor's yard. Hudnall apparently went to several homes armed with his chainsaw to help out. In the photo below, a First Street resident in Oakland shovels out the car. "It's better than sitting in the house with nothing to do," he said. Literally hundreds of thousands of trees have been damaged in this storm, having either fallen completely, or sustained major breakage. Schools are closed for the entire week, with some still out of power today, including Accident Elementary, Northern Middle, and Northern High schools. At one point, more than 18,000 households and businesses were without power. At press time today, the number was just over 15,000. Photos by John McEwen.

MOST WANTED* – Pictured are the current Most Wanted persons who are being sought by local law enforcement officials, as submitted by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. From left are: George Andrew Romesburg, 50, Montgomery County, bench warrant/non-support; Jonathan Lockwood Rowland, 25, Morgantown, W.Va., arrest warrant/CDS; and Angela Yvonne Shafer, 44, Mtn. Lake Park, body attachment/failure to appear. Anyone with information on the whereabouts of any of these persons is asked to call 301-334-1911 or go online to garrettcountycrimesolvers.org and leave an anonymous tip.

Garrett County SKIES

By Dr. Bob Doyle
Frostburg State Planetarium

NOVEMBER SUN AND MOON – As November begins, the sun appears in front of the stars of Libra, appearing to drift a degree a day eastward relative to the stars. The sun moves into the star group Scorpius in the early evening of Nov. 22, where it stays until Nov. 29. The sun then slips into Ophiuchus, staying there until mid December. (These dates correspond to the actual star group boundaries, not the dates of the Astrological signs.) The star group Sagittarius can be seen low in the southwestern dusk. Other prominent evening zodiac groups in November are Capricornus, Aries, and Taurus. On the other side of the sun is the star group Virgo, appearing in the eastern dawn sky. Other prominent zodiac groups at dawn are Leo, Gemini, and Taurus. In early November, sunrises in Oakland are about 7:45 a.m. (Daylight Time), while sunsets are about 6:15 p.m. (10.5 hours of daylight). On Nov. 4, we return to Standard Time, causing sunrises and sunsets to be an hour earlier. Around the end of November, Oakland's sunrises are about 7:15 a.m., and sunsets occur about 4:57 p.m. (about 10 hours of daylight). So during November, the brighter stars are last seen around 6:15 a.m. Standard time (early dawn) and then reappear about 6 p.m. Standard Time (late dusk).

Because of the Hunters' Moon on Oct. 29, there will be evening moonlight in early November. On Nov. 1, the moon will appear near the very bright planet Jupiter. In early November, the moon rises nearly an hour later each night. On Nov. 5, the moon is rising just before midnight; you can more easily view the half full moon in the southern dawn. On Nov. 11, a slender crescent moon will be seen to the right of the brilliant planet Venus in the 6 a.m. southeastern sky. The next morning will be the last time to see a very slender crescent moon in the southeastern dawn. On Nov. 13, the moon swings from the morning to the evening side of the sun. On the evening of Nov. 15, a very slender crescent moon may be seen low in the 5:45 p.m. southwestern dusk. To the left of the moon will be the planet Mars. On the evening of Nov. 20, the moon appears half full (first quarter) in the southwestern dusk. Around this time of month, the moon's craters are at their best through binoculars or a small telescope. The moon will grow to full on the evening of Nov. 27. On the next evening, the moon will appear to the South of the planet Jupiter. There will be plenty of evening moonlight through the end of November.

NOVEMBER PLANETS – The five nearest planets are easily seen by eye during a year, four of them shining steadily in contrast to the twinkling stars. (Mercury, only seen close to the horizon, may flicker.) Mars can be seen very low in the southwestern dusk. The very bright planet Jupiter is prominent in the East in the late evening hours. Venus rises about two hours before the sun and dominates the eastern dawn. On the mornings of Nov. 28 and 29, Venus passes to the south of the planet Saturn. Saturn is dim in comparison with Venus. In late November, the planet Mercury can be seen very low in the southeastern dawn, rising 90 minutes ahead of the sun. Mercury will appear below and to the left of Venus.

NOVEMBER EVENING STARS – The Big Dipper is very low in the North. The star group Cassiopeia, resembling a stretched out letter "M" is high in the North. The brightest evening star is Vega, seen in the Northwest. In the Northeast is the bright golden star Capella. As the hours pass, Vega drops lower and Capella gets higher. Late in the evening, the star group Orion with his three star belt can be seen low in the East.

NOVEMBER PROGRAMS – The November presentation in Compton 224, offered on Sundays at 4 p.m. is titled "Mammals of Asia," which will be followed by a tour of the Science Discovery Center. The talk (by Dr. Doyle) lasts about ½ hour, with a follow-up tour of the Cavallaro Collection, a unique gathering of preserved animals from five continents. There will be no talk on Nov. 25. To receive a schedule (or bookmark), may telephone 301-687-7799 and give their names and mailing addresses. This bookmark includes a small FSU map showing the Compton building and the nearby parking areas. These presentations/tours are free to the public.

Dr. Doyle writes this column for those who like to identify the brightest stars, planets, and sights in their backyards.

PROUDLY SERVING OUR COMMUNITY AND REGION SINCE 1971

THE DANGERS OF DRINKING AND DRIVING were brought home to Garrett College students at a recent simulation and other events held during National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week. In the photo above, fire department personnel, paramedics, and sheriff's deputies are pictured as they combine efforts to extract the "victim" from the wreckage using the Jaws of Life power tool. The staged car wreck was designed to demonstrate the very possible results of driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs. In the photo below, GC student Maria Bender is pictured donning the Fatal Vision goggles, which simulate the changes in vision and depth perception resulting from elevated blood alcohol levels. The student was assisted by GC counselor Madonna Pool, left, and Tracy Barcus, GC residence hall coordinator, at right, while attempting to walk in a straight line, ride a scooter, and successfully shoot a basketball. See story for more details.

Danger Of Alcohol Abuse Brought Into Focus At Garrett

In recognition of National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week, a number of educational events were held at Garrett College as part of a series of campus-wide educational programs. Coordinated through the GC Office of Campus Security, these activities provided information on the risks of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Among the activities for students was the use of the "Fatal Vision Goggles," eye wear developed to simulate the effects of various blood alcohol levels. Wearing the goggles, a student would attempt to walk and ride a scooter along a straight line and attempt to throw a basketball in a specific manner in order to experience the levels of impairment to vision, balance, and depth perception, among other problems.

Members of the Garrett County Public Safety Committee mounted demonstrations and talked with students about the legal ramifications as well as the physical damages that can result from driving while impaired. Using a wrecked car with a "victim" trapped inside, emergency personnel demonstrated the use of the Jaws of Life for extricating a person from a vehicle following a crash.

Deputy 1st Class John Frank from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office was one of the volunteers who helped with the demonstration and addressed the students present.

"We do these demonstrations to help educate people to make good decisions in life," Frank said. "One bad decision can be a life altering event. We hope that the demonstration helps to make it clear that accidents like this could happen to anyone."

Wayne Tiemersma, Garrett County public safety paramedic, spoke to the students about the life-threatening risks of alcohol when combined with driving.

"Accidents involving drinking and driving are very common in Garrett County. Our message in doing these demonstrations is that accidents do happen and they are preventable with using good judgment," Tiemersma said. He added that the group seemed to enjoy coming to the Garrett College campus and that the students appeared very interested.

"I think they left today with the realization that they are vulnerable," he concluded.

Clinton Maust, a juvenile justice major from Bittinger, watched the demonstrations and commented on the team efforts involved in the rescue.

"It was cool seeing how law enforcement, EMS, and fire and rescue all work together," Maust said. "I never saw the Jaws of Life work before. Even though this demonstration wasn't real, I thought it was very alarming and will make me think twice before drinking and driving."

Austin Sisler of Oakland, also majoring in juvenile justice, noted the synchronization of the response team as well.

"This was a great experience. I enjoyed seeing how everyone works together. It was interesting to see how the officer interacted with the driver under the influence and how the EMT worked to get the wounded individual out of the car," Sisler said. "This made me think about how severely dangerous drinking and driving can be."

Shelley Menear, GC director of security, spearheaded the coordination of the activities for the week. She said she was grateful for all the support from the community.

"We appreciate Garrett County Public Safety Committee members for volunteering their time and services to help educate our campus community," Menear said. "We hope that individuals walked away today with a good understanding about the consequences of drinking and driving. Having the visual demonstration helps make it appear more 'realistic' for our students. We would also like to thank Ours Auto and Salvage for donating the vehicle for the demonstration."

GC Paramedic Program Achieves Nat'l Accreditation

The Garrett College Emergency Medical Technician-Paramedic program recently earned initial accreditation by the Commission on Accreditation of Allied Health Education Programs (CAAHEP) (www.caahep.org). Correspondence received at the college stated that in September, the CAAHEP board of directors voted to award initial accreditation to Garrett College along with 12 other paramedic programs nationwide.

The recent peer review conducted by the Committee on Accreditation of Educational Programs for the Emergency Medical Services Professions (CoA EMSP) and CAAHEP's board of directors recognized the program's substantial compliance with the nationally established accreditation standards. The initial accreditation status will expire on September 30, 2017.

"The commission commends you and your colleagues for your commitment to continuous quality improvement in education, as demonstrated by your participation in program accreditation," the accreditation letter stated.

In addition to this newly achieved accreditation, the Garrett College EMT Paramedic Program, offered through the GC Continuing Education and Workforce Development (CEWD) Division, is also approved as a Maryland Advanced Life Support (ALS) Educational Program by the Maryland Emergency Medical Services Board.

Jean Tressler, Garrett College coordinator for EMS training, was actively involved in the national accreditation process.

"The process of applying for and obtaining accreditation of our paramedic training program has been a long journey, but the end result makes it all worth it," Tressler said. "All of us at the college would like to express our appreciation to the students, instructors, preceptors, employers, rescue squads, fire departments, and all other interested individuals for their help in making this happen, and we look forward to their continued involvement and support. Special thanks go out to Doug Beitzel, our ALS program coordinator, and Jim Koon, our ALS program director. Their contributions to the process were critical to the successful outcome."

The Garrett College training program for emergency service personnel serves Garrett and Allegany counties. As Tressler pointed out, many of the service providers trained at Garrett also serve communities in nearby Pennsylvania and West Virginia because they often respond to emergency situations in those areas.

"This is a tremendous achievement for our paramedic program and Garrett College. We are committed to providing our community

"The team has a very ambitious time line for completing the plan by April 2013, but I believe that we are making good progress," MacLennan said. "We are fortunate to have Mike Tumbarello, director of the Garrett Information Enterprise Center, to assist in coordinating our planning efforts. He has a wealth of knowledge and experience which we are finding to be invaluable to our planning process." State Continues To Make Progress On Graduation

Maryland students are receiving diplomas at the highest rate in recent history, according to data released yesterday by the Maryland State Department of Education.

Maryland last year moved to the cohort graduation rate, which follows a set group of students from freshman year through their senior year, better tracking their progress. The four-year cohort graduation rate jumped nearly a full percentage point between 2010 and 2011, from 81.97 to 82.82 percent. The five-year cohort graduation rate – those students completing their diploma in five years – improved from 84.57 to 85.51.

Four-year cohort data for 2012 will be available next year, after summer data is finalized.

"The more you learn, the more you earn, and improving high school graduation rates in our state is critical to building a highly skilled and competitive workforce," said Governor Martin O'Malley. "Together, we can create a stronger economy and a better future for our children."

State superintendent of schools Lillian M. Lowery agreed, noting that a high school diploma represents the first step in gaining the requisite preparation for a student's next step, be it workforce or college.

"The data offer good news, but there remain too many students who leave our classrooms prior to graduation," Dr. Lowery said. "That must continue to change."

Data disaggregated by student subgroup finds some mixed success. Four-year cohort graduation rates for African American, Asian, and white students improved between 2010 and 2011, with African American graduation rising the most of any subgroup – more than two full percentage points, from 74.02 percent to 76.09 percent.

At the same time, the four-year cohort graduation rate for Hispanic students fell, from 73.44 to 71.77 percent. The graduation rate for students of two or more races also fell, from 93.42 percent to 91.17 percent, but that rate ranked second only to the Asian graduation rate of 93.1 percent.

Among students receiving special services, the four-year cohort graduation rate rose nearly two points for special education students, was relatively flat for students receiving free- or reduced-price meals, and fell nearly two points for English language learners. Many special education and English language learners attend school an additional year to gain skills necessary for the workforce or higher education.

The 2011-2012 senior class was the fourth one for whom passing the High School Assessments (HSAs) in algebra/data analysis, biology, and English was a graduation requirement. An exam in government stopped being administered last year, but action by the General Assembly in the spring means that the exam returns in the 2012-2013 school year. Government will be a graduation requirement for those students who enter ninth grade in 2013-2014 and beyond.

Early data for 2012 found that nearly 60,000 students completed high school in 2011-12 – 58,792 receiving diplomas and 816 receiving special education certificates. Only one student missed getting a diploma solely because of failure to meet the Maryland high school graduation requirements.

Of the students who received a diploma in the spring, more than 90 percent met the HSA requirement through examination. Only 9.64 percent – 5,669 students – met the requirement through the alternative Bridge Plan for Academic Validation. The Bridge Plan is the project-based alternative to the HSA exams.

The state board voted in 2004 to make passing the HSAs a requirement for the Maryland High School Diploma, starting with the Class of 2009, a measure supported by a broad cross-section of business and higher education leaders. For a fourth consecutive year, the new data shows that the assessments did not prove to be a hurdle to graduation, with a single non-graduate pegged solely to not completing the HSA requirement.

The 2011 data mark the second time that Maryland calculated graduation based on the cohort data, and the rest of the nation has followed suit based on federal rules. Previously, the state used the "leaver rate" developed by the National Center for Education Statistics. That rate counted all graduates, not just those who graduate in four years. Maryland's leaver rate hit 87.0 last year, up nearly two points from 2008.

The development of Maryland's longitudinal database now allowed the state to follow each student in a particular graduating class based on a unique identifier, and meant the state could switch to the cohort rate, which some education statisticians said presents a more accurate view.

Maryland's new system also allows for developing a cohort dropout rate. The state's cohort dropout rate fell from 2010 to 2011, from 11.93 percent to 11.22 percent.

The dropout patterns among student subgroups mirror the graduation rates. African American, Asian, and white dropout rates fell, while the rate for Hispanic students and those students of two or more races increased. Subgroup data shows that, while the dropout rate decreased for special education students, it rose from 24.29 to 27.93 percent for English language learners.

Annual immigration patterns affect the composition of the ELL student group, since students arrive throughout the year and English proficiency levels vary. High school students arriving with little or no formal education in their native language have particular difficulties in high school.

Wednesday's data announcement marks the first high school data release under Maryland's recently granted flexibility regarding the federal No Child Left Behind (NCLB) law. Under NCLB, all students were required to score at proficient levels by 2014, and progress toward that goal was gauged by a statewide measurement known as Adequate Yearly Progress.

Under Maryland's new "School Progress" plan, each school is measured against its own targets, and must work to strengthen achievement across all subgroups.

This year's data begins a new baseline, and schools and systems will work to cut in half over the next six years the percentage of students not scoring at proficient levels on the exams. As in the past, the accountability system measures all students, as well as racial subgroups and groups of students receiving additional services: special education, free- or reduced-price meals, and English language learners. Schools and systems must work to hit improvement targets, which are calculated for the student population in each school, as well as for special service and racial subgroups.

Gone are the categories of "School Improvement," under which schools were sanctioned for not making progress. Maryland's plan now focuses special attention on those schools with the most difficulty, but the requirement for restructuring and other sanctions is no longer part of the equation. All schools are expected to take action in areas where students are not making progress.

Under the School Progress calculation, 88.2 percent of high schools met the target for "all students" this baseline year. The targets will continue to rise over the next six years.

The new high school and system data is now available on the updated MdReportCard.org web site.

Huskies' Rushing Attack Proves Too Much For Winless Indians

The Northern Huskies football team bounced back from a difficult loss last week to Allegany. The Huskies traveled to Berkeley Springs Friday evening, and were led by freshman Aaron Rodeheaver in an impressive varsity debut, prevailing 20-7.

After a scoreless first quarter, Rodeheaver scored early in the second quarter at the 10:06 mark on a 25-yard touchdown run. Justin Derato's extra-point conversion kick was successful, giving the Huskies a 7-0 lead.

Just seconds before halftime (0:13), Northern's Aaron Broadwater scored on a 1-yard touchdown run, and after a successful Derato kick the Huskies led 14-0.

The Huskies would extend their lead 20-7 in the third quarter when Broadwater scored his second touchdown on another 1-yard run with 3:31 left. The conversion kick failed.

Berkeley Springs would get on the scoreboard late in the fourth quarter when Preston Hovermale caught a 43-yard pass from Mark Cowles with 1:03 left in the game. The extra-point conversion kick by Zack Wise was successful, finalizing the score 20-7.

The Huskies dominated the ground game, out-rushing the Indians 378-72 yards.

Rodeheaver finished his debut with 139 yards and a touchdown. Northern was also led on offense by Jeremy Bender, who ran for 135 yards on 18 attempts. Defensively the Huskies were led by Meshach Metz and Rodeheaver, who each finished with seven tackles and an interception. Chris Miller had a fumble recovery.

Berkeley Springs finishes its season 0-10. Northern improved its record to 4-5 and travels to play rival Southern on Friday.

Kickoff is set for 7 p.m.

Turkey Season Slated To Open This Saturday

Maryland's fall turkey season will open this Saturday, Oct. 27, and continue through Saturday, Nov. 3. Fall turkey hunting is only permitted in Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties, with a bag limit of one turkey per hunter.

Complete regulations, turkey check-in procedures, and information on public land hunting opportunities is located online at dnr.maryland.gov/huntersguide or in the 2012-2013 Maryland Guide to Hunting & Trapping issued with each hunting license.

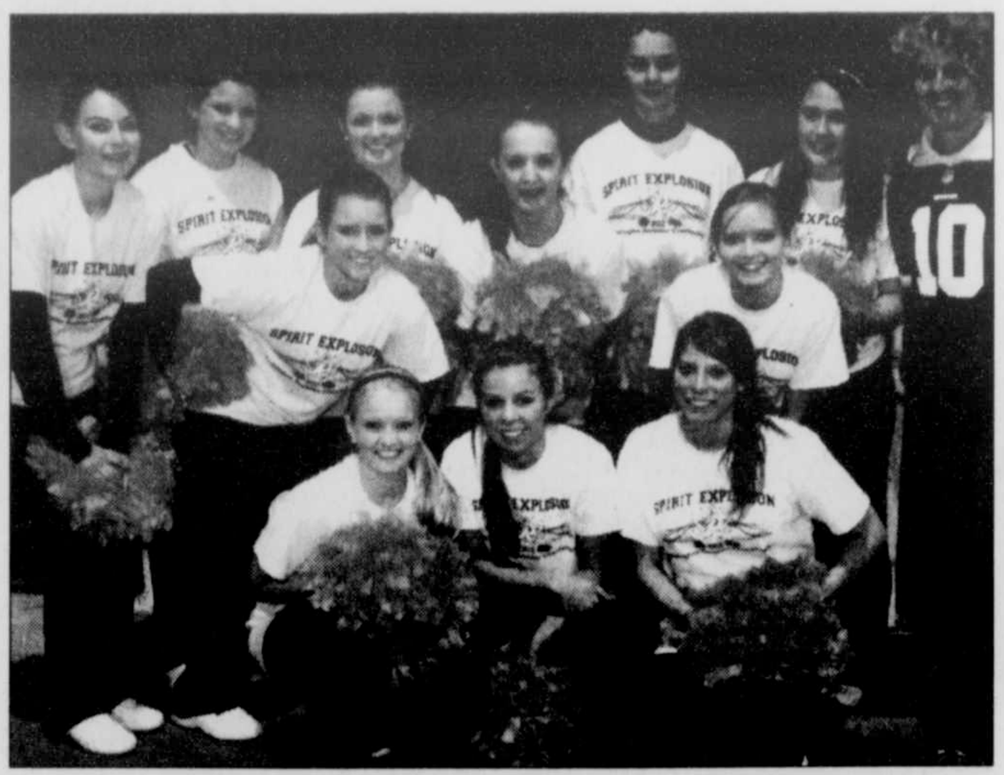
Maryland DNR Closes 2012 Black Bear Hunt

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) closed the 2012 black bear hunting season at 9 p.m. on Friday, October 26, finalizing the hunt in five days. The DNR reported 92 bears to mandatory check stations in western Maryland. Garrett County reported 82 bears, with Allegany County reporting 10.

This year 4,027 hunters applied for a permit, but only 693 hunters participated. Of the bears taken, 67 percent were taken on private land. The average live weight of bears taken this year was 160 pounds. John Fink of Oakland took the largest bear of the season, a 452-pound male.

The Maryland Natural Resource Police (NRP) charged 22 individuals with violations during the black bear season. Charges included failure to wear fluorescent orange clothing, hunting bears with aid of bait, and baiting on state-owned land. The individuals sited that reside in Garrett County were Paul Alfred Bittinger of Oakland, Larry Nesline of Bittinger, William Matthew Hebler of Swanton, Franklin Paul Skiffer of Swanton, and Donald Lee Upole, Sr. of Oakland.

For more information on Maryland's black bear hunt, one may visit the DNR Wildlife and Heritage service page at www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife.



LOCAL CHEER TEAM ATTENDS REDSKINS' "SPIRIT EXPLOSION" – Eleven students from Brenda's Body Shop joined dozens of other dancers from the metropolitan area to perform the Washington Redskins Cheerleaders Spirit Explosion during the halftime at the recent game against the Atlanta Falcons. The dancers gathered at the FedEx stadium the day before for an intensive five-hour workshop to learn the halftime show. Every year during the month of October the NFL supports breast cancer awareness by wearing pink cleats and game gloves. The Spirit Explosion and cheerleaders all used bright pink pompons to support the ongoing theme. "Our group was introduced to this event back in 2008 when Bethany (Savage) Hammer, a former student, was a Redskin cheerleader," said Brenda Brosnihan, coach and owner of the shop. "The Spirit Explosion is a fun way for the girls to see the behind the scenes of a stadium, experience the dancing fun with the cheerleaders, and perform before a crowd three times the size of Garrett County. It's a pretty awesome experience." She added that they also were able to visit with Oakland woman currently serving as a Washington Redskin cheerleading ambassador, Samantha Griffin. Pictured at the event in the front row from left are Sara King, Jennifer Feaster, and Kellie Shotwell. In the second row, same order: Shannon Miller, Samantha Swift, and Jena Janoske. Third row: Lauryn Glotfelty, Brooke Miller, Mariah Riley, Morgan Sechler, Rachel Scott, and Brosnihan.

Southern Boys' Soccer Team Falls To Smithsburg In Class 1A Playoff Match

The Southern Rams Boys' Soccer team traveled to Smithsburg Friday evening in the first round of the Maryland Class 1A West Playoffs. Smithsburg's Adler Garrett recorded a hat-trick of three goals to lead the Leopards past the Rams, 3-2.

In minute 13 of the game, Garrett put the Leopards up 1-0 on a goal assisted by Marshall Keely.

The Rams' Alex Fike scored a goal in minute 29, when he was assisted by Austin Graham to tie the match, 1-1.

Just one minute before halftime, Garrett would score his second goal on a penalty kick, giving Smithsburg a 2-1 advantage at the half.

The Southern Rams would again fight back 17 minutes into the second half. Brandon Scheffel scored an unassisted goal, tying the score, 2-2.

Smithsburg's Garrett would complete his hat-trick with the potential game-winning goal just three minutes later. The goal was assisted by Ryan Bolton, finalizing the score, 3-2.

With the win, Smithsburg improves its record to 2-13 and will travel to play Allegany on Monday or Tuesday. The Southern Rams finished their season 2-9.

Despite Great Season, Rams Fall To Miners in CAYFL Div. II Championship

The Oakland Rams faced off against the Mountain Ridge Miners on Saturday at Greenway Avenue Stadium in Cumberland. The Miners capped off a perfect undefeated season with an 18-0 win in the Cumberland Area Youth Football League's Division II Championship.

The Miners' Karson Robinette scored two first-half touchdowns, and Elisha Llewellyn scored the only touchdown of the second-half. Llewellyn was named the Most Valuable Player of the championship game, and Robinette was later named the Most Valuable Player for the season.

Robinette ran for a 25-yard score in the first quarter and a 2-yard run in the second quarter, leading the Miners to a 12-0 halftime lead.

The Miners' Devin Dinicola threw a 45-yard touchdown pass to Llewellyn in the fourth quarter to finalize the score at 18-0.

For Oakland, Alex Horner and George Zimmerman were standouts on offense, while Korey Mitchum and August Uphold led the defense. For the Miners, Hunter Harris and Corey Hunter stood out on offense. On defense, Gavin Murray had two interceptions.

The Miners finished the season with an overall record of 8-0. This was the Miners' first championship and first undefeated season at the Division II level.

The championship game and Miners' season was dedicated to Mya Elizabeth Harris, one of the team's cheerleaders, a sister to player Hunter Harris, and daughter of coach John Harris. Mya died on May 30 at the age of 9 of cystic fibrosis.

Patriots Run The Show, Down Steelers In CAYFL Division I Little Super Bowl

The Northern Steelers and Personal Best/Hartley's Pizza Patriots squared off on Saturday at Greenway Avenue Stadium. The Patriots won in lopsided fashion, 48-18.

Although the Steelers conveyed a potent passing attack, the Patriots dominated in all aspects of the game, led by Braydon Poling, who scored three times, and Brayden Brown scored twice for the victor.

Poling scored the first two touchdowns on 3-yard and 8-yard runs to give the Patriots the early lead in the first quarter, 12-0. The two-point conversion kicks were unsuccessful.

A heavy-scoring second quarter was started when the Patriots' Luke Hamilton scored on a 15-yard run to extend the lead 18-0. The conversion kick was no good.

Northern finally got on the scoreboard when Logan Yommer connected with Nate Durst on the first of three times the teammates would find the endzone through the air. The touchdown pass would cover 23 yards, cutting into the lead 18-6. The two-point kick was unsuccessful.

The Patriots would soon score again with Brown rushing in from 18 yards. Trent Groves would tack on the conversion kick and increase the lead 26-6.

Poling would score his final touchdown on a 20-yard dash into the endzone. The two-point conversion kick by Groves was successful. The Patriots lengthened the lead 34-6.

Northern cut into the lead when Durst hauled in a 29-yard touchdown pass from Yommer. The conversion kick failed, and the Patriots would take a commanding 34-12 lead into the locker room at halftime.

Brown scored his second touchdown to kick off the third quarter on a 20-yard tear for the Patriots. Groves' kick was successful, extending the lead 42-12.

The Steelers would continue to fight despite the 30-point deficit. Yommer threw his third passing score of the game to Durst, this one covering 16 yards. The two-point conversion kick failed, decreasing the lead to 42-18, Patriots.

The Patriots would squeeze in one last score in the third quarter with Tater Hess' 18-yard run. The extra point was no good, finalizing the score, 48-18.

For Northern, Yommer led the offense with 178 total yards and three passing touchdowns. Durst was a standout on both offense and defense, scoring three touchdowns and recording 10 tackles. The defensive unit was also led by Austin Evans with six tackles, and James Lewis, who recovered a fumble.

The Northern Steelers finish the season with a 7-3 record. The Steelers' coaching staff commend the offensive linemen for all their hard work and dedication this season. Those linemen include Ryan Weimer, Matt McKenzie, Nick Harris, Bryce Jones, John Brenneman, James Lewis, Richard Ravenscroft, and Brady Fratz.

Mtn. Ridge To Host NHS, SHS Soccer Playoffs

Because of the recent inclement weather provided by Hurricane Sandy, today's Northern boys' and Southern girls' Maryland 1A West Region soccer quarterfinals will be played at Mountain Ridge High School.

The soccer tripleheader will kick off as the Northern Huskies host Boonsboro in the boys quarterfinal at 4 p.m. The Southern Rams host Brunswick in the girls quarterfinal at 6 p.m. At 8 p.m., Mtn. Ridge hosts Allegany in another girls' quarterfinal match.

Unbeaten Miners Sneak By Rams in Girls' Soccer Match

The Southern Rams girls' soccer team traveled to Frostburg Thursday to attempt what no other team has been able to do so far this year. The Rams squared off against an undefeated Mountain Ridge Miners looking to close out their regular season, succeeding 1-0.

In a game shortened by inclement weather, the lone goal of the game was scored by the Miners' Lexi Metz on an assist from Anna Broadwater with 26:54 left in the first half.

The Rams' Annie Martin had three saves, while the Miners' Chelsea Muir stopped four. For Southern seniors Annabelle Hegeman, Carlie Lewis, and Haylee Wilson, this was their last regular season home match.

The Miners' 1-0 victory would propel them to the number 1 seed and a first-round bye in the Maryland class 1A west playoffs. Their record improves to 12-0-1 overall, and they will host Allegany.

Southern falls to 7-5 to finish the regular season, and will host Fort Hill on Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Editor's notes: This article was written in last week's newspaper, but incorrectly stated that Southern had won the match rather than Mountain Ridge. The error is regretted.

Huskies Edged Out By Campers In Girls' 1A Playoff Soccer Match

The Northern girls' soccer team concluded its season Thursday, hosting the Maryland 1A West Region Playoff match versus Allegany, losing 2-1. Northern finishes the season 7-7-1 after losing three of its final four matches.

The Campers' Ashleigh Eisentrout scored the first goal of the evening, unassisted at the 27:54 mark. Allegany would hold onto the 1-0 advantage through the first half.

The Huskies' Callie Vernon started the second half quickly, scoring an unassisted goal just 1:05 into the half. The 1-1 score would not last long.

Allegany's Courtney Landis booted the potential game-winning goal on a corner-kick by Eisentrout with 29:46 left in the match.

Northern had plenty of chances, outshooting the Campers 14-6, but could not take the lead at any point in the match. For Allegany, Tori Bohrer had 13 saves while Chloe Werner had four for Northern.

The Campers improved their record to 7-8 and will travel to Mountain Ridge on Tuesday.

Rams, Huskies To Play Football At Mtn. Ridge

The Northern-Southern football game, originally scheduled to be held Friday at Southern, will now be played Saturday at 1 p.m., at Mountain Ridge. This cross-county rival game is the final regular season contest for both teams.

HUNTIN' COUSINS Sarah Krause, left, and Brenda Cosner were both successful on the first day of muzzleloader season. Sarah, a sophomore at Clear Spring High School, bagged this doe while hunting with her dad Mike Krause on the Glotfelty family farm near McHenry. She is the daugher of Mike and Joyce Krause and the granddaughter of Joyce Glotfelty Krause and the late Glenn Krause. Brenda harvested this 6-point on the same property.

DROPPING HIS FIRST BUCK while hunting with his dad on Oct. 19 was 11-year-old Devin West. He bagged this 6-point that morning before heading off to school.

THIS 10-POINT TROPHY was taken October 20 by Kody Bentley on the property of his great-grandfather Emerson Fike. A resident of Sunnyside Road and a student at Southern High School, Kody was using a .50-caliber muzzleloader that belongs to his grandfather Helton Bentley, and he was hunting with his father Mike Bentley.

Conservation Groups Call For Changes At Criterion Wind Site

A coalition of eight conservation organizations, including the local group Save Western Maryland, has called on the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) to make changes at a wind energy facility in Garrett County to reduce bird and bat mortality. According to recent data, the 28-turbine Criterion Wind Project in Garrett County now ranks as the deadliest to birds in the United States on a per-turbine basis.

The other seven environmental groups calling for action are American Bird Conservancy, Friends of Blackwater, Allegheny Highlands Alliance, Friends of Beautiful Pendleton County, Laurel Mountain Preservation Association, Allegheny Front Alliance, and West Virginia Highlands Conservancy.

The request comes in response to an FWS call for comment on three documents concerning the project, published in the Federal Register: a draft Environmental Assessment, which assesses the existing and potential environmental impact of the project; an application for an Incidental Take Permit, which is required under the Endangered Species Act when activities will likely result in the killing or disturbance of a threatened or endangered species – in this case, the endangered Indiana bat; and a proposed Habitat Conservation Plan, which must be completed before a take permit is issued.

"I cannot imagine that the state of Maryland is proud of the fact that the first commercial wind power project in the state – a short drive from our nation's capital – is the most deadly for birds in the entire country," said George Fenwick, president of American Bird Conservancy. "This is a terrible precedent for the state; something their wildlife leaders probably find to be very embarrassing and in need of corrective action by the federal government."

"This project is a realization of a worst-case scenario," said Eric Robison, co-founder of Save Western Maryland. "This is why Save Western Maryland sued over the project in 2010, because of fears that bat mortality could be very high. As things have turned out, bat and other wildlife mortality, especially for birds, is far worse than expected."

"Bats are getting a brutal one-two punch here," said Judy Rodd, executive director of Friends of Blackwater. "They are already suffering huge losses from white-nose syndrome, so if they continue to face high losses at the state's wind projects, the environmental consequences to the state could be significant. Bats eat massive numbers of insects that are agricultural pests, so when you lose the control they provide, you are left with a choice between two very negative alternatives: either suffer agricultural losses or use more insect-controlling poisons on crops."

The primary concerns identified by the groups are in relation to the violation of four federal environmental statutes – the Endangered Species Act (ESA), National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), Migratory Bird Treaty Act (MBTA), and the Bald and Golden Eagle Protection Act (BGEPA). The groups assert that:

1. The Habitat Conservation Plan is not based on the best available science, in violation of the ESA;

2. Preparation of an Environmental Assessment is inadequate, and a full, more comprehensive Environmental Impact Statement is warranted under NEPA;

3. The Service's Draft Environmental Assessment does not adequately analyze alternatives, in violation of NEPA; and

4. Without appropriate authorization, birds killed at Criterion will be in violation of the MBTA and BGEPA.

The turbines are located along the ridge of Backbone Mountain.

In response to a lawsuit brought by Save Western Maryland and other interested parties, Criterion agreed to seek an Incidental Take Permit for Indiana bats to comply with the ESA. During its first full year of operation (2011), Criterion conducted daily monitoring for bat and bird mortality between April 5 and November 15.

Although no Indiana bat deaths were confirmed, Criterion estimates that the project killed approximately 1,093 other bats (39.03 bats per turbine) and 448 birds (16.01 birds per turbine). This rate is described in the draft Environmental Assessment as the highest per-turbine bird mortality ever estimated at a studied wind project in the United States, and as the highest per-turbine bird mortality ever documented in North America.

Based on the 2011 data, Criterion estimates that if the project did not take steps to reduce the number of bats killed, it would result in between 13,238 and 26,477 bat deaths, and approximately 8,960 bird fatalities during the expected 20-year operational life of the project. Each bird death is a distinct violation of the MBTA, a strict liability statute that prohibits the killing of birds even when the killing is unintentional.

Petition EPA

to TRI. Why shouldn't oil and gas companies be required to report these toxic releases under our Right-to-Know laws, like so many other industries already do?"

The oil and gas extraction industry is a vast and growing industrial sector, operating in most states across the U.S. Oil and gas industry processes extend from well exploration to production and processing up to the point at which the natural gas is ready for transport to market or oil is ready for transport to a refinery. The advent of fracking has allowed the industry to grow even more rapidly in the last decade, but with the addition of greater amounts and volumes of toxic chemicals, more wastes, and a much bigger environmental footprint, according to these organizations.

"As a mother, wife, community member, and individual suffering health issues caused by breathing toxic emissions, such as benzene, from a natural gas compressor site, I am very concerned about the impact the oil and gas industry is having on human life and the environment," said Pam Judy, a resident of Carmichaels, Pa. "I am dismayed that there is not an adequate federal disclosure requirement that would provide individuals with the information necessary to make decisions regarding their health and safety."

Data on the oil and gas industry, including fracking, points to a large toxic footprint, Judy said. EPA has estimated that the industry emits 127,000 tons of hazardous air pollutants every year, including benzene, xylenes, and hydrogen sulfide – more than any other TRI industry except electric utilities. EPA investigations of natural gas development in Pavillion, Wyo., and Dimock, Pa., found toxic chemicals and methane present in groundwater and drinking water wells. A Congressional report based on industry data found that the industry regularly uses products containing at least 45 TRI-listed toxic chemicals, the most common of which are methanol, 2-butoxyethanol, and ethylene glycol.

"I don't just work with Powder River Basin Resource Council members in Pavillion, Deaver, and Clark, Wyo., who are severely impacted by contamination from oil and gas development. I also live with it," said Deb Thomas, Powder River Basin Resource Council organizer and resident of Clark, Wyo. "For those of us who fear our health is being affected by this industry, disclosure of the chemicals and constituents used during development is extremely important. We need to know what we're being exposed to so that physicians can diagnose and treat our health problems and we can make informed decisions about staying in the communities we live in. It is a human right to know what toxic materials are being stored and used where we live and work."

The industry is one of the few energy or extraction sectors that do not report to the TRI, while electric utilities, coal and metal mining operations have all reported to the TRI for nearly 15 years.

The oil and gas extraction industry is also uniquely exempt from many key provisions of major environmental laws, including the Clean Water Act, the Safe Drinking Water Act, and the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act.

"Western Maryland currently has the highest targeted amount of shale gas within the state, and development activities will likely be centered in rural communities like Garrett County," said Eric Robision, CitizenShale president and a resident of Garrett County. "Unfortunately, the county does not have the information or ability to address the storage of large volumes of chemicals, which may appeal to companies looking to stage drilling and processing activities within Maryland. "The reporting provided by the TRI would allow Garrett County residents to, first, be informed and, second, be prepared."

The petition requests that the industry's facilities report their releases of toxic chemicals to the TRI, as electric utilities and coal mining already do. The reporting requirement is annual, procedural, and requires disclosure. According to the various spokespersons for these organizations, these reports would provide a valuable resource to communities, lawmakers, and the companies themselves.

An example given was, if a gas company were to propose a facility in a municipality, a community member or local decision maker could pull up the company's past TRI reports and judge whether the facility would be a good neighbor. Or the company itself could compare its releases against other facilities and determine whether it is in line with the industry standard.

"Above all, the petition would serve a fully informed public and industry responsibility," stated Robison.

The TRI was enacted in 1986 as Congress's response to the Bhopal disaster that exposed hundreds of thousands of people to toxic chemicals. The TRI requires each industrial facility to report annually on its releases of over 650 TRI-listed toxic chemicals to the air, land, water, landfills, treatment plants, and other sites. The reports published in the inventory are available online.

HERRINGTON MANSION RED CROSS TOUR – The American Red Cross (ARC) Home for the Holidays House Tours will take place in early December, and this year will include the Herrington Mansion, located along Herrington Manor Road. Carl DelSignore, owner of Buffalo Coal Company, commissioned William Young, an "old Army buddy," to build the house in 1983. Young completed the construction In 1986. A trophy room constructed of native Garrett County wild cherry wood, specially built to display DelSignore's mounted wild game animals captured in Africa. DelSignore died just before the house was completed, and it remained vacant and unfurnished until 1995. At that time the estate, which includes 2,000 acres, was purchased by a private family who furnished the home and made significant improvements, including landscaping. The original cherry woodwork and cabinets as well as the imported Italian marble columns still remain. Recently renovated and fully redecorated, the 17,000 square foot estate now features 43 rooms and can accommodate up to 34 guests, with 10 bedrooms and 10 full bathrooms. Other features include an indoor swimming pool, game room, ballroom, home theater, outdoor fountain, and an 11-acre catch and release fishing pond with an island and gazebo. The ARC tours will include three other homes and one church. There will be raffles at each site, and other special attractions. The times for the tours will be from 4 to 9 p.m. on Dec. 7 and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Dec. 8. Tickets for the tours will be $10 per person, and are available at several locations, including Gregg's Pharmacy and Jan Florist in Oakland, and Deep Creek Pharmacy in McHenry. Other ticket outlets will be announced.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

Could many Americans still believe that males are naturally superior to females? No matter how many high performing women are visible in our society? But I guess a few white working-class men still feel threatened by female competition. Unfortunately, many people think that when Thomas Jefferson wrote, "All men are created equal," he deliberately left out half of the population.

The culture in the mid-18th century was very much a male-dominated society. Women during our founding years were basically just unpaid slaves for their male master – either their father or husband. They had no legal rights, and were not able to inherit anything or engage in contracts of any kind. They were pet birds in a cage, which was only rarely a gilded cage. All work, effort, and attention to the home and families rested on the women. Not in any way were they equal partners.

One rare exception was the relationship between John and Abigail Adams.

Only in the late 1800s did females take any steps toward equality. It took early feminists a half century to even get voting rights.

There is a new movie about an important subject: dyslexia. I might have a minor case of it. When children suffer from it, sometimes in the earliest part of their education they are regarded as having low intelligence. When they are first forming their self-concepts, that can have a lasting impact on their education.

It will be a minor relief from politics to have a hurricane running up the Atlantic Coast. It might even cause a major snow event along the Appalachian Mountains, like here and Ohio.

I am fully enjoying the World Series as a break from the coverage of the election. Then during the first few days of November, a huge mood booster for me will be the Breeder's Cup, the series of championship horse races.

There are few things as beautiful as a thoroughbred race horse in its best form, and there are many interesting people around them – not just their rich owners. Sure, there have been several top female owners for many decades. But the working-class people in horse racing are quite diverse, of various races, backgrounds, and even genders.

One top trainer that I used to see almost every day in my job was once a gold medal winner in Grand Prix jumping in the Olympics. He was based in Maryland, and was sheer "eye candy" for females. He still is, even if he now has gray hair. But he was also simply a fine horseman. This is not always true of leading trainers, nor in the top-flight jumping scene, where ego dominated.

My least stressful television viewing is "British Antiques Roadshow" – other than how it shows how the ruling class in Great Britain is able to capture the most wealth and obtain the most beautiful objects available across the globe. So a slightly beat-up silver cup is now worth about 70,000 pounds.

The show is often set in some wonderful part of the British Isles, full of history, wonderful culture, and lovely scenery. And it often gives the viewers significant historical details – like the fact that Winston Churchill was a fine artist as well as being among the top statesmen in the world.

Happily, now it is time for another World Series game. Poor Lesa Whittemore, who is a long-term, maybe lifelong, fan of the San Francisco Giants, has a dreadful eye infection. She must stay in bed in a fully dark room, so she can't enjoy her team in the World Series. She is very miserable.

I really did not expect that on a Saturday morning simply turning on my television would cause me to feel horrible depression. It is not the content of programming. Mostly it was from the ads.

I turned my television to the National Baseball League Network. What a treat that I got a story about how a very young Pirates pitcher, Steve Blass, helped the Pirates win a 1971 World Series. I remember that moment when the Pirates finally put away the Baltimore Orioles.

Maybe you are among the Americans who believe PBS doesn't deserve federal financial support. I do not agree with that. You can see what a valuable service they provide.

Oh no, the Weather Channel predicts perhaps two feet of snow will fall in West Virginia counties. That means we can expect similar here. But when you read this, it already happened in the early part of the week. At least

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Friendsville Zoning Appeals Board will conduct a public hearing on November 19, 2012, at 7:00 p.m. in the Friendsville Town Hall. This is a meeting of the Board regarding a request made by Jonathan D. Bell for a Variance from the terms of the zoning ordinance with regard to lot density, lot width and side setback. The Bell property (tax map 300, parcel 1143) is located at 643, 645, 647 & 649 Water Street in a TR – Town Residential zoning district. Specifically, Mr. Bell would like to create a lot line adjustment that would join a part of his property occupied by a single family residence to the neighboring property (tax map 300, parcel 1287) owned by Michael Palencar. This lot line adjustment would result in a single family and a commercial business on the Palencar property, and a 3 unit multi-family structure on the Bell property. Each of the proposed lots has a proposed lot size, lot width and side setback smaller than that allowed in the ordinance. All interested persons are invited to attend this meeting.

The Arts

Writing, Publishing Seminar Slated At Grantsville Center

LAUREN CARR

Garrett College's Northern Outreach Center in Grantsville will offer a two-day seminar titled "Lauren Carr's Book Writing and Publishing Seminar: Make That Dream of Becoming an Author a Reality." It is set for Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 17 and 18, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Saturday session, a book writing workshop, will address obstacles for writers, including time management and overcoming writer's block.

Carr will focus on teaching budding authors what makes a good book, as well as how to avoid the 10-plus most common mistakes made by new writers that can prevent their books from being a success.

In Sunday's session, a book publishing workshop, Carr will define the details of the most common terms in publishing, followed by explaining the various different forms of publishing, and some of the pros and cons of each. She will also outline the steps of publishing a book, including editing, layout design, proof reading, and releasing the book to the public.

The book publishing workshop will also instruct students on how to successfully use online resources to publish a book after writing it, and how to use the online media to promote it worldwide.

Carr is the author of the Mac Faraday mysteries, which take place at Deep Creek Lake, It's Murder, My Son, Old Loves Die Hard, and Shades of Murder. Blast from the Past, the fourth in the series, is expected to be released this December.

"Lucky Dog," a Mac Faraday mystery short story released exclusively in e-book on Amazon, has been consistently on the best sellers' list in mystery short stories, according to a college spokesperson. Her latest best-selling mystery on Amazon, Dead on Ice, which introduces a new series called "Lovers in Crime,"was released on Sept. 1.

The owner of Acorn Book Services, Carr is also a publishing manager, consultant, editor, cover and layout designer, and marketing agent for independent authors. This year, six books written by independent authors have been or are scheduled for release through the management of Acorn Book Services.

For additional information on this seminar, including cost, persons may contact Terry Beachy, Northern Outreach Center coordinator, at 301-895-4700 or terry.beachy@garrettcollege.edu.

To register for the course, persons may call 301-387-3069.

Local Writers To Be Featured In "Page-To-Stage"

A special one evening event, Page to Stage, will be held Saturday, Nov. 10, beginning at 6 p.m. at Our Town Theatre in Oakland. The Garrett County Arts Council (GCAC) is the sponsor of this third annual literary evening.

Twelve area writers will join together for the event, and will read original poetry and prose.

Many of these authors are published in the 2012 edition of GCAC's literary journal Ginseng. The literary periodical was compiled with editorial guidance from Betty Rouse, GCAC board member and literary committee chairperson, and Melodee Hill, Jennifer Theriot, Jennifer Virts, Mikey Virts, and Kathy Vitek.

The graphic design for Ginseng was by Richard Hill and cover photo by Linda Herdering. The journal was published by the Sincell Publishing Company in Oakland.

Prior to the readings, those readers with published books will have books for sale and signing.

"We thought having the writers signing their works would fit in well with our third annual event," said Rouse.

Some of the photographers who have photos enhancing the pages of Ginseng will have their photos on display and for sale during the evening.

Readers scheduled for the evening are Laura Bentley, Rose Gordy, Ginny Grove, Paula Hutson, Sue Lisantti, Mary McEwen, Ginni Neff, Bob Newman, Tom Pessini, Betty Rouse, Jack Spencer, Rhoda Trooboff, and Kathy Vitek.

The doors will open at 6 p.m. Light refreshments will be available at no charge. Beverages will be sold to benefit Our Town Theatre.

The readings will begin at 7 p.m., with authors presenting their stories, poems, and memoirs, live on stage. The event is free and readings are appropriate for any age. Seating is limited. Persons should call the arts council at 301-334-6580 to make reservations.

The Garrett County Arts Council is supported by a grant from the Maryland State Arts Council.

Final Exhibition Set At Frostburg Museum Nov. 3

The Frostburg Museum has announced that the final exhibition for the Fall 2012 season will be works by Hannah Ehlman and Garrett Delooze. The exhibition will run from Saturday, Nov. 3, to Saturday, Nov. 24. A reception will be held on Nov. 3 from 5 to 8 pm., and is free to the public. Refreshments will be served, and everyone is invited to come to meet and talk with the artists.

Hannah Ehlman is a metal-smith working in Doug Salmon's shop at Spruce Forest Artisan Village in Grantsville. Her work is inspired by human interactions and psychological transformations. She portrays emotion and physical beauty through bronze, copper, and steel, with focuses on jewelry and sculpture. She will graduate from Frostburg State University in the spring of 2013, and plans to continue her work with metal.

"Garrett Delooze's goal is to produce works of art that capture the beauty of Earth," said a museum spokesperson. "Whether it is a photograph of the female body or a wood-fired mug, he feels every object is a memorial to Earth."

The clay, chemicals, and wood used to create his pottery come directly from the land. The colors used are "the product of harnessing just a fraction of Earth's treasures."

His use of subtle variations in tone illuminates the beauty of the human form. He strives to stop the viewer, if only for a moment, so they may admire the "beauty of the world that we are all fortunate enough to live in."

The Frostburg Museum is a non-profit organization located at the corners of Hill and Oak Streets in Frostburg. It is open Thursday through Saturday from 12 to 4 p.m. The artists' work will be available for viewing during that time.

Admittance to the museum is free, but donations are always appreciated.

For more information, persons may contact the staff at 301-689-1195 or by e-mail at FrostburgMuseum@Verizon.net.

The Museum Gallery is supported in part by the Allegany Arts Council, and is a member of the Allegany County Chamber of Commerce.

BENEFIT CONCERT FOR HUNGER RELIEF SLATED – Aurora Celtic, the band pictured above, and the Sugar Foot Stompers will present a concert on Nov. 10 at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, 126 East Liberty Street, Oakland, to benefit the ongoing "It's In the Bag" hunger relief effort. The doors will open at 6:30 p.m. and the music will begin at 7. It's In the Bag is a program in which backpacks are filled with food items for children to take home over the weekend each week. These are provided to families who are struggling to feed their children. Aurora Celtic features musicians Andrew Nelson, Alice Fleischman, and Michael Broderick (pictured from left), who perform a variety of styles, including Celtic, classical, Appalachian, and alternative. Broderick holds a master's degree in music performance and ethno-musicology. He and Nelson are both composers and arrangers, contributing a great deal of original material to their repertoire. Fleischman and Broderick study every summer with traditional Irish master teachers at the Augusta Heritage workshops, the Swannanoa Gathering, Boxwood School in Nova Scotia, Zoukfest in Albuquerque, N.M., and the East Durham Irish Music Camp. The band has two recordings, Edge of the World and its 2012 release, Crows in the Kitchen. They are joined on recordings and some performances by guitarist Aaron Martin. The group's web site is located at www.auroracelticmusic.com. Tickets to the Nov. 10 event will be $10 at the door. Information about the Sugar Foot Stompers will be published next week.

UNBORED: THE ESSENTIAL FIELD GUIDE TO SERIOUS FUN

by Joshua Glenn & Elizabeth Foy Larsen

C. 2012, Bloomsbury, $25; 352 Pages

Review by Terri Schlichenmeyer

You are about to make your mother crazy. That's because you've mastered every video game in the house, watched every movie she rented for you, and clicked through cable several dozen times. You've managed to tease your sister, torment your brother, and Mom is next in line.

You're about to say you're bored, which means you're about to get into big trouble. But before you do that, why not find Unbored: The Essential Field Guide to Serious Fun by Joshua Glenn & Elizabeth Foy Larsen. It might single-handedly save your whole family from complete craziness.

So you have a few days off from school. It's a holiday, a weekend, or just some sort of break and you're glad for the time, but you don't exactly know what to do with it. That's where this book comes in, because it's filled with pages of excellent ideas.

Let's say, for instance, that you'd like to get rid of your boredom by exploding things. Unbored can help, with instructions on safe ways to make a big mess. You'll need a grown-up around, so find one who likes to get dirty.

There are a lot of games in this book, including ones that don't require a board or dice. Find out how to play different kinds of games with jacks. Learn how to get freaky fit with friends. Or learn parkour, which can be done in your own back yard – even in the snow!

If music is your favorite thing in the world, learn how to rock out with help from Unbored. Find out what you'll need to build a band, take a quiz to help figure out which instrument is best for you, and watch a few good movies about music.

Speaking of movies, this book has all kinds of great suggestions for films and books you'll definitely want to check out...

Find out how to turn your bathroom into a spa. Redecorate your bedroom, then organize it. Find some new crafts. Learn how to cook, read a food label, and conserve water. Read up on trivia. Take good care of your pets. Tell a politician what you think (they really do care!). Eliminate bullies. Train the grown-ups in your house. Save the planet.

If you're like most parents, the "B" word makes you channel your father by telling your kids you'll give them something to do. Instead, give them Unbored.

With all kinds of activities for both indoors and out, authors Glenn and Larsen keep children busy with information, ideas, get-outside movement, and down-time that doesn't involve anything electronic. There are pages for quieter readers here, and kids who aren't able for action. Then there are pages for kids with a streak of renegade in their blood and restlessness in their feet.

The nicest part about this book is that it's great for sharing; in fact, you'll almost want your kids to do that. Add what's here to a little down-time, and 9-to-15-year-olds will find Unbored to be crazy fun.

Prog. Achieves

with high quality programs and services, and this well-deserved national recognition is a clear demonstration of that commitment. I commend the many individuals who made it happen," MacLennan said. "Our paramedic instructors and staff are dedicated to serving the people of our region by provided top-notch, state of the art training to the men and women who will administer the first medical services needed in an emergency situation. They deserve the highest praise for this accomplishment."

Jim Koon, ALS program director, was also involved in the lengthy process required to achieve accreditation.

"A lot of hard work went into completing the self-study and preparing for the site visit," Koon said. "It is extremely gratifying to have received notification of our initial national accreditation. It's critical to Region I that we have achieved this milestone. This allows us to continue to provide training that will help fill the shortage of paid and volunteer paramedics in our area. Many people are responsible for this achievement from the president of the college through the students. All of us are extremely proud of this accomplishment."

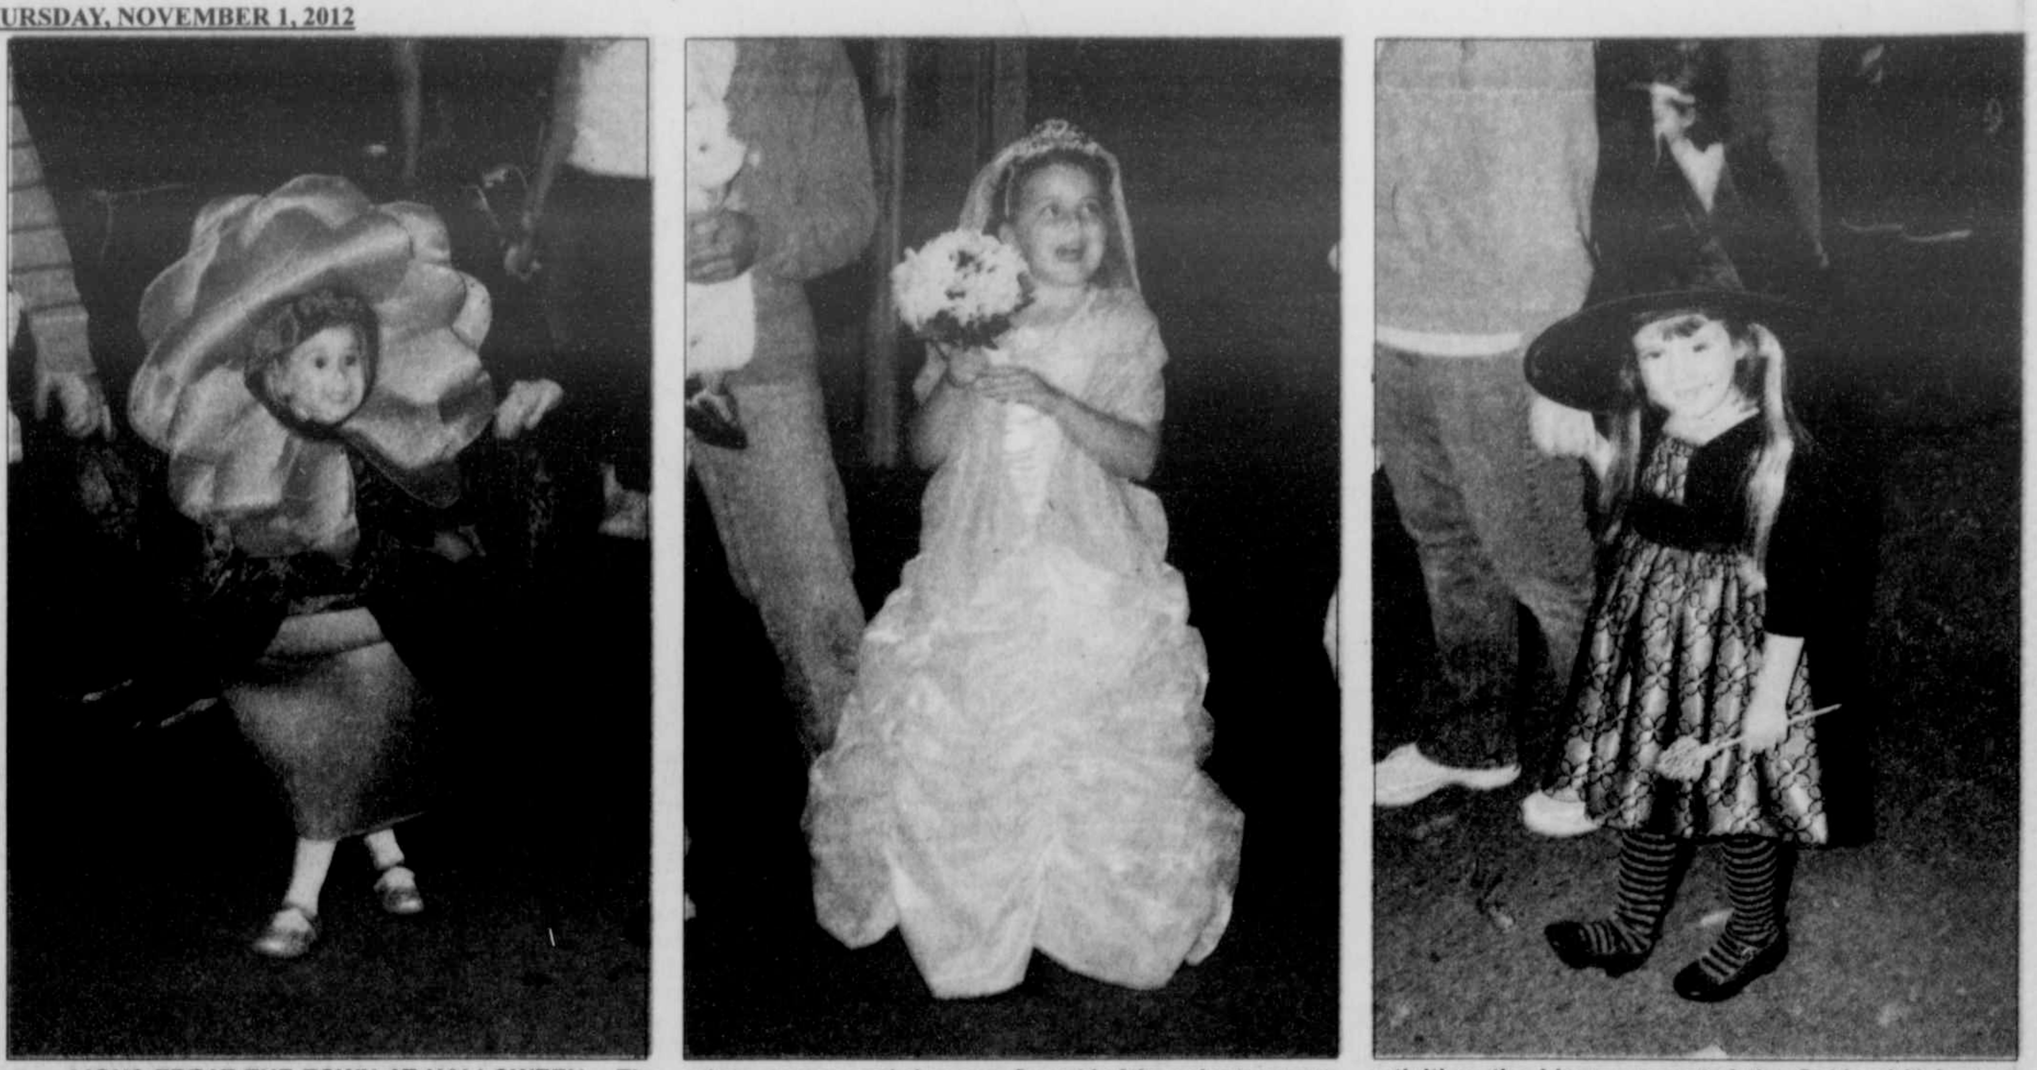
most of our leaves already fell off our trees, so less widespread power outages should occur than a few years ago when that rogue ice storm hit here in the middle of October.

I recommend a series of seven different performances of the Nutcracker Suite on consecutive Sundays, starting Nov. 25. They are on Ovation channel. On DirecTV, that's channel number 274. It will be much more pleasant than the endless reruns of A Christmas Carol by Charles Dickens. Everything by him seems to me dull, colorless, and heavy-handed. Certainly I would rather see any Shakespeare play for entertainment than any Dickens work.

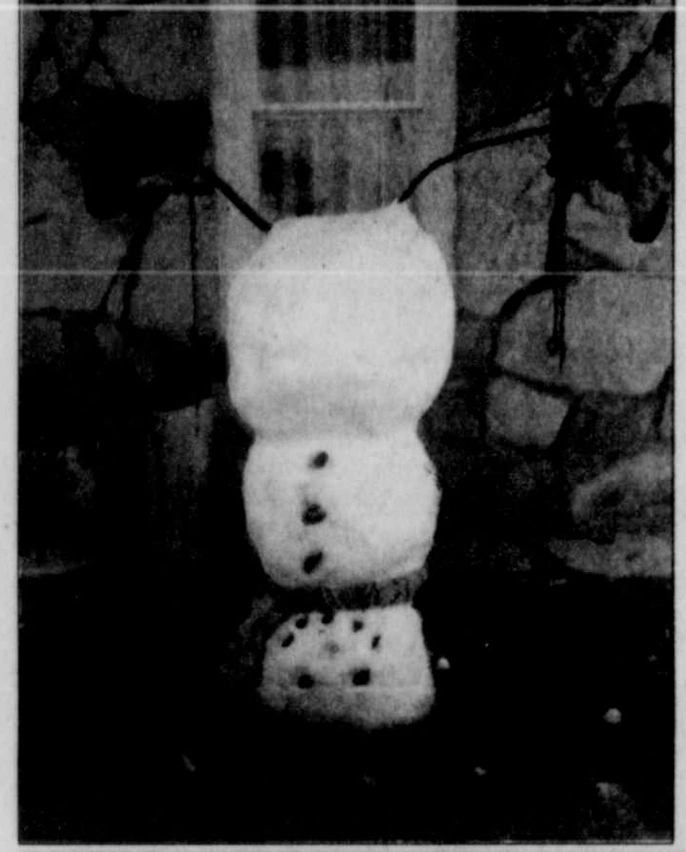
Now I see a scene of major snow in West Virginia. They predict the heaviest snowfall will start this evening (Monday). But it might be too much caution that Garrett County schools are closed today.

I remember one school day when I got stuck at Accident Elementary School. Our principal blocked access to the bus. Luckily, one teacher allowed a few girls from my bus to stay with her, which was much better than camping out in the cafeteria/gym.

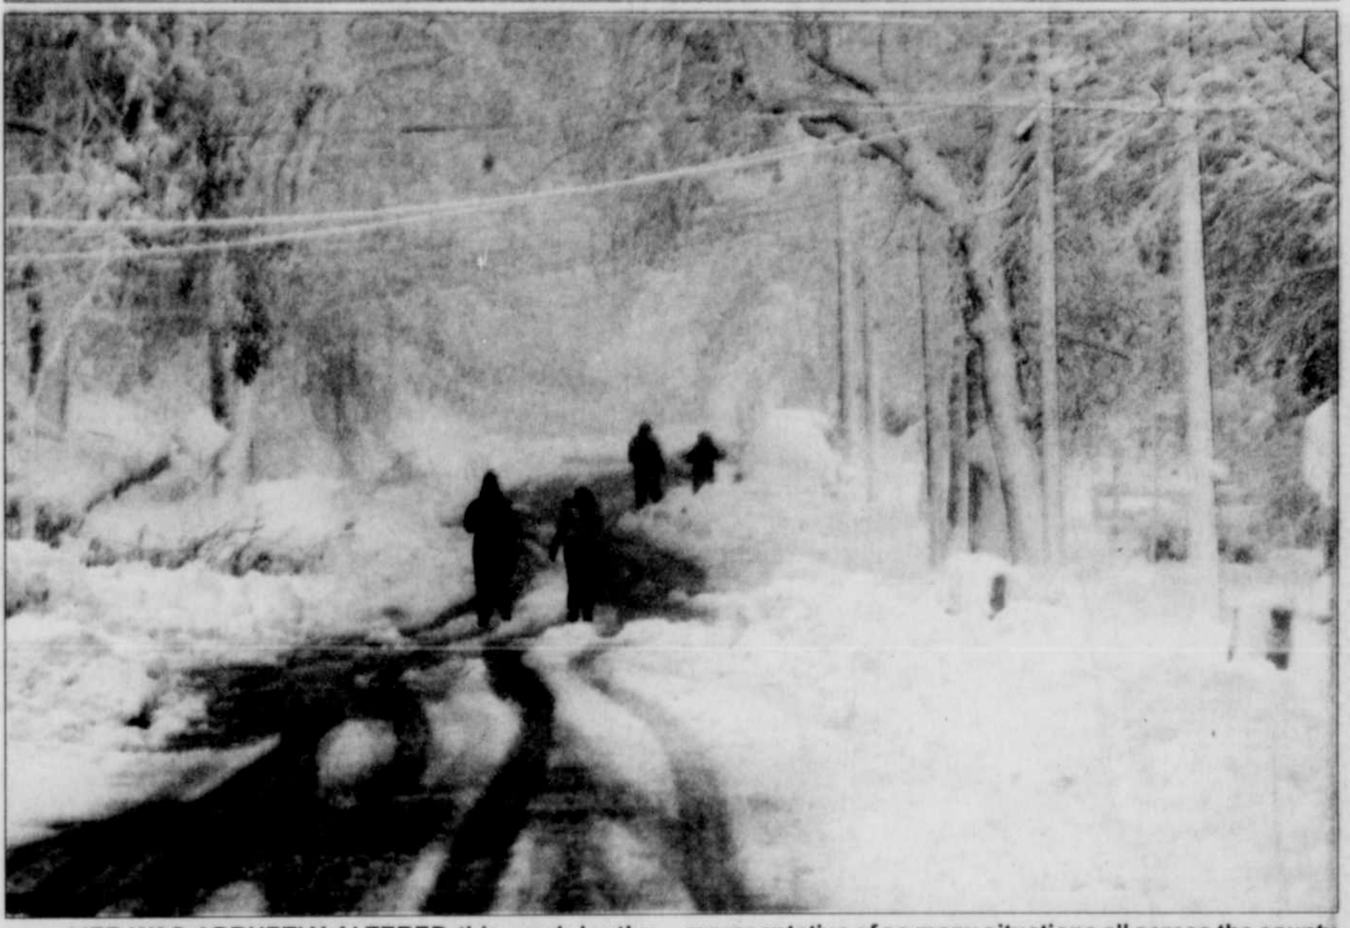
Well, it started snowing significantly around 2:30 in the afternoon. It's a fairly light snow with minor winds by Bittinger region standards. The Bittinger community almost always has the worst winter weather.



LIONS TREAT THE TOWN AT HALLOWEEN – The Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club once again sponsored the traditional Oakland Halloween Parade last week, followed by treats, games, and cake walks at the Oakland fire hall. The Lions, many of their family members, and Boy Scout Troop 22 worked together to host the event, and numerous businesses and professionals gave monetary contributions to purchase the treats and prizes. More than 500 children walked in the parade to the fire hall. The general co-chairmen of the event were Lions Tom Kuhn and Jeff Ashby. There were committees for the parade, donation and prize solitication, cake walk, publicity, money and game ticket detail, TV chances, costume judging, filling treat bags, handing out treats, awarding prizes, games, and clean-up. Several of the volunteers are pictured above. Kneeling left to right are Assistant Scout Master Mike Summerfield, Blake Smith, and Austin Baker. Standing from left are A. J. Savopolous, Lucas Baker, Scoutmaster Chip Smith, Bobby Witt, Mark Riggleman, Regis Marucci, Wayne Mowbray, Josh Bosley, Brian Oxford, Oakland fire chief John Feather, Josh Bishop, Lion treasurer Brian Boal, Paul Macy, Sean McCreery, Ryan Wolf, and Ed Panther. During the evening's activities, the Lions presented the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department a check for $1,000. Seen in the group picture is Feather receiving the check from Boal. The other photos were taken during the parade. The Lions will host the second Dodge Ball Tournament on Nov. 10 at the Oakland Community Center. A spokesperson noted that the tournament held in February was successful and the teams participating requested another event be held before the end of the year.



THERE IS DEFINITE FUN AND BEAUTY in such a weather event as the county has experienced this week. At the very top is a topsy turvy snowman, built in the Janet Cosner family yard. Below it is a snow jack-o'-lantern, so appropriate for such a snowy Halloween. It was built by William and John Hebden, pictured in this photo submitted by their mom, Elizabeth. Below is one of the many picturesque photographs submitted to The Republican, taken by Becky Mellinger along Rt. 39 in Oakland. Beautiful, yes, but also deadly dangerous. Persons may see more photos of the storm by going to www.therepublicannews.com and clicking on the blue button.



LIFE WAS ABRUPTLY ALTERED this week by the combination of Hurricane Sandy and a northern cold front, a match-up that produced a perilous situation in Garrett County and nearby West Virginia towns. People are pictured above meandering along Second Street in Oakland on Tuesday, avoiding the multiple power lines lying on the ground, and watching out for falling limbs. Photo by John McEwen. The picture below, showing a shattered telephone pole and fallen power lines, is representative of so many situations all across the county and in W.Va. It was taken along Rt. 24 in Eglon, W.Va., this morning. All are cautioned to stay away from fallen lines, and to never assume they are not live. Photo by Fabian Green. More photos are posted online at www.therepublicannews.com, and are accessible by clicking on the blue button. Next week's issue will also include more storm coverage.

Zumba Fitness Course Slated In Grantsville

The Continuing Education and Training Division of Garrett College will offer a Zumba® fitness course on Tuesdays, Nov. 13 to Dec. 11, from 6 to 7 p.m. at St. Anne's Catholic Church in Grantsville.

"Suitable for all ages, Zumba is often called exercise in disguise," said a college spokesperson. "Zumba fuses Latin rhythms and easy to simple movements. The routines feature interval training sessions where fast and slow rhythms and resistance training are combined to tone and sculpt the body while burning fat."

It is recommended that students bring a bottle of water and towel and eat a light snack ½ hour prior to the start of class.

The instructor for the course will be Rita Thomas, who is certified to teach Zumba Basic 1 and 2 and Zumba Toning. She has been a Zumba Instructor since April 2010 and is a ZIN (Zumba Instructor Network) member. Also, she has a master's degree in education.

Out-Of-State Donors Eyeing Up Opportunity In 6th District Race

by Carl Straumsheim
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – As the race in Maryland's 6th Congressional District heads into its final week, fundraising numbers show the candidates closing in on $5 million raised – a number heavily skewed toward Democratic challenger John Delaney, who has tapped out-of-state donors for more than $1 million.

Records from the Federal Election Commission show Delaney raised more than $250,000 during the first two and a half weeks of October. He has raised more than $3.8 million to date, which includes a loan of more than $1.7 million to the campaign. It also dwarfs Rep. Roscoe Bartlett's fundraising total of $1.1 million.

In Maryland, Delaney has outraised Bartlett, who has represented the 6th District for 20 years, by about $130,000, but about 70 percent of Bartlett's individual contributions – campaign donations from people, not political action groups, campaigns or party organizations – have come from in-state donors. For Delaney, that number is roughly 30 percent – one of the lowest totals of any Democrat running for the U.S. House of Representatives in Maryland.

"He's getting money, I guess, from his Wall Street buddies," Bartlett said. "I don't have any Wall Street buddies."

Bartlett's campaign manager, Ted Dacey, said the congressman's track record after 10 terms in office explains his support among Maryland donors.

"It's clear that Delaney's own constituents are not buying what he's selling," Dacey said.

Bartlett has gathered more contributions from Maryland – 535 to Delaney's 487 as of Oct. 25. Delaney still holds a larger fundraising total in the state because his donors tend to give almost twice as much as Bartlett's, averaging about $1,200.

Delaney's campaign manager, Justin Schall, said his candidate's message – and the prospect of flipping a House seat from red to blue – explains his popularity with out-of-state donors.

'I think this is a problem of success," Schall said. "We could not have run a very competitive race if we had only raised money from people in-state."

Paul Herrnson, director of the Center for American Politics and Citizenship at the University of Maryland, College Park, said Bartlett and Delaney are engaged in two concurrent campaigns: One for voters, the other for resources. He added that the latter, unlike the former, is not restricted to the 6th District.

"People raise the money where they can get it," Herrnson said. "In the case of an incumbent, there are tremendous advantages to raising money in the state. We are in the Washington, D.C., area, and some of what appears to be state money is probably in some ways Washington money. For a challenger, it's generally more difficult than an incumbent in an identical situation to make money."

Delaney's campaign alone has raised more than what Bartlett and his five past challengers raised between 2000 and 2010, and rounded out his record-breaking two weeks with a $1,000-per-ticket reception in Washington, D.C., with President Bill Clinton on Oct. 16. The campaign raked in another $144,000 from that event.

In comparison to Delaney, former Democratic Rep. Frank Kratovil raised nearly $9 in every $10 from individual contributions from Maryland donors during his 2008 race in the 1st District against then-state Sen. Andy Harris. Kratovil lost the rematch in 2010.

Herrnson said Kratovil, a former Queen Anne's County state's attorney, did not have the same fundraising constituency as Delaney, whose presence in the banking community has enabled him to draw from a national network of donors.

"I think it's always helpful to link the background and experience to the sources of funds," Herrnson said.

Bartlett enters the last full week of the campaign with about $110,000 on hand. Delaney has about $170,000.

VOLUNTEERISM, PUBLIC SERVICE AWARDS PRESENTED – The Friends of Deep Creek Lake board recently presented its third annual Stewardship Awards. The 2012 Volunteerism Award went to Charlie Lefbure, Jeff Nelson, and Bob Marko for their Marcellus shale water monitoring work. The Public Service Award was presented to Christine King, Department of Natural Resources scientist, who heads up the Marcellus Shale Water Monitoring Project. See story. Pictured above at the awards ceremony, left to right, are Nelson, Friends of DCL director Barbara Beelar, and Lefebure. Below Marko learns water sampling techniques from King.

Friends Of Deep Creek Lake Hold Awards Ceremony

The Friends of Deep Creek Lake board recently presented its third annual Stewardship Awards.

"It was fitting that the award ceremony was at a social gathering at Trader's Coffee House of local citizens and scientists here for the Marcellus shale work shop," noted director Barbara Beelar.

"Three Marcellus shale water monitoring volunteers who sampled Deep Creek Lake watershed streams received the 2012 Volunteerism Award: Charlie Lefebure, Jeff Nelson, and Bob Marko.

• Lefebure has been monitoring three sites along Cherry Creek; Nelson monitors Shingle Camp Run and Red Run; and Marko has been working a site at the base of Wisp Resort / Adventure Sports Center International.

The monitoring sites were selected by the Department of Natural Resources as areas on streams below lands that have been leased for shale drilling.

"All three of these volunteers have been demonstrated tremendous dedication to their work," Beelar said. "Volunteers sample their sites weekly, which requires strong commitment. The information collected creates the baseline data for surface water across the county. If and/or when drilling takes place, this data will be basis for determination whether there are any impacts on local streams."

The Public Service Award went to Christine King, a DNR water monitoring scientist who heads up the Marcellus Shale Water Monitoring Project. She provides training, oversight of volunteer sampling to ensure quality control, and other back-up tasks for the 72 volunteers engaged in sampling throughout the county.

"As with other work being done on Marcellus shale, Christine's responsibilities are on top of existing job demands," Beelar noted.

This year was the first year Friends of DCL did not present the Agricultural Stewardship Award. Board member Paul Weiler noted that financial supports for runoff and soil conservation have dried up, making it harder for farmers to invest in prevention measures.

"We created these awards to recognize the excellent work done by volunteers, public servants, and farmers in helping to meet our goals of conservation and protection of the Deep Creek Lake watershed," Beelar said about the volunteerism, pubic service, and stewardship awards. "This work is critically important to sustain the lake but not fully appreciated by all who enjoy the lake and watershed."

SRWA VOLUNTEERS RECOGNIZED – The Savage River Watershed Association has been recognized as a "Forest Champion" for its efforts to improve the health of forests within the watershed. Pictured are some of the group's volunteers who recently removed invasive species in the Bear Pen Run area of Savage River State Forest. They included Frostburg State University students Aileen Agar, Alex Cathart, Jay Hemmis, Jacob Humm, Ruth LaCourse, Carrie Martin, Meredith Miller, John Northam, Nick Powell, Joseph Sauceda, Larry Shockley, Laura Smith, Melissa Sobolewski, Aaron Valentine, Donald Weston, and Brian Wigglesworth; FSU professor Sunshine Brosi; New Germany Park staff members Erin Thomas and Adam Stachowiak; and community members Ron Boyer, Bill and Donna Fitzpatrick, Grover Martin, and Liz McDowell.

Savage River Watershed Association Receives "Forest Champion" Award

The Savage River Watershed Association (SRWA) has been recognized as a "Forest Champion" and recently received an award for "Greatest On-The-Ground Impact" for its use of programs or innovations that "vastly" improve the health of forests in the watershed.

"This is a great honor, and we are grateful to Wade Dorsey, Savage River State Forest manager, for submitting the nomination and to our members, partners, and all of the volunteers who make our conservation efforts and monitoring work possible," said SWRA president John Fritz.

The Forest Champion awards are presented by the Alliance for the Chesapeake Bay and the U.S. Forest Service to recognize the exemplary efforts of individuals and groups in conserving, restoring, and celebrating Chesapeake forests.

"The nominations received for this year's Forest Champion awards were truly inspiring" said Al Todd, executive director for the Alliance for the Chesapeake Bay. "Their examples are a continual reminder of the positive local action and careful land stewardship that is taking place to sustain our treasured natural resources."

Of the 41 million acres of land in the Chesapeake Bay watershed, about 55 percent, or 24 million acres, are forested. These forests provide vital services such as cleaning the air, filtering drinking water, reducing storm water flow, providing wildlife habitat, providing recreation opportunities, and contributing to the economy.

But according to Craig Highfield, program manager for forestry for the bay, "the amount of forest continues to decline each year – 100 acres per day on average – even though we know that forests are the best land cover for protecting water quality."

This is one reason the work being done by groups like the Savage River Watershed Association is so critical, he noted.

As Maryland's premier brook trout fishery, the Savage River has been identified as a conservation priority because it is one of the few watersheds that still contain intact populations of native brook trout in Maryland. The main reason for these high quality streams is that 82% of this watershed is forested. More than half of this forested area is public land, mainly Savage River State Forest, according to Dorsey.

"Since organized in 2006, SRWA has recognized this vital connection between the native brook trout population, healthy streams, and forests," he said. "A non-profit organization formed by local landowners and citizens, the Savage River Watershed Association works diligently to preserve and enhance the native brook trout habitat, maintain overall stream quality, and preserve and enhance the biodiversity in the watershed."

Since 2008 SRWA has recruited and coordinated volunteers to help control invasive species like Japanese spiraea and garlic mustard in the sensitive Bear Pen Run area of Savage River State Forest.

"In 2012 alone, SRWA destroyed countless Japanese spiraea shrubs and removed over 1,275 pounds of garlic mustard from this designated wildland," Dorsey said. "SRWA efforts to control the invasive species help ensure healthy tree regeneration and protect habitat for endangered species such as the West Virginia White butterfly."

SRWA volunteers have also planted over 4,000 red spruce trees to date in Savage River State Forest with hopes that they will fill in gaps where hemlock trees have been lost to an exotic invasive insect – the hemlock woolly adelgid.

Emerging threats from the proposed Marcellus shale drilling and hydraulic fracturing activities have also become a concern for the Savage River Watershed Association. In response, SRWA joined the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Marcellus Shale Stream Monitoring Coalition early in 2012. Since their training in March through September, dedicated SRWA volunteers have logged well over 800 hours collecting critical, biweekly, baseline monitoring data at 13 key locations within the watershed.

"We are very excited about our progress, but cannot afford to rest on our past success," said Kathy Bisko Koscianski, SRWA executive director. "New challenges and threats persist, so we must continue to expand and develop programs to preserve the native brook trout, protect overall stream quality, and preserve the rural nature and the natural resources of the Savage River watershed."

To learn more about efforts to protect and preserve the Savage River Watershed or to find out how to help, persons may visit savageriverwatershed.org or contact Kathy Koscianski at SRWAdirector@gmail.com or 301-689-7156. Donations may be sent to Savage River Watershed Association, P.O. Box 355, Frostburg, MD 21532.

GCCAC Notes Hiring Of Energy Loan Specialist

MEGAN BAUER

Garrett County Community Action has announced the hiring of Megan Bauer of Oakland as its new energy loan and education specialist. Her position is funded by the Maryland Be Smart program, administered by Maryland Community Development Administration.

Bauer will be offering her knowledge and skills in energy conservation education and renewable energy consultation for the western Maryland region, a spokesperson said. She received a bachelor of science degree in geographic science in 2008 from James Madison University's (JMU) College of Integrated Science and Technology (CISAT). She continued her education at JMU and studied abroad in Malta, where she completed her coursework for CISAT's Sustainable Environmental Resources Management Program.

She graduated in May 2011 with a master's degree in integrated science and technology from JMU and a European Union degree in sustainable environmental resources management from the University of Malta. She came to the area from Harrisonburg, Va., where she provided energy efficiency education for more than two years at JMU while serving as sustainability coordinator for JMU's Office of Facilities Management. She is also certified by the U.S. Green Building Council as a LEED green associate.

Persons or organizations with concerns about energy efficiency in the home or business may contact Bauer to learn about rebates and incentives available for energy efficient appliances and heating systems, or about renewable energy systems at the home or business level. She is available to make group presentations about energy efficiency tips and can also meet with residents one-on-one to answer their energy related questions. She is available by phone at 301-334-9431, ext. 142, and can also be reached by e-mail at mbauer@garrettcac.org.

Maryland's Be Smart program's energy conservation component is in line with Community Action's goal of economic self-sufficiency and independence through increasing wealth by assisting clients in saving money on utility bills, the spokesperson noted.

Healing Service Set At Shepherd Of Hills Church

A worship service for healing will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 13, at 7 p.m. in the Sitzmark Room of Will O' the Wisp. Prayers will be offered for individuals who are suffering from illness and injury, for those struggling with loss and brokenness, and for those who are distressed and fearful. All are welcome to attend.

The worship will be a quiet service of music, singing, and prayer, offered by Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church. The church's prayer group meets weekly to pray, to monitor the prayer list, and to include the names in the weekly church bulletin for Sunday morning prayer and so that all present may also include them in personal prayers during the week.

Shepherd of the Hills is a mission congregation, worshipping on Sunday mornings at 9:30 a.m. at Garrett Eight Cinemas, Deep Creek Lake. For further information, persons may go to the church web site at www.shepherdofthehills.org, or call Beth Johnson at 301-387-8547.

Listen to God

A new puppy is a delight, until we try to get him to obey our orders! If we can't teach him to listen, he might run away and get hurt. A well loved puppy, however, is slowly and patiently trained, until he almost always obeys and is mostly safe. Could God feel the same way about us? We can live our lives according to His Word and surely we are safer and happier when we do so. He also gave us free will, and our human nature seems to often lead us astray; yet, we are well loved by God and He will never give up on us. Worship God this week and train in His Word.

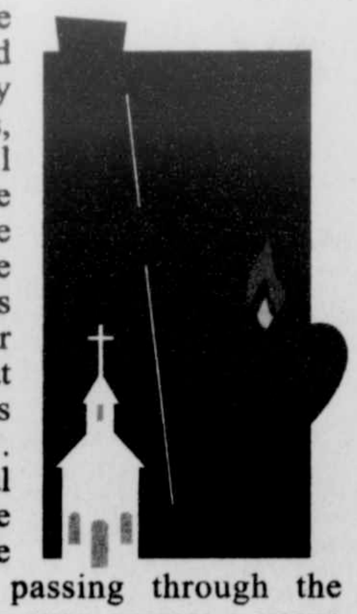
Feet of Clay and Souls of Spirit



Human beings have one foot in heaven and one foot planted firmly on the earth. That is, we are physical creatures whose natural home is the earth, and yet we are also spiritual beings who can never completely ignore that our true home is somewhere else. Many deeply spiritual people express the sentiment that they are merely sojourners passing through the physical realm. Some even express a vague sense that they have been separated or torn away from their true home by this earthly existence. But even if there is a kind of cosmic homesickness for heaven, we need not feel out of place or strange here on earth. The earth was created for our good pleasure and surely God wants us to feel at home here. As the poet Max Ehrmann put it in his prose poem Desiderata, "You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here." We should affirm both of our natures; we are both physical and spiritual beings. The voyage we are on through this wondrous cosmos is both a physical and a spiritual journey.

–Christopher Simon

"If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body. So it is written: 'The first man Adam became a living being'; the last Adam, a life-giving spirit. The spiritual did not come first, but the natural, and after that the spiritual. The first man was of the dust of the earth; the second man is of heaven."

Say you want a 'Revolution': NBC orders up a full season of the new series

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

What would the world be like if the lights went out? What if it wasn't just the lights, but everything that used electricity: computers, telephones, even car engines and batteries -- everything we take for granted in our modern world?

That's the premise behind one of this season's biggest new shows, NBC's "Revolution," which is airing on Monday evenings.

Even before "Revolution" took to the airwaves a few weeks back, some critics were already predicting its cancelation. It's the unfortunate fate of most new shows that launch in the fall season. Unwilling to invest too much in a program that, in all likelihood, will never catch on with audiences, the networks typically only commission a few episodes to start.

Some critics were also quick to point out that "Revolution" looked like it was just a transparent attempt to cash in on one of this year's biggest movies, "The Hunger Games." The similarities between the two are obvious: the main character is a pretty young woman who, in a grimly dystopian future, survives by her wits and her skill with a bow (or in the case of "Revolution," a crossbow).

If indeed the "Hunger Games" parallel was a deliberate ploy to attract audiences, it certainly didn't backfire -- it paid off. "Revolution's" premiere episode drew in more than 10 million viewers, making it the biggest drama premiere on NBC in five years, and the viewership numbers have remained consistently high ever since.

So it'll come as no surprise for the legions of fans watching this new Monday night juggernaut that the network announced on Oct. 2 that it's picking the show up for a full season. And as these fans will tell you, while "Revolution" may look like "The Hunger Games" on the surface, once you've dived into this dark, electricity-less future, you'll see that it's far more similar to the ABC hit "Lost."

It is 15 years since the power suddenly and mysteriously went out, and public order has completely collapsed. Militia control much of what was once the United States. One family in a small village in Wisconsin, however, may hold the key to both the mysterious past, and to a hopefully better future.

The story is told primarily from the point of view of Charlie Matheson (Tracy Spiridakos), a brave yet compassionate young woman who was only five years old when the power went out. It's revealed early on that her father Ben (Tim Guinee) holds a powerful secret -- a secret that the militia will kill to get their hands on.

That secret, contained on a USB key, may hold the answers to why the power suddenly and mysteriously went out. It may also be the key to bringing it back, and within minutes of the pilot's opening credits the nefarious Monroe's Militia has attacked and killed Charlie's father and kidnapped her brother Danny (Graham Rogers). Heeding the words of her dying father, she sets out across the wilderness to find her uncle Miles (Billy Burke), who himself has secrets from his past and connections to the militia that's now hot on Charlie's trail.

Like with the now-defunct "Lost," "Revolution" boasts a complex and mysterious back story that is only slowly revealed as time goes on. That similarity is no coincidence. "Revolution" is executive produced by J. J. Abrams, the man behind that supernatural island thriller.

Also akin to "Lost," it features a diverse and interesting cast of characters, brought to life by a group of talented actors.

Spiridakos seems to have landed her breakout role with her casting in the role of Charlie Matheson. The Canadian actress has had numerous minor TV roles ("Supernatural" and "Being Human" among them), and a bit part in last year's big-screen hit "Rise of the Planet of the Apes," but landing the lead role in what's turned out to be a hit show may well turn her into a household name.

Rogers, in the role of her brother Danny, is another new face gracing the grim future. Despite his newcomer status, he's been busy this year. Besides "Revolution," he's also appearing in two indie films: "Struck By Lightning" (written by and starring "Glee's" Chris Colfer) and "Long Time Gone" (opposite acclaimed actors Virginia Madsen and Eva Longoria).

The other members of the Matheson family are perhaps a bit better known. While the family patriarch doesn't live long, the role of Ben Matheson is played by a prolific and accomplished actor. Guinee's biography reads like a novel, with more than 200 roles to his credit. Some of his best known appearances are in "Iron Man" (2008), "Iron Man 2" (2010), "Ladder 49" (2004) and "Courage Under Fire" (1996).

Burke, as uncle Miles, will be instantly recognizable to fans of one of the biggest movie franchises of recent years. Burke plays the role of Bella Swan's father Charlie in the Twilight Saga film series, and on the small screen he's been seen in "24," "The Closer" and "Fringe," among others.

With a full season now in the cards, the many fans of "Revolution" won't need to stage a revolt at 30 Rockefeller to see more of this hit series. If you're one of the few people not tuning in, look for it Monday nights over on NBC.

Choosing Cuoco

'Big Bang' leading lady to host awards show again

By Sheila Busteed
TV Media

CHOOSING CUOCO: Portraying the queen of the geek posse on "The Big Bang Theory" hasn't held Kaley Cuoco back from becoming a popular host choice for an awards show decided by popular vote.

Organizers for the People's Choice Awards are bringing Cuoco back for a second year in a row to host the event. CBS will air the ceremony live on Wednesday, Jan. 9, from the Nokia Theatre in Los Angeles.

The event, which honors the music, film and television industries, is controlled completely by the fans, who decide everything from the award categories included and who is nominated to the actual winners themselves. Voting closed last week for the 40 categories.

"It's an honor to return as host of the 2013 People's Choice Awards and kick off awards season with one of the most fun events of the year," said Cuoco.

The ceremony will be executive produced by Mark Burnett, the man behind such hit shows as "Survivor," "The Voice" and "Are You Smarter Than a 5th Grader?"

"I am so thrilled that Kaley will be joining us again as host for this year's People's Choice Awards," said Burnett. "She is such an engaging performer who brings an undeniable energy and passion to our stage."

Cuoco currently plays Penny, a wannabe actress who befriends four incredibly intelligent but socially awkward scientists, in "The Big Bang Theory," one of CBS's most popular shows. She previously starred in "6Teen," "Charmed" and "8 Simple Rules." She's done voice work in "Brandy & Mr. Whiskers" and has also guest starred in "Mercy," "Prison Break," "Tru Calling" and "7th Heaven."

Kaley Cuoco of "The Big Bang Theory" will host the People's Choice Awards 2013

Strange BUT TRUE

• In this season of bitter partisan rivalries, it would be well to remember the following sage observation: "Do not trust to the cheering, for those persons would cheer just as much if you and I were going to be hanged." The man who first made that observation was Lord Protector of England Oliver Cromwell, considered by some to be a hero of liberty, by others to be a regicidal dictator. He died in 1658, probably from septicemia. He was so reviled that, three years later, he body was exhumed so that he could be posthumously executed, his body thrown into a pit and his head displayed on a pole outside Westminster Hall. ¥ Those who study such things say that if all the gold in the world were combined in one lump, it would result in a cube that measures 20 yards on each side.

• If you're planning a trip to Lima, Peru, you might want to add Puente de Piedra to your sightseeing list. Though the Spanish name means "Bridge of Stone," the span is popularly known as the Bridge of Eggs. Legend has it that in 1608, the builders the used the whites of 10,000 seabird eggs in the mortar that holds the stones together.

• Pumpkins are native to the Americas, not Europe. This is why the original jack-o'-lantern was a turnip.

• What do the words "obscene," "tranquil," "mediate," "catastrophe," "dire," "critical," "vast" and "apostrophe" have in common? All of them appeared in print for the first time in the works of William Shakespeare.

• On Nov. 7, 1776, Congress chooses Richard Bache to succeed his father-in-law, Benjamin Franklin, as postmaster general. Franklin invested nearly 40 years in the establishment of a reliable system of delivering mail. He was fired in 1774 for opening and publishing Massachusetts Royal Governor Thomas Hutchinson's correspondence.

• On Nov. 5, 1895, Rochester, N.Y., patent attorney George Selden wins U.S. Patent No. 549,160 for an "improved road engine" powered by a "liquid-hydrocarbon engine of the compression type." With that, as far as the government was concerned, George Selden had invented the car -- though he had never built a single one.

• On Nov. 10, 1928, the first installment of "All Quiet on the Western Front," Erich Maria Remarque's acclaimed novel of World War I, is first published in serial form. Remarque's realistic depiction of trench warfare from the perspective of young soldiers was eventually translated into more than 20 languages.

• On Nov. 11, 1942, Congress approves lowering the draft age to 18 and raising the upper limit to age 37, increasing the number of draftees. During the first draft in 1940, 50 percent were rejected for health reasons and 20 percent of those who registered were illiterate.

• On Nov. 8, 1951, Yankees catcher Yogi Berra is voted the American League's most valuable player for the first time in his career. He went on to be the league MVP twice more, in 1954 and 1955.

• On Nov. 9, 1965, the biggest power failure in U.S. history occurs as all of New York state, and parts of seven neighboring states and eastern Canada are plunged into darkness. The blackout during the evening rush hour trapped 800,000 people in New York's subways and stranded thousands more in office buildings and elevators.

Q: During the 1960s, I purchased a set of vanity license plates with the logo "Texaco." I understand that my plates were one of a kind, and I would now like to sell them. -- Tom, Holly Hill, Fla.

A: License plates have become popular with collectors in recent years. Some of the earliest ones were made of porcelain and can now bring hundreds of dollars in the marketplace. Typical prices are a 1935 Colorado plate, $45; a 1915 Texas plate, $300; a 1939 New York plate, $35; and an Arizona solid-copper plate, $40.

The Automobile License Plate Collectors Association is, perhaps, where you should begin your search for a buyer. The contact information is ALPCA, 118 Quaker Road, Hampton, VA 23669-2024; and www.alpca.com.

A: Take the money and run. Your book is worth about half that amount, according to "Little Golden Books: A Collector's Identification & Price Guide" by Steve Santi (Krause Books).

Q: I have what appears to be a painting of "The Lovers" by Pablo Picasso. A larger version is in the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. Is it possible that Picasso painted this smaller painting, too? -- Calvin, Chatham, Va.

A: I examined the photo you sent me, and I am of the opinion that what you have is a print. To find out for certain, you need to hire the services of a good art appraiser. You can find one by contacting the American Society of Appraisers, P.O. Box 17265, Washington, DC 20071.

Q: I have an egg cup with "Snow White." It was probably made about the same time the movie premiered. It is marked "Walt Disney Enterprises." -- Ellen, Loveland, Colo.

A: Your egg cup was probably manufactured in Japan in 1937. If it was and is in decent condition, it is worth about $250.

Birds That Cling

Bird feeders are available for birds that cling, such as titmice, woodpeckers, finches, wrens and nuthatches. The feeders are made of wire mesh and don't have perches. They come in handy because birds that can dominate a feeder, like grackles or doves, leave these feeders alone.

Northern High Class Of 1972 Holds Reunion

The Northern High School class of 1972 recently held its 40-year reunion at the Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake. The event began with a social hour, followed by a buffet dinner, memorial service for 10 members, a short business meeting, and music.

Group pictures of all attendees and class members were taken, and a disc is being assembled, for those interested, of the nearly 400 pictures taken during the evening.

Class president Vickie T. Powell welcomed the class before the dinner. She reminded the members of various events that they lived through 40 years ago and compared them to current events.

Other class officers attending included vice president Craig Wengard and secretary Jennifer K. Hady. Forty-five class members and spouses were in attendance, including one teacher, Lillian Reckner.

There was a memorabilia table for items from the class, as well as a computer program with shots from prior reunions and events.

Future reunions were discussed, with ideas to stay with a fall event, following Autumn Glory weekend, perhaps to have a tour of the "new" NHS facilities, and to stay with the every five-year plan, at least through the 50th anniversary.

Attendees came from as far away as North Carolina, Indiana, Kentucky, Virginia, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania.

Comments were heard that "I traveled this far, so where are the local members?"

"Indeed, we had several first-time attendees, and the evening resounded with laughter, constant chatter, and reminders of our years together," said a class spokes--person.

The planning committtee of Powell, Patty B. Rice, Charee Reckner, Bill Hetz, Donna M. Fost, and Jerry Humberson were thanked for their efforts in putting together the event. In turn, the committee requested help from the attendees to keep addresses current, to pass on other classmates' addresses, and to share with others how much fun they had, to help increase attendance and interest in future reunions.

"Many thanks to the wonderful staff and service of the Will O' the Wisp for providing a beautiful setting for the event," the spokesperson said. "Music was provided by Janice Speicher of the Janice Ray Acoustic Duo."

Southern States Local Annual Meeting Slated

Southern States Cooperative will review its operations at a series of local annual meetings, including the upcoming meeting for members of Southern States Oakland Cooperative Inc. The local cooperative will hold its annual membership meeting on Thursday, Nov. 8, at the Pleasant Valley Community Center, 1947 Joni Miller Road, Oakland. The business meeting will begin at 7 p.m.

"Fiscal 2012 was an extremely challenging year for Southern States Cooperative," said president and CEO Thomas R. Scribner. "The winter of 2012 was the mildest since 1932 and the second warmest since 1895. The warm temperatures significantly impacted our earnings, as agricultural producers needed less feed related products and rural homeowners burned fewer gallons of home heating fuels. During Fiscal year 2013, the corporate direction will be to focus on the entire customer experience for current, new, and prospective customers. It is our belief that with a customer focused sales strategy, 2013 will be a great year."

The Oakland cooperative's management will use the meeting to report on both local and company-wide operations, as well as projected budget results for next year. Local board members will be elected and retiring board members will be recognized. Board nominees are Shawn Gibson, John Grose, and Jim Richard. District "E" election delegate nominees are Carl Bachtel and Bill Grose.

"The annual meeting is the best single opportunity to outline our plans for the future to our membership and discuss our progress in meeting our financial goals," noted David L. See, manager of Southern States Oakland Cooperative Inc.

Founded in 1923, Southern States now has more than 300,000 farmer-members. The cooperative serves its members and non-member customers through some 1,200 retail outlets, according to Southern States.

OFFICIALS JUMP INTO ACTION – The Potomac Edison Storm Response Team worked in close coordination with all local emergency management officials as well as the National Guard as they tackled the overwhelming problem of 18,000+ residences and businesses having no power following last week's "superstorm." As of this morning, the vast majority of those customers have lights again, with most being restored by early this week. As of this morning, about 135 Garrett County customers were still without power. Neighboring Preston County, W.Va., has fared worse, at least in restoration efforts, as the number of those without power at noon today was standing at 4,502. Officials have worked around the clock to make repairs, and will continue to do so until all is restored. A report on a county-wide update session, held this morning, appears on this page. Shown from left are Potomac Edison staff members Don Beatty, manager of customer support, Ed Shuttleworth (standing), director of operations services, and James Metz, senior economic development representative. In the background are National Guard members and an officer of the Howard County Office of Emergency Management. Beatty and Metz manned the command center for Potomac Edison to coordinate power restoration activities with county road crews and public safety officials. Friendsville Man Fatally Shot In Hazelton, W.Va.

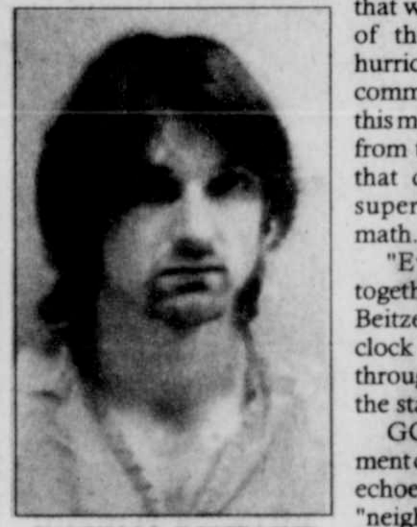
A West Virginia man is charged with first-degree murder after allegedly shooting a Maryland man in the face with a 12-gauge shotgun in nearby Hazelton, W.Va., Saturday evening.

Justin Michael Fontaine, 28, formerly of Garrett County, was being held without bond Monday at Tygart Valley Regional Jail.

West Virginia State Police reported that after receiving a "shots-fired" complaint, they responded to Fontaine's home and found 33-year-old Jerame Adam Sines of Friendsville dead in a pool of blood on an enclosed porch at Fontaine's home Saturday evening. The arrest was made at the scene without incident.



JUSTIN M. FONTAINE

Media outlets say Fontaine was arraigned in Preston County Magistrate Court. A preliminary hearing is set for Nov. 13.

State Police did not immediately comment on a possible motive for the slaying.

A full obituary for Jerame Sines can be found in this week's A-section.

Rope, Pole Saw Stolen From Power Company Truck

Maryland State Police are investigating a theft that occurred along Trap Run Road, Friendsville, last Friday morning.

An unknown suspect reportedly removed a pole saw and a rope from an electric company truck while repairs were being completed to power lines at approximately 11:30 a.m. The suspect is described as a white male driving a maroon Subaru. Anyone with information regarding the incident is asked to contact the MSP McHenry Barrack at 301-387-1101.

Delaney Ends Bartlett's 11th Term Bid; Sebold, Downton Will Retain BOE Seats

Congressman Roscoe Bartlett lost his bid for an 11th term in office during Tuesday's general election. Democratic challenger John Delaney received 59 percent of the votes in the redrawn 6th District. The 86-year-old Bartlett garnered 38 percent of the districtwide votes.

In Garrett County, Bartlett received nearly 67 percent of the votes, compared to Delaney with 30 percent, according to unofficial results from the Maryland State Board of Elections.

Charlotte Sebold and Cindy Downton will retain their seats on the Garrett County Board of Education. Four nonpartisan candidates ran for two at-large seats on the board. Voters could vote for two candidates.

Unofficial results from the state elections board show that Sebold received 34.6 percent of the votes, while Downton had 25.4 percent. Gary Barlow garnered 20.4 percent, and Darlena Grady had 19.2 percent of the votes. There were 74 votes cast for write-ins.

Sebold has been a board member since 1993, and Downton was appointed in 2011 after Jim Raley resigned from the board to serve as a Garrett County commissioner.

Incumbent U.S. Senator Ben Cardin, a Democrat, easily defeated Republican challenger Daniel Bongino. Statewide, Cardin received 55 percent of the votes, and Bongino garnered 27 percent. In Garrett County, however, Bongino received 67 percent of the votes, compared to Cardin's 27 percent.

Statewide, President Barack Obama easily defeated Republican challenger Mitt Romney. Obama received 61 percent of the votes. Romney received 37 percent. In Garrett County, Romney had 75 percent of the votes, compared to Obama's 23 percent.

In the Maryland referendum questions, Question 4 – Public Institutions of Higher Education – was approved. Statewide, 58 percent of voters favored the preferred law, while 42 percent disapproved. In Garrett County, 7,250 voters were against it, while 4,123 were in favor of the law.

Question 5 – Congressional Districting Plan – was also approved. Statewide, about 64 percent were for the law, while 37 were against it. Locally, about 5,000 voters approved it, and about 6,000

Delaney Bests Bartlett As Other Incumbents Coast To Re-Election

by Carl Straumsheim
Capital News Service

COLLEGE PARK – Democrat John Delaney on Tuesday night ended Rep. Roscoe Bartlett's 10-term reign in the U.S. House of Representatives on an election night that otherwise featured no surprises among Maryland's federal races.

Bartlett, the 86-year-old Buckeystown resident who has represented Maryland's' 6th Congressional District since 1993, fell to about 39 percent three hours after polls closed at 8 p.m. Delaney captured about 57 percent, with Libertarian candidate Nickolaus Mueller taking about 3 percent.

"It has been my great honor to serve the constituents of the 6th District of Maryland for the past 20 years," Bartlett said in a statement. "Although the election did not have the outcome we had hoped for, we can hold our heads high knowing that we have fought for the principles and values we care about."

In the presidential contest, as in 2008, Maryland awarded its 10 electoral votes to President Barack Obama, who, two hours after polls closed at 8 p.m., led Mitt Romney with 68 to 30 percent of the vote.

Maryland was never expected to be in play, and neither candidate spent any time on the campaign trail in the state.

The other incumbents in Maryland's congressional delegation were also reelected by comfortable margins. Minutes after the polls closed, Democratic first-term Sen. Ben Cardin was projected to win the three-way race against Republican Dan Bongino, a former U.S. Secret Service agent, and independent candidate Rob Sobhani, a businessman who funneled more than $6 million into his own campaign.

Maryland continues to be one of the most Democratic states in the country, having cast its electoral votes for the Democratic candidate in the last six presidential elections.

Delaney, a financier who in 2000 founded the commercial lending bank CapitalSource, defeated state Sen. Rob Garagiola, D-Montgomery, in a primary battle that drew a host of candidates from both parties to compete in a 6th District made competitive through redistricting.

Delaney outraised Bartlett by a 4-to-1 margin, contrib-

THANK YOU ALL
Have a safe day!

A COMMON PHRASE THIS WEEK – Hundreds of people have made the difficult trek to storm-torn Garrett County in the past 10 days to aid in relief efforts, power restoration, and tree removal. The sentiment expressed to them is summed up in the hand-made sign shown above, which was placed at the Potomac Edison staging area, set up at the Garrett County Fairgrounds in McHenry. A headquarters for the National Guard was established in the parking lot of the Oakland Lowe's as well. Crews from as far away as South Carolina and Florida have been in the area, working around the clock to restore power to the thousands left in the dark in the wake of the smash-up between Hurricane Sandy and a northern cold front. See additional photos and stories. Photo by Dana Rukse, Potomac Edison staff photographer.

Agencies, Companies, Residents "Pull Together" To Deal With Hurricane Sandy

"Who would of thought that we would take the worst of the hit from a coastal hurricane?" Garrett County commissioner Jim Raley said this morning during a briefing from the numerous agencies that dealt with last week's superstorm and its aftermath.

"Everybody just pulled together," said Del. Wendell Beitzel about the round-the-clock efforts of people from throughout Garrett County, the state, and the nation.

GC emergency management coordinator Brad Frantz echoed that "teamwork" and "neighbor-helping-neighbor" sentiment and thanked everyone involved.

"Most of all I thank you, the citizens of Garrett County," he said.

Local residents and businesses provided food, water, socks, gloves, personal care items, and other "creature comforts" for power company and other work crews. A "thank-you" dinner was held for those crews at the fairgrounds last night.

"They said they enjoyed helping out," Beitzel said about the workers.

Local residents also assisted their neighbors by doing wellness checks, cutting trees, plowing snow, and helping in various other ways.

Frantz oted at the meeting that there was one storm-related death, an elderly man in the Oakland area succumbed while shoveling snow last Tuesday. There were also numerous house fires and carbon monoxide incidents.

More than 100 Potomac Edison customers in Garrett County were still without power this morning, Nov. 8, following the aftermath of last week's mega storm. Power to most of these customers is "expected to be restored by the end of the week," First Energy's web site states.

Conditions in neighboring West Virginia counties, however, are more dire. More than 4,000 customers in Preston County and 1,200 in Tucker County are still without electricity this morning. The majority of these Mon Power customers are expected to have power by Friday, Nov. 9, at 11:59 p.m., according to First Energy.

Hurricane Sandy headed inland Monday and collided with a cold front, producing high winds and nearly three feet of wet, heavy snow. Many homes lost electricity about 8:30 p.m. that night and were without power for more than a week.

About 80 percent of Garrett County homes and businesses were without power by Tuesday morning. Garrett County Roads Department and State Highway Administration crews began working around the clock, plowing roads and removing debris. They were impeded in their progress, however, by hundreds of downed trees and power lines.

With the help of the Allegany County Roads Department, the State Highway Administration, Maryland Emergency Management Agency, Maryland National Guard, Maryland Department of Natural Resources, hundreds of power company workers from across the nation, numerous professional and volunteer tree cutters, and other others, roads were cleared and power was steadily restored to thousands of Garrett County residents.

Wisp Resort May Get New Owners

A pending sale of the Wisp Resort, McHenry, is in the final stages of approval between the principals, according to an announcement at noon today by Karen Myers, one of the current owners of the property.

The parent company of Wisp, Recreational Industries Inc., filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy in October 2011 because of guaranty issues related to real estate development. Since that time, current owners have been pursuing and evaluating various options of restructuring or a sale of assets.

When an announcement is made, details will be available at www.therepublicannews.com and will be published in the next print issue.

SIGNIFICANT, SERIOUS LOSSES – A vast number of Garrett County's trees were damaged or destroyed in last week's storm, but that was not the area's only loss. Some local businesses have suffered near destruction as a result of the heavy snow, power outages, and other ramifications of the weather event. The inside of the Grand Central Home Furnishings store, located along Rt. 135 just outside Mtn. Lake Park, is pictured above. The weight of the 30 inches of wet snow caused the roof to cave in Friday morning, according to reports. In today's issue is also a photograph of the Pinetum Tree Farm, which was virtually destroyed. The unprecedented storm has indeed wreaked havoc and destruction, and recovery will surely take many months. Photo by Phil Rook.

THROWING A GREAT BLOCK in the photo above is Southern High School's Charlie Harvey (#58), as he knocks Northern High School's Jeremy Bender out of the way for Ram ball carrier Jeff Eddington during the annual county clash of the Rams and Huskies last Friday evening. While the Rams were slated to host the contest this year, the game had to be moved to the Mountain Ridge High School field in Frostburg because of the nearly three feet of snow that fell in Garrett County last week. Clearly, the Mountain Ridge field also had to be cleared of several inches of snow as well. The Rams prevailed in a close defensive battle by scoring a touchdown as time ran out in the first half. Also identifiable in the photo are Northern's Meshach Metz (#7) and Rams Garrett Campbell (#38) and Kevin Colaw (#11). See sports section for story and additional photos, all taken by Lisa Broadwater. SOME 3,000 CHRISTMAS TREES WERE DESTROYED in last week's "Frankenstorm" at Marshall and Cindy Stacy's Pinetum Christmas tree farm near Swanton. Most of the trees were Douglas fir, which were snapped in half by heavy, wet snow and high winds on the 370-acre tree farm. "We sell primarily large, 15-30 foot trees, and nearly all of our large,'sold' trees for this holiday have been destroyed by the storm," Cindy said. "So we were forced to cancel 90 percent of our Christmas tree orders and refund customers their money. We're essentially out of business this season and won't receive our annual 'pay check' from selling Christmas trees. We don't have crop insurance for Christmas trees, as only Lloyds of London insures Christmas trees and rates are cost prohibitive. This is the second time (a 1995 November huge snow storm wiped out our harvest) we've had to cancel the majority of our Christmas tree orders, but Marshall figures out of 43 years in the tree business, that isn't bad." Photo by Cindy Stacy.

"NEITHER SNOW NOR RAIN..." True to their creed, many U.S. Postal workers made an extra effort to make sure Garrett County residents received their mail this week and last, as shown by this rural carrier stretching to reach a barely visible mail box. Those who were able rose above and beyond the call of duty to make sure local residents experienced as much normalcy as possible amidst superstorm Sandy. Photo by Jacob Hanlin.

This service will be available through Friday, Nov. 30, and the dumping of storm- related wood debris only will be accepted. This is public service that a continuation will be dependent upon cooperation and compliance.

Q: What can I do with storm-related woody debris? May I burn it?

A: To report burning of brush that is associated with the recent storm damage, persons may call the Garrett County's non-emergency number in the 9-1-1 communications center at 301-334-1929.

The normal permitting procedure for open burning through the Garrett County Health Department is temporarily suspended until Saturday, Nov. 17. Brush may be burned any time of the day provided there is snow on the ground; otherwise, burning should occur between 4 p.m. and midnight.

All fires must be kept 200 feet from neighboring habitable dwellings and gathering places.

Q: Is it safe to eat food that hasn't been refrigerated for multiple days due to the storm?

A: Food Safety Tips:

- Discard all perishable foods that have been without refrigeration and have remained at a temperature of 40° Fahrenheit and above for two hours or more.
- Do not eat canned foods if the can has been damaged.
- Keep foods that have been stored in an unopened, well-functioning freezer based on the following criteria:

–A half-full, unopened freezer will keep foods safely for up to 24 hours.

–A fully stocked, unopened freezer can keep foods safely for 48 hours.

Q: I have contacted my insurance company. Do I need to contact the county to report property damage related to the storm as well?

A: If your property has sustained damage or loss, please remember it is your responsibility to contact your homeowners insurance to file a claim. The county encourages residents and businesses to report damages by using the DILP storm damage reporting form found at: http://garrettcounty.org/disaster or call 301-334-7470.

By reporting your damages, please be aware that the county is not responsible for repairing or mitigating damages. The purpose of this reporting system is to enable the county to collect data in order to possibly become eligible for state and federal disaster assistance. The county will only be eligible if the disaster declaration threshold is met.

In Sandy's Wake, One Garrett Town Reduced To A Fire Hall And A Diner

by Julie Baughman
Capital News Service

Editor's note: The articles that appear here were written by staff from Capital News Service, who came to Garrett County last Thursday following the crippling snow storm.

FRIENDSVILLE – In the aftermath of Sandy, the small town of Friendsville in Western Maryland has been reduced to cold darkness.

Around town, "CLOSED" signs hung in windows Thursday and only a few brave people wandered the streets.

Somerset Rural Electric Cooperative, Inc.
A Touchstone Energy® Cooperative

Thank You!

Dear Co-op Members and Friends,

Superstorm Sandy was one for the history books. In our 73 years of operations, Somerset Rural Electric has seen very few storms that have caused so much damage and so many members without power. Now that the lights are back on and we've had a chance to catch our breath, there are a lot of people we want to thank.

First, thank you to our members who lost power as a result of the storm. Your patience and your expressions of support for our people in the field were greatly appreciated. We're humbled that the first thing many of you said after getting the power back on was "thank you" rather than complain.

We also want to thank the outside crews who helped with the restoration. We had an additional eight linemen from REA Energy, Indiana and Ebensburg, PA, two linemen from Bedford REC, Bedford, PA, four linemen from Bottenfield Power Line, Hollidaysburg, PA and 12 tree trimmers from Townsend Tree Experts, Parker City, IN.

Finally, thanks to the Co-op employees who were out in the field and in the office. In the six days, line crews replaced more than 40 broken poles while our office personnel fielded more than 8,000 calls. It takes a huge logistical effort to restore and rebuild after a major storm.

Electricity powers the necessities and conveniences of our modern world, and sometimes it takes a lot of old-fashioned hard work to repair the damage left in the wake of a storm.

Somerset Rural Electric is always working for you…our members.

We Have Survived...

Hurricane Sandy, and its companion nor'easter that dumped 2-3 feet of snow on Garrett County last week, will be talked about by us local residents for the rest of our lives. While we who live here are accustomed to major winter storms, there have been few – at least in recent history – that have matched this one in terms of the level of damages that were incurred.

The storm reminded us of our vulnerability, but also of our apparently inborn ingenuity and downright survival skills that get so taken for granted in the highly technological world in which we live. The majority of our county was suddenly without electric power, with some luckier households losing it for hours, but many others for days. Communication, both via cellular phones and land lines, was cut off, or at least hampered, as the lines fell and the towers were impacted. Many lost not only lights and phone service, but also heat and water. Travel and transportation were made virtually impossible. Trees and limbs crashed to the earth, some on homes and vehicles. Some structures collapsed under the extreme weight of the blue snow. Many lives were thus in great danger.

But thanks to literally hundreds of people, tremendous support from both inside and from way outside the county, and the aforementioned ingenuity, we have apparently all survived, even though there has been massive property damage. We have done what we had to do; we figured out a way not only to take care of ourselves, but to aid and assist our neighbors so that they too have survived.

Garrett County sheriff Rob Corley states it well in a letter to the editor that appears on this page, as he notes just how massive the effort was, by so many people, to successfully pull through this disaster. He also extends appreciation to the many and various individuals and groups of people who made it all possible.

One person who should be added to the list is Governor Martin O'Malley, whose response to our disaster (once he was pointedly made aware of it by some of us) was both quick and efficient. He was here within roughly 36 hours of the conclusion of the storm, and within hours there were power crews, tree experts, and National Guard personnel en route to Garrett County. Crews came from as far away as Florida and the far West. The response was indeed impressive and much appreciated. The great majority of the time we can handle our storm situations, but this one was off the chart.

Some lessons, it is hoped, have been learned by all of us, as there are a number of relatively simple things that each of us can do to be better prepared for the next onslaught by Mother Nature. These would be things such as making sure we always have a supply of flashlights, batteries, and extra blankets on hand in our homes; possibly purchasing an auxiliary heat source, such as a kerosene heater, and maybe even a small generator; keeping some extra non-perishable food and containers of water in our pantries or basements; removing overhanging tree limbs that pose a hazard to one's property; and having one's automobile full of gasoline and in good running condition when a storm is looming. Undoubtedly there are others, and now is the time to complete that list and fulfill it.

To the Editor:

How much can West Virginians take? We are trying to buy gas and fuel to keep a little heat in our homes to keep our water from freezing. Not worrying about keeping ourselves warm. We can't keep dishing out money that we don't have.

We live in the small community of Eglon in Preston County. We are not a wealthy people by any means. But what we are is a loving community of people who get off our butts and help each other when a disaster happens.

We got up Tuesday morning, looked out our windows, got dressed, and started opening up the roads in the event of emergencies. We are spending more money than we have just to help the state roads department try to protect our residents.

There needs to be some kind of relief or help for us – fuel assistance, tax breaks, etc. What is the state or federal government doing to help us? Do we matter to them?

Kelly Junkins

To the Editor:

Could you please print a big, big thank-you to all the many companies and people who came into Garrett County to help us out? Wish we could extend that thank-you in person.

Most sincerely,

To the Editor:

In dealing with the aftermath of Hurricane Sandy, I owe it to myself to thank some people. I don't believe there has ever been a time in my life where I have witnessed so many people, from all walks of life, coming together with one certain goal in mind – helping the people of Garrett County.

During the storm's infant stages, plans were made by local officials, including me, on how we would combat the potential devastation. Shelters were set up, food pantries were organized, and manpower was boosted. Personnel from the power company, health department, social services, state highway administration, state police, DNR, emergency management, MEMA, and county roads gathered at a roundtable to plan our operation.

As the storm progressed, an incident management team from the state of Kansas was called to assist in directing our assets. MEMA officials acquired 80 National Guard troops and 40 pieces of equipment to aid in recovery efforts. Over 700 power company linemen and 200 tree trimmers were called in to help in restoring power to our citizens. Local Mennonite and Amish communities volunteered their saws and labor to help county and state roads workers clear debris from the roadways. Deputies and 911 dispatchers worked around the clock with cutting crews, guardsmen, and local propane and fuel oil venders to open vital roads to our 911 radio towers so generators could be refueled. Troopers and deputies worked together with National Guard soldiers, search and rescue teams, and rescue squads from across the state to check the residences of our vulnerable population. Emergency 800 numbers were established to give residents a means of communication with emergency personnel, and over 250 well-being checks were made by law enforcement. Meals were delivered to families who could not get out of their houses. Inmate work crews were sent to assist the elderly population in opening driveways and to help towns remove debris from roads and sidewalks. Then when the storm tightened its grip, Garrett County's greatest resource went to work – neighbors helping neighbors.

In short, I know that there are still power outages and road closures, and I am certain that all attempts are being made to restore them. But I also know that without the help of everyone mentioned above, particularly our neighbors, we would not be where we are at today in recovering from the aftermath of Sandy.

Thank you
Sheriff Rob Corley

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Garrett County Emergency Services Board, I would like to extend a heartfelt, great big, special thank-you to all of the members of the fire companies and rescue squads of Garrett County; to Brad Frantz and the staff of the Garrett County Department of Emergency Management; to Steve Smith and John Feather and all the county dispatchers; to Jay Moyer and the county roads department management and employees; to the supervisors and employees of the Maryland State Highway Administration; to Sheriff Rob Corley and his deputies and staff; to our county commissioners – Chairman Jim Raley, Gregan Crawford and Bob Gatto – to Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator, and the other county employees – All these people worked tirelessly on little or no sleep for upwards of 80+ hours.

Thank you to the Maryland State Police of the McHenry Barrack, and last but not least, to all of the citizens of Garrett County who volunteered. All of these people I mention, and those that I may have unintentionally missed, made sacrifices, gave their time unselfishly, and were dedicated and caring enough to ensure, along with the grace of God, that we would endure the wrath of "Sandy."

We still have a lot of cleanup to do, but it will get done. Garrett County is so fortunate to have so many who care for one another. Garrett County is a model that is made up of good, decent, and caring human beings. It makes one proud to be part of the citizenry.

Gentlemen and ladies, we are grateful!

To the Editor:

In the aftermath of last week's monumental winter storm, it is impossible to adequately express thanks to all those who helped our region recover from the storm's aftermath. County/state roads and law enforcement personnel; power company/tree trimming personnel; public shelter & warming station volunteers; churches; and neighbors helping neighbors were just some of the more obvious people we should all appreciate and thank.

But there are many less obvious, yet critically important, individuals who worked throughout the crisis – in some cases for two days straight – in order to respond to the safety and medical needs of others throughout the height of the storm.

Employees of Garrett County Memorial Hospital (GCMH) worked non-stop clearing snow, risked personal injury traveling to work, or slept overnight in chairs or hospital gurneys to assure the next shift had coverage. GCMH staff always exhibit professionalism and integrity, but during this storm, these incredible employees demonstrated Herculean stamina and dedication that will never be forgotten.

Other medical professionals, including local physicians/surgeons/caregivers, GC Health Dept. personnel, rescue/fire squad volunteers, local ambulance companies, nursing home personnel, EMS dispatchers, and many others all remained "on the job," while the rest of the community dealt with the personal impact of this horrific storm. I am proud to be part of such a supportive health care continuum which endlessly serves others, in spite of hardship or obstacles. This is always the case, and the recent storm only spotlighted that delivery on the promise.

So, thanks to all those who "answered the call." We all owe each of you a tremendous debt of gratitude, now and always.

We have good neighbors in Allegany County. Last week the lodge at Rocky Gap State Park offered a special rate of $39/night to those who lost power due to Sandy. Rooms with a view of the lake were available if you wanted to pony up an extra $10. The bonus: no snow. In fact, Friday morning folks were playing golf at Rocky Gap, about an hour's drive from McHenry. Driving east on I-68, it was only 7 miles from 2 feet of snow at Big Savage Mountain to zero inches a couple miles east of Frostburg.

Also kudos to Little Sandy's on Keysers Ridge for using their emergency generator to stay open during the storm, pumping gas, and serving food to anyone who could manage to get there.

To the Editor:

The governor was reminded we are all Marylanders when he erroneously announced the state had dodged Sandy's wrath. We expect fair state policy for the whole state.

Similiarly, as Maryland is committed to restoring the Chesapeake, investing substantial staff and public tax dollars, we expect a parallel campaign to "Save the Lake" (Deep Creek). We are not a special exception.

The current state policy – no public funds, writing off sections of the lake, and placing restoration costs in the hands of private property owners – is not a "gold standard" policy, but a lead balloon.

Over 800 people have signed our Save the Lake petition. We anticipate hundreds will fill St. Peter's social hall next Wednesday to hear the DNR secretary's presentation on the state of the lake, starting at 4 p.m.

We urge speakers to remind Secretary Griffin – We expect from the state a "gold standard" policy to save the lake.

Thanks to the in-depth work of our editor of The Republican, we have a meeting preview. Secretary Griffin says there are no state funds for restoration of the largest, oldest Maryland lake, the 2nd largest tourist destination in Maryland and our "golden goose." Imagine the economic impact if county tax revenues and jobs decline as a result of the state writing off the lake! Whether you are a lake property owner, business person, or Garrett Countian with no direct contact to the lake, the current state policy impacts us all – we are in the same boat together.

If the governor cannot commit to a "gold standard" for watershed restoration, we must insist the state turn the lake over to an independent watershed management district with local control and funding.

This is not an off-the-wall proposal. The state is turning over its ownership of Somers' Cove Marina to a local commission. The state has turned over management of Rocky Gap hotel, because it was losing money.

Secretary Griffin says the state cannot afford to restore the publicly owned lake. In so stating, he admits state ownership is a losing economic venture from a state fiscal perspective.

If the state will not provide public funds to restore this publicly owned lake, let us do it.

To the Editor:

This letter is about your letters-to-the editor policy.

In the issue just before the election (Nov. 1), you published two letters bashing Mitt Romney, and there was no opportunity or time for anyone to counter them. That is a serious violation of a long-standing tradition of American politics, of allowing opposing advocates to respond.

Both Jeremy Gosnell's sarcastic letter and Jo Gallagher's sad narrative about her mother were long on talking points from the Democratic National Committee, but woefully short on facts.

For example, with the sentence about Mitt Romney suggesting that "senior citizens like my mom 'believe that they are victims...'" in need of government care, Ms. Gallagher states exactly the opposite of what Romney has actually said about senior citizens. Gosnell's snide witticism are likewise a catalog of DNC handouts.

The influence of unfounded claims should not be underestimated. Even today, four years after the 2008 election, some people are still deriding Sarah Palin for saying she could see Russia from her house, when in fact that line was a comedy bit from a sketch on Saturday Night Live. In the 2012 campaign, there were some funny lines about Joe Biden, but they were quickly forgotten – as comedy should be.

The false contents of two scurrilous propaganda letters is a passing annoyance, but the wider principle has to do with standards of journalism. Any letters advancing political viewpoints should be restricted to a time-window far enough ahead of the election that responses from those maligned can be read before voters head for the polls.

The practice followed by The Republican in 2012 puts you squarely in the camp of advocates for the Democratic Party.

Cordially yours,
Tom Sheahen

Dr. Sheahen:

Thank you for this opportunity to explain our letters policy as it pertains to letters of endorsement for candidates.

Because we are typically inundated with such letters, sometimes for weeks and weeks before the election, we decided several years ago to publish as many endorsement letters as possible in our two issues published just prior to the election. And, of course, the letters we receive usually make negative accusations toward the opposing candidate, alleging all kinds of things that may or may not be true, not unlike the excessive political advertising that has been rammed down our throats via television media for months now. We have neither the desire nor the space to allow such exchanges to go on and on and on in letters to the editor. Providing such space is at our expense and, frankly, potentially hurts the opportunity for us to sell our own product – advertising.

You and every other voter – Republican, Democrat, or whatever – had the same opportunity to submit an endorsement letter these past two weeks. Since we received only the two that you mention, both of which happened to be anti-Romney, you now accuse us of being biased in favor of the Democrat Party.

What I believe you are really objecting to is that you were not given the opportunity to have the last word. Had Mr. Gosnell's letter, for example, been published in our Oct. 25 edition, you would have had an opportunity to respond in our Nov. 1 issue. However, then Mr. Gosnell could have been just as upset because he would then not have the opportunity to rebut your letter until after the election. So it goes.

The next time an election is pending, I urge you to take advantage of this opportunity that we are providing for you to express you own personal endorsement, free of charge.

To the Editor:

During the recent election a lot of attention was devoted to expanded gambling, the "Dream Act," and same sex marriage. As a result, Question 5 regarding redistricting was virtually ignored except by The Republican.

Voters not familiar with the issue would not have been helped by the language on the ballot, which described the redistricting plan as "based on recent census figures, as required by the United States Constitution." Not surprisingly, the plan was approved by 64% of all Maryland voters. After all, who could be against legislation required by the Constitution? (In fact, Garrett County was one of only two counties that voted against Question 5, and then only by 54%.)

However, anyone who actually looked at the redistricting map would have been shocked by the image of "districts resembling violently spilled coffee," in the words of the Washington Post. So now, thanks to this "blatant gerrymandering" in Annapolis, Garrett County will be represented in Congress by John Delaney, a resident of Potomac, five miles from the Capital Beltway and 175 miles from Oakland. And thanks to the misleading language on the ballot that virtually guaranteed approval of the plan, this lack of a voice in Washington will continue well into the future.

If we've been ignored by government before, now we've been banished.

uting more than $2 million of his own wealth to the campaign.

Bartlett's defeat accomplished Maryland Democrats' objective of picking up a seventh seat in the state's congressional delegation.

Gov. Martin O'Malley and Democrats in the General Assembly shifted Bartlett's district farther into Montgomery County and away from traditionally Republican territory in northern Maryland, erasing the Republican's advantage among registered voters. Bartlett performed strongly in western Maryland, but was not able to win over the district's new voters in Montgomery County.

Delaney's path to re-election in 2014 could have been thrown into uncertainty if voters had rejected Question 5, which put the new congressional districts to a popular vote. The map would then have been sent back to Democrats in Annapolis, who would have had to come up with a new plan to be implemented for the 2014 elections. Early results showed the redistricting plan with a considerable lead among voters, and it was ultimately upheld.

Gary Featheringham, a precinct chairman for the Montgomery County Republican Party, voted against the new congressional districts at Stone Mill Elementary School in North Potomac. He said the new district map was a blatant attempt to "throw Bartlett out of office."

In the remaining congressional races, the incumbents easily won re-election.

Rep. Andy Harris, R-Cockeysville, won his first re-election against a Democratic Party confused by the exit of nominee Wendy Rosen after she admitted she voted in both Florida and Maryland in two different elections. Rosen still was collecting more than 26 percent of the vote. The party backed write-in candidate John LaFerla, whose totals were not recorded on the State Board of Elections web site.

Rep. Dutch Ruppersberger, D-Cockeysville, won a sixth term in the 2nd District after defeating Nancy Jacobs, a Republican state senator representing Cecil and Harford counties.

Rep. John Sarbanes, D-Towson, defeated Republican Eric Knowles in the 3rd District.

In the 4th District, Rep. Donna Edwards, D-Fort Washington, defeated Republican Faith Loudon.

House Minority Whip Steny Hoyer, D-Mitchellsville, raised more than $4 million for his 17th congressional campaign – the most of any House candidate in Maryland. He defeated Republican Delegate Tony O'Donnell, whose district includes Calvert and St. Mary's counties.

Rep. Elijah Cummings, D-Baltimore, the ranking member of the House Committee on Oversight and Government Reform, defeated Frank Mirabile Jr. in a rematch of their 2010 race in the 7th District.

In the 8th District, which picked up thousands of Bartlett's supporters in northern Maryland, Rep. Chris Van Hollen, D-Kensington, who plays an influential role as the ranking member on the House Budget Committee, defeated Republican Ken Timmerman, an author and journalist.

In Sandy's Wake,

Spencer Schlosnagle met with Gov. Martin O'Malley in nearby Oakland to discuss widespread power outages caused by snow, three courageous women, and others, worked tirelessly to keep residents warm and fed inside a fire hall and a diner.

Sheryl MacLane, manager of the Friendship Heights apartment complex, and her mother Julia Sines, president of the Friendsville Ladies Auxiliary, teamed up to transform the Friendsville Volunteer Fire and Rescue Department into a shelter. Tammy Thomas, owner of Jubilee Junction diner, used her family's personal generator to keep her restaurant up and running.

"We didn't have electricity, didn't have an elevator, and my first concern was my tenants," MacLane said. "My biggest concern is the elderly."

The Friendship Heights complex, like much of the town's 525 residents, is home to many elderly. Some of her tenants are in hospice care or in wheelchairs, making it dangerous for them to remain home alone in treacherous conditions.

So, MacLane contacted Sines, as well as Friendsville fire chief Terry Spear asking to turn the fire hall into a shelter for those without food or electricity. Spear was prepared for Sandy's arrival and had a working generator, providing MacLane with the equipment she needed to keep her tenants safe.

Spear said friends, family, and other Friendsville residents were checking up on those tenants choosing to leave the shelter and return to their homes at night.

"Garrett County people are tough," Spear said. "This is a really tight-knit town; everybody checks on everybody else."

Superstorm Sandy bombarded most of the East Coast with deadly wind and rain, and buried parts of Western Maryland in two feet of snow. But Friendsville only got about five inches.

Unfortunately, because many power lines are on the mountainside where the snow was heavier and most of the trees still had leaves, the dense, wet snow weighed down branches and toppled trees onto vulnerable lines.

Though many of the Friendship Heights residents chose not to remain in the shelter overnight, MacLane said that it provides a safe outlet for those senior citizens who would otherwise be sitting in their homes in the cold.

"We're having fun here," Sines, her mother, said.

Sines spoke of how the owner of the local grocery store donated food and produce to the shelter when the store lost power. Considering the fire hall saw more than 50 people for breakfast Thursday morning, and similar numbers Tuesday night, Sines was grateful for the extra food on hand.

She also commended the AmeriCorps Red Cross volunteers who were dispatched to the shelter Wednesday.

"They are wonderful, oh, my goodness," Sines said.

Ina Hicks, an 82-year-old resident of the Friendship Heights complex, said she would not have known what to do if the fire hall had not opened its doors as a shelter. Though she thought she would be all right at first, she knew she had to go somewhere warm when she found herself trying to do paperwork in her home bundled in multiple layers.

"I felt like I could manage; however, it got pretty cold," Hicks said. "But when my fingers and my nose turned cold, I thought, 'This is stupid; it can wait.'"

When asked what they would have done without access to the fire hall, MacLane and Sines looked at each other, shook their heads, and laughed in unison.

"I don't know what we could've done," MacLane said.

A few short blocks away, Tammy Thomas was busy running her own safe haven of sorts. She and her husband own the Jubilee Junction diner and decided, as a family, to bring their personal generator down to the diner in order to keep the kitchen up and running.

"We were able to share our generator instead of keeping it at home," Thomas said.

She said the diner, similar to the fire hall, has provided residents with a place to warm up and enjoy a home-cooked meal.

"They've been really grateful to have some heat and warm food," Thomas said; "to know they're not alone."

The power outage has actually helped her business instead of hurt it. There have been many first-time customers this week, both residents and visitors, she said.

"We've been serving power crews," Thomas said, pointing to a table of 11 workmen taking a break to eat some lunch. "We had the National Guard for breakfast."

Far Western Maryland Suffers From Sandy

by Chris Leyden
Capital News Service

OAKLAND – As all eyes were turned to the coast after Hurricane Sandy wreaked havoc there, Garrett County suffered from the storm's aftermath quietly without attention until Thursday when the governor came to town.

Now about 15,000 residents remain without power from a heavy, wet snow that tumbled still-leafy trees onto roads and power lines, and many of them have no way of finding out when the lights will come back on.

Gov. Martin O'Malley visited the county Thursday, meeting with some of those affected by the storm at a shelter in Oakland. Almost every mayor from the county attended, and the governor allowed them to briefly discuss the issues facing their communities.

"My whole state is now Garrett County," said O'Malley. "Right now our county with the largest number of citizens in need is Garrett County."

What happened in Garrett County was that, as Sandy brought down cold air from the Great Lakes, the precipitation turned from rain to snow, said Fred McMullen, warning coordination meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Pittsburgh. McMullen said it was the snow, which was twice as heavy as normal, and not the upper-40-mph gusts that likely took down so many trees. Snow totals varied throughout the county, with some spots seeing more than 2 feet and others seeing less than 6 inches.

The mayors meeting with O'Malley said the lack of electricity is the main problem hurting their residents. O'Malley said his priority is to get those without power in Garrett County back up and running.

One issue O'Malley said the utility companies ran into was the low cloud cover that made it impossible to helicopter over the lines and assess the damage. Wednesday was the first time the power providers were able to glimpse what they were up against, he said.

What is causing many of the outages, O'Malley said, is a couple of big breaks in one of the large transmission lines. With the first break already repaired, the governor said he is hopeful the repair of the second break in the line will restore power to 5,000 to 7,000 county residents.

However, Potomac Edison spokesman Todd Meyers said that scenario is unlikely because wires going to homes from these transmission lines are also down.

Meyers said there is still no restoration time estimate for the hardest hit parts of Garrett County because the power company has struggled to reach many of the downed wires. However, he said he has not heard many complaints because residents seem to understand the situation.

But entire towns are out of power in Garrett County. For example, in Friendsville, residents gathered at the fire hall Thursday afternoon, despite only having a minimal amount of snow on the ground.

A group from Friendship Heights, a low-income apartment complex in town, said it is unclear when the power will return.

"Since [the power companies] don't know," said Ina Hicks, "how can we know?"

The group said power went out Monday at 10:40 p.m. Since then, residents have been popping in and out of the fire hall, where a generator powered about half the building.

At the Jubilee Junction diner in Friendsville on Thursday, Chris Myers, a meter technician for Somerset Rural Electric Cooperative, and his co-workers were taking a brief break from working the lines to grab a bite to eat.

Myers, too, struggled to estimate when power will be restored. He was hopeful that all Somerset Rural customers would be back up by the weekend, but said it's more likely the outages will run into next week.

"We were out there before the plow trucks were," said Myers, who joked it seemed as though almost every tree had come down. On many of the back roads, he said the power lines are "pretty well destroyed."

The story is very different in Loch Lynn Heights, where Mayor Carolyn Corley said about 30 inches of snow fell. While most Loch Lynn residents have power, Corley said many are without phones.

It's been a struggle for the town to afford to cut roadside trees, Corley said.

The township used to get $60,000 a year from the state to pay for tree maintenance and removal, she said, but in 2008 the governor's office only issued $5,000. In 2009 and 2010, the township was down to only $2,300 in funding, with $14,000 in 2011 and $9,000 this year.

"We don't have the money," said Corley, who said the township is running on a "shoestring" budget when it comes to dealing with roadside trees.

"I don't know if it's [O'Malley's] fault, but I know that we were notified that the governor's office was taking 90 percent of our highway money away."

While Corley said a storm in 2010 was more severe for her town than this one, she hopes this is the only long-lasting outage of the barely begun winter season.

"I know we have a long way to go to the spring," said Corley. "So let's just hope this doesn't happen again with another severe snowstorm."

Capital News Service reporters Matt Fleming and Julie Baughman contributed to this report.

News from Preston, Tucker, Grant and Mineral Counties.

AURORA/EGLON

STORM DAMAGE

Aurora and Eglon and their surrounding communities in Preston County have all suffered about the same amount of damage from the storm this past week. Some have more trees down than others, some have lost buildings, and some scarcely have been touched by the event, but everyone experienced the phone. It lay heavily on the roofs, bushes, shrubs, and trees, with shoveling becoming a huge task because the snow was so heavy.

No electricity and no phone much of the time were no help in collecting this week's news. Some scheduled surgeries were postponed and others went ahead. Some could get out to work, but many could not even get out of town.

There has been a soup kitchen set up at the Aurora fire hall, where all voting was done. The American Red Cross has also been distributing food to those who live along Rt. 50 in need of it. Residents are reminded to be prepared when such a storm is predicted, as many were not prepared for what we received during this storm. Some of the suggested supplies that should be onhand are flashlights, extra batteries, candles, bottled water, quick-fix foods (nonperishables), and alternative methods of heating (kerosene, propane, etc.).

BUCKWHEAT CAKE DINNERS

A buckwheat cake dinner will be offered by the Mtn. Lions Club at Maple Spring Church of the Brethren on Saturday, Nov. 17, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Donations asked are $8 for adults and $4 for children school-age to 12. Preschoolers eat for free. Bulk sausage will also be available for $2.75/lb. To place an order for sausage, persons should contact JoAnn Helton at 304-735-5832 or Mary Stemple at 304-735-5483.

SHOOTING MATCH

A shooting match will be held beginning at 1 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 18, by the Mt. Grove Volunteer Fire Department. The cost is $2/shot, and only the use of 12-, 16-, and 20-gauge shotguns is permitted. Shells will be furnished by the VFD. Concessions will be available, and prizes will be awarded to the winners of each match. The fire hall is located 8 miles south of Red House and four miles north of Thomas.

THANKSGIVING DINNER

The annual Gortner Union community Thanksgiving dinner is set for Tuesday, Nov. 20, at 6:30 p.m. at the Pleasant Valley Community Center. Those attending are asked to bring a covered dish to share. A music program will follow the meal.

TAKING A MAJOR HIT in last week's snowstorm was much of Preston County. The photo above is of the road into the Alpine Lake residential development near Terra Alta, where there were still major power outages as of this morning. The photo below appears to be simply a shot into a wooded area, but in fact, it is of the Brandonville Pike, completely blocked not only by snow, but scores of trees that fell under its weight. Photos by William Wotring.

FSA Encourages Farmers To Take Part In Election

Farm Service Agency (FSA) administrator Juan M. Garcia announced this week that the 2012 FSA county committee elections began on Monday, Nov. 5, with the mailing of ballots to eligible voters. The deadline to return the ballots to local FSA offices is Dec. 3.

"The role and input of our county committee members is more vital than ever," said Garcia. "New county committee members provide input and make important decisions on the local administration of disaster and conservation programs. With better participation in recent years, we also have seen promising increases in the number of women and minority candidates."

Eligible voters who do not receive ballots in the coming week can obtain ballots from their local USDA Service Center. Dec. 3 is the last day for voters to submit ballots in person to local USDA Service Centers. Ballots returned by mail must also be postmarked no later than Dec. 3. Newly elected committee members and their alternates will take office Jan. 1, 2013.

To be an eligible voter, farmers and ranchers must participate or cooperate in an FSA program. A person who is not of legal voting age but supervises and conducts the farming operations of an entire farm also may be eligible to vote. Agricultural producers in each county submitted candidate nominations during the nomination period, which ended Aug. 1.

While FSA county committees do not approve or deny farm operating loans, they make decisions on disaster and conservation programs, emergency programs, commodity price support loan programs, and other agricultural issues. Members serve three-year terms. Nationwide, there are about 7,700 farmers and ranchers serving on FSA county committees. Committees consist of three to 11 members who are elected by eligible producers.

More information on county committees, such as the new 2012 fact sheet and brochures, can be found on the FSA web site at www.fsa.usda.gov/elections. Persons may also call the Garrett County office at 301-334-6954.

FARMERS AND RANCHERS URGED TO RECORD LOSSES FROM HURRICANE SANDY

Farm Service Agency (FSA) administrator Juan M. Garcia this week urged farmers and ranchers affected by Hurricane Sandy to keep thorough records of all losses, including livestock death losses, as well as expenses for such things as feed purchases and extraordinary costs because of lost supplies and or increased transportation costs.

FSA recommends that owners and producers record all pertinent information of natural disaster consequences, including:

- Documentation of the number and kind of livestock that have died, supplemented if possible by photographs or video records of ownership and losses;
- Dates of death supported by birth recordings or purchase receipts;
- Costs of transporting livestock to safer grounds or to move animals to new pastures;
- Feed purchases if supplies or grazing pastures are destroyed;
- Crop records, including seed and fertilizer purchases, planting and production records;
- Pictures of on-farm storage facilities that were destroyed by wind or flood waters; and
- Evidence of damaged farmland.

Producers with damaged farmland should contact their local FSA office. The Emergency Conservation Program (ECP) may be able to assist producers who need to repair farmland or remove debris because of Hurricane Sandy. FSA currently has $15.5 million available for producers in counties that received a Major Disaster declaration pursuant to the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act. Producers located in counties that have not received a Major Disaster declaration should visit their local FSA office for information on ECP if funding becomes available in the future.

Producers with private forest land that was damaged should also visit their local FSA office for information on the Emergency Forest Restoration Program (EFRP). EFRP provides assistance to landowners of private forest land to help carry out emergency measures to restore land damaged by a natural disaster. Currently no funding is available; however, producers should visit their local FSA office for information if funding becomes available.

USDA's Risk Management Agency reminds producers faced with questions on prevented planting, replanting, or crop losses to contact their crop insurance agent for more information. Producers who need emergency credit due may receive assistance through the Emergency Loan Program if they need assistance recovering from production and physical losses from natural disasters. Producers are eligible for these loans as soon as their county is declared a Presidential or Secretarial disaster county.

Vilsack also reminds producers that the department's authority to operate the five disaster assistance programs authorized by the 2008 Farm Bill expired on Sept. 30, 2011. This includes SURE; the Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP); the Emergency Assistance for Livestock, Honey Bees, and Farm-Raised Fish Program (ELAP); the Livestock Forage Disaster Program (LFP); and the Tree Assistance Program (TAP). Production losses from disasters occurring after Sept. 30, 2011, are not eligible for disaster program coverage.

To deliver assistance to those who need it most, Secretary Vilsack effectively reduced the interest rate for Emergency Loans in July 2012, while streamlining the Secretarial disaster designations process, resulting in a 40 percent reduction in processing time for most counties affected by disasters. Among other administrative actions, USDA has also worked with crop insurance companies to provide more flexibility to farmers.

USDA will continue working with state and local officials, as well as federal partners, to make sure people have the necessary resources to recover from this challenge.

Crops insured by federal crop insurance or by the Non-insured Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) are covered when floodwaters have rendered them valueless. USDA encourages all farmers and ranchers to contact their crop insurance companies and local USDA Farm Service Agency service centers, as applicable, to report damages to crops or livestock loss. More information about federal crop insurance may be found at www.rma.usda.gov. Additional resources to help farmers and ranchers deal with flooding and other damage may be found at www.usda.gov/disaster.

There is no night without a dawning,
no winter without a spring
And beyond death's dark horizon, our hearts will once more sing.
For those who leave us for a while have only gone away
Out of a restless, careworn world into a brighter day
Where there will be no partings and time is not counted by years,
Where there are no trials or troubles,
no worries, no cares, and no tears.

Blood Wedding To Be Staged At WVU

Blood Wedding, a play by Federico Garcia Lorca, will be presented by the West Virginia University School of Theatre & Dance in the Gladys G. Davis Theatre in the Creative Arts Center. The show will be given on Nov. 15 and 16 at 7:30 p.m., and resuming after Thanksgiving break from Nov. 27 to 30 at 7:30 p.m. with a matinee on Dec. 2 at 2 p.m.

"The play is set in Spain. The only living son of a widow plans to marry the daughter of a neighboring landowner, but the former lover of his intended bride belongs to the family that killed his father and brother. Inspired by a newspaper article detailing a bride being spirited away by her groom's enemy, the play examines the tragic results of repressed desire pitted against honor and tradition," a spokesperson said.

The play is of the expressionistic style, and is being directed by assistant professor Roger Smart, a new member of the WVU School of Theatre & Dance faculty.

The cast members are theater students Brianne Taylor as The Mother, Kyle Walter as Leonardo, McKenna Kirchner as The Bride, and Will Stout as The Bridegroom.

Tickets are $20 for the general public and $15 for students and senior citizens. There is a group rate of $10 per ticket for groups of 10 or more.

Tickets are available at www.ticketmaster.com, the CAC or Mountainlair box offices, or by calling 304-293-7469.

For information, persons may also visit theatre.wvu.edu, call 304-293-2020, or e-mail theatre@mail.wvu.edu.

Writers' Guild To Meet Next Week

The monthly meeting of the Wednesday Writers' Guild will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 14, in the Oakland Town Hall meeting room. The meeting will start at 7 p.m. and last approximately 2 hours.

"Writers are encouraged to attend and bring their writings to share or be critiqued," said a spokesperson. "Please bring six to eight copies of writing that is to be critiqued."

The meeting will be canceled if Garrett County schools are closed that day. For more information, persons may call 301-334-3402.

Ruth Enlow To Host Mystery Writer L. Carr

The Ruth Enlow Library will host mystery writer and publisher Lauren Carr on Monday, Nov. 19, at the Accident, Grantsville, and Oakland branches. The schedule is as follows: Grantsville at noon, Accident at 3 p.m., and Oakland at 6 p.m.

Carr will read from her work, as well as sell and sign books while in Accident and Grantsville. She will give a presentation in Oakland titled "Where Did that Story Come From? Story Ideas." Her mysteries will be available for sale at the book signing following this presentation as well. All events are free and open to the public. Registration is not required, but a courtesy check-in to the library is appreciated at 301-334-3996, ext. 117, or via e-mail at bonnie@relib.net.

"Carr will discuss the surprising stories behind some of the greatest ideas in successful books, the difference between a great story idea and a bad one, and how a writer can take the germ of an idea and turn it into a great book," said a spokesperson.

"Have you ever read a book and wondered, now where did that author come up with that idea, or I wonder what he was smoking when he wrote that," asked Carr. "If you're aspiring to become an author, maybe you have the mistaken impression that great ideas only come to those blessed with an exceptional inspirational life. That is not necessarily the case."

"Carr's Mac Faraday mysteries, which are set on Deep Creek Lake, have been receiving praise from fans and reviewers," noted the spokesperson. "Three of her books have made Amazon's best sellers list under the mystery category. According to Midwest Book Reviews, It's Murder, My Son is "an exciting mystery with plenty of intriguing and enigmatic characters... and not a read that should be missed for mystery fans."

Her latest mystery released on Sept. 1, Dead on Ice, has also been reportedly receiving praise from readers and book reviewers who have called it a "page turner full of twists and turns." Dead on Ice is the first installment of Carr's new series, Lovers in Crime, featuring Hancock County prosecuting attorney Joshua Thornton and Pennsylvania State Police homicide detective Cameron Gates. This mystery has made the top 100 in sales on Amazon under police procedurals.

The book description for Dead on Ice reads, "Spunky Cameron Gates is tasked with solving the murder of Cherry Pickens, a legendary star of pornographic films, whose body turns up in an abandoned freezer. The case has a personal connection to her lover, Joshua Thornton, because the freezer was located in his cousin's basement. It doesn't take long for their investigation to reveal that the risqué star's roots were buried in their rural Ohio Valley community, something that Cherry had kept off her show business bio. She should have kept her hometown off her road map, too–because when this starlet came running home from the mob, it proved to be a fatal homecoming."

In addition to writing her mysteries, Carr owns Acorn Book Services, a local publishing company that will publish over six books this year and offers affordable services for authors who want to publish their own books.

More information about the author and her work is available on her web site at www.mysterylady.net. More information about Acorn Book Services is available at www.acornbookservices.com.

In the interim and with the assistance of the Department of Social Services (DSS), warming centers and emergency shelters were set up at fire and rescue squad halls and local churches throughout the county. The National Guard, Garrett County Sheriff's Office, Maryland State Police, Health Department, and DSS conducted wellness checks on residents who were snowbound in their homes.

Gov. Martin O'Malley visited the county last Thursday morning, met with local mayors and other officials, and promised to provide assistance.

"My whole state's now Garrett County," O'Malley said about his level of commitment.

According to Sheriff Rob Corley, 80 Maryland National Guardsmen with 40 pieces of equipment, about 200 tree trimmers, and more than 700 power linemen came to Garrett County's aid.

Frantz reported Thursday (Nov. 1) evening that the percentage of those without power had dropped to 59 percent. On Friday, it was 45 percent. On Saturday, it was 38 percent, and on Sunday, it was 27 percent.

SHA deployed additional crews to assist the Garrett County Roads Garage in removing trees and snow along county roads. More than 60 SHA employees brought a convoy of dump trucks, front-end loaders, and crew cab trucks to the county on Wednesday and worked alongside local crews for several days. They removed about 3,000 trees and cleared 250 miles of county roads, according to SHA.

"It's been pretty rough – a lot of people without electricity; we've been trying to do the best we can to get things open," Leo Lavin, a crew member from SHA's Allegany County shop, stated in a press release last week. "We're getting in better shape, but there's still a lot of work to do."

SHA's crews aided residents who were without power for days and in some cases unable to leave their homes because of downed trees and heavy snow. Garrett County Roads Department crews asked SHA forces to work with them until Sunday night to widen roadways for school buses the next day.

"It it gratifying to help people when there has been such a dramatic impact on their safety and well-being," said Anthony Crawford, SHA District 6 engineer, on Friday. "We are really pleased to be making progress and help people be able to get food, shelter, and medical attention."

He added that he appreciated the assistance from SHA crews from across the state, who reached out to western Maryland before and during the hurricane to see if there was anything they could do to help.

"It has really been a team effort by everyone involved, including SHA, Garrett County, and local towns," Crawford said.

Additionally, SHA supplied fuel for generators at the Oakland and Eagle Rock communication towers late last Wednesday. A significant concern had been radio communications because of power issues at the three tower sites in the county.

In addition to falling trees hitting vehicles and homes, reported property damage in the local area included a barn collapse in Cranesville, W.Va., which killed 40 head of cattle, the Grand Central Furniture roof collapse near Mtn. Lake Park, and the loss of about 3,000 Christmas trees at Pinetum Enterprises Inc., Swanton.

Christmas tree growers Marshall and Cindy Stacy said the trees were mostly Douglas fir, which were snapped in half by snow and wind on their 370-acre farm.

"We sell primarily large, 15–30 foot trees, and nearly all of our large 'sold' trees for this holiday have been destroyed by the storm," Cindy said. "So we were forced to cancel 90 percent of our Christmas tree orders and refund customers their money."

Local grocery stores lost thousands of dollars worth of perishable products when their power was lost. Dairy farmers had to dispose of hundreds of pounds of milk when they lost electricity for their cooling and storage equipment.

Garrett County schools were closed all last week. Students in the Southern end of the county returned to their classrooms on Monday, but schools in the northern end were closed because of water and power issues. All schools were closed on Tuesday for the general election. Schools throughout the county were in session on Wednesday.

BOE Seats

were against the law.

Question 6 – Civil Marriage Protection Act – was narrowly approved. Statewide, 52 percent approved the act, which will allow for same-sex marriages. About 48 percent of voters disapproved. In Garrett County, about 8,600 voted "no," while about 3,160 voted "yes."

Question 7 – Commercial Gaming Expansion – was approved. About 52 percent of voters favored the idea, while 48 percent opposed it. Locally, about 7,000 voted "no," and 5,000 voted "yes."

Not counting absentee, provisional, and military ballots, about 65 percent of eligible Garrett County voters cast ballots on Tuesday or earlier. The percentage of local voters in the 2008 general election was also about 65.

The Garrett County Board of Elections began canvassing absentee ballots at 10 a.m. this morning, Nov. 8. Board members will canvass provisional ballots on Wednesday, Nov. 14. The final absentee canvass will take place on Friday, Nov. 16.

About 2,000 Potomac Edison customers were still without power on election day following the aftermath of last week's storm. The GC Board of Elections had generators and emergency lighting at-the-ready at 18 of the county's 19 polling sites on Tuesday, just in case power was lost.

Precinct 8-1, Ryan's Glade, voters had to cast their ballots in the Southern High School cafeteria because of the lack of electricity at their usual polling place, the Gorman Church of God.

With the closure of Dennett Road El3mentary School, the SHS cafeteria is the new designated voting site for Mtn. Lake Park voters. On election day, Ryan's Glade voters cast their ballots on one side of the room, and Mtn. Lake Park residents voted on the other side.

The elections board headquarters in Mtn. Lake Park was also without power for several days last week. Board members set up shop at the courthouse in Oakland on Friday and worked there throughout election day. Though electricity was restored prior to Tuesday, they did not want to take a chance of moving back to Mtn. Lake Park, just in case power was lost there again.

Board members closely monitored conditions at the polling sites on election day.

About 1,700, or 8.3 percent, of Garrett County's 18,729 eligible voters cast ballots early at the Oakland Community Center. Because of Hurricane Sandy, Gov. Martin O'Malley canceled early voting throughout the state last Monday and Tuesday, but extended polling site hours and added an extra day of voting.

Adorable Adoptables

Maryland State Police and Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to a two-vehicle accident last Thursday morning at the intersection of Broadford Road and Rt. 135, Deer Park.

Investigation revealed that a trooper on patrol along Broadford Road had observed a black Mazda traveling south reportedly above the 45 mph limit. While in pursuit of the speeding vehicle, the trooper came upon a collision involving the Mazda and a 2004 Chevy Silverado pickup truck that had been traveling south along Rt. 135. It was learned that Mazda driver Barry Scott Upole, 19, Oakland, had failed to stop at the stop sign at the end of Broadford Road, and was T-boned by the truck, driven by Daniel Aaron Thomas, 23, Oakland.

Thomas refused treatment at the scene, and Upole was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of non-life-threatening injuries. Upole was cited for speeding, negligent and reckless driving, and failure to obey a traffic control device (stop sign). Deer Park Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the 10 a.m. scene.

LOCH LYNN CHURCH OF GOD TO BE ON ARC HOLIDAY TOUR – Three private homes, a mansion, and a church will be on this year's American Red Cross Home for the Holidays tours, slated for Dec. 7 and 8. The church is located along Rt. 560 just outside the town of Loch Lynn. See story for details.

LL Church Of God To Be On Red Cross Tours

The American Red Cross "Home for the Holidays" House tours will be held again this year, having been initiated 21 years ago. They will take place on Dec. 7 and 8. Among this year's tour stops will be the Loch Lynn Church of God, located along Gorman Road, just outside Loch Lynn and past the WKHJ radio station.

Pastors Ivan and Cindy Ackerman came to the church in July of 1997, serving under Rev. Robert Fletcher until June of 1998 when they became the pastors. Rev. Robert Fletcher retired in January of 2000 after nearly 33 years of ministry to the Loch Lynn congregation.

Construction of the church began in April 2005, branching out of the former Loch Lynn Church of God, established in 1958, that was located along the railroad tracks in the town. The first service in the new church took place on Feb. 18, 2007.

The square footage of the facility is more than 24,000. There are 11 classrooms, a large nursery and children's area, a fully commercial kitchen, a small fellowship hall, and multi-purpose room. The church has a full youth department where children's church is held every Sunday and Wednesday for those from age 2 to 11.

Tour-takers will enter the foyer area with a balcony, all of which will be fully decorated for the season.

Regular attendance at the church averages from 450 to 500 worshippers.

"Our desire is to be more than just another church," a spokesperson said. "We want to offer an experience with Jesus Christ. The mission of the church is to be an outreach and training center."

The church offers a lay leadership development training program, which is a 6-month discipleship program that gives people hands-on training and daily Bible study. The congregation also offers ministries geared for all ages, from birth to senior citizens. Some of the outreach ministries are the Back to School event, Great Gift Giveaway, Touched by Love, and Share the Warmth.

"Loch Lynn is a missions-minded church, helping to support missionaries and churches at home and abroad," the spokesperson said.

In addition to the church, this year's ARC tours will feature the private homes of Jeffrey and Patricia Creech, Oakland; Jim Tong and Michael Horton, Mtn. Lake Park; and the Cleveland Cottage, owned by John Toston, in Deer Park. The Herrington Mansion, located along Herrington Manor Road, is also on the tour.

There will be raffles at each site, and other special attractions. The times for the tours will be from 4 to 9 p.m. on Dec. 7 and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Dec. 8.

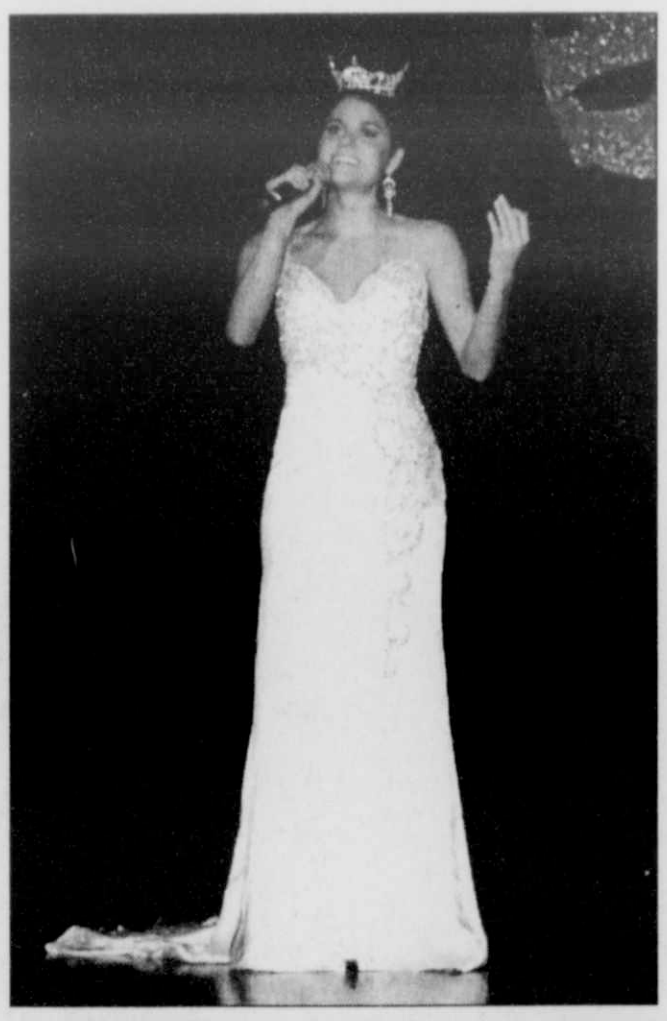
Tickets for the tours will be $10 per person, and are available at several locations, including Gregg's Pharmacy and Jan Florist in Oakland, Arrowhead and Deep Creek Pharmacy in McHenry. All proceeds from the event will benefit the local chapter of the American Red Cross.

Diehl's Ford To Hold Fundraiser For Rotary Club

Diehl's Ford Sales in Grantsville will present "Go Further with Ford Night" next Thursday, Nov. 15, from 4:30 to 8 p.m. – a free fundraising event that will benefit the Grantsville Rotary Club.

Go Further with Ford Night is the finale to Random Acts of Fusion, a transmedia program hosted by Ryan Seacrest that has generated more than 12 million consumer engagements with the Ford Fusion by playing out a story arc through multimedia platforms.

For each person who attends Go Further with Ford Night, Diehl's Ford Sales will donate $10 – up to a total of $500 – to the Grantsville Rotary Club.



MISS MARYLAND PERFORMING AT "BOUNCE BACK" – The Bounce Back Bonanza, originally scheduled last weekend but canceled because of the winter storm, will be held this Sunday, Nov. 11, in the Southern High School gym from 2 to 4 p.m. The public is invited to attend. Miss Maryland Joanna Guy, pictured, will be on hand for photographs and to perform a special tribute to the hundreds of community volunteers who gave of their time and talent to support the Bounce Back project benefiting Cindy's Fund and Children's Miracle Network Hospitals. The program will also feature routines by the Chorevo dance troupe from Cumberland and several groups from Brenda's Body Shop, including Tumbleweeds, Boundless Energy Aero Dance, and the BBS Dance Team. "I am thrilled to celebrate the success of Bounce Back," Guy said, "and to share the excitement of this inspiring project, which has brought healing and hope to people in our community facing serious health challenges." Activities for younger children will include games, "hoppity-hop" balls, and a bounce house. Awards will be presented to the top fundraisers, and all who attend will be eligible to win special prizes and gift cards. The event is free of charge; donations to support the charities will be accepted.

Local Church To Hold Giveaway Friday, Saturday

The 11th annual Great Gift Giveaway, hosted by the Loch Lynn Church of God, will be held next Thursday, Nov. 15, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Friday, Nov. 16, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. This outreach will take place in the fellowship hall of the former church building, located at 121 E. First Avenue in Loch Lynn.

"The Great Gift Giveaway is, blessing for blessing, ours to give and yours to receive," stated a church spokesperson, adding that this outreach ministry is for the purpose of helping individuals and families who are in need of clothing, shoes, toys, and games during this holiday season.

For more information, persons may contact the church office at 301-334-3221.

Governor O'Malley:
Maryland is engaged in Saving the Bay.
We urge you to commit your administration and public funds to Saving Deep Creek Lake– before it is too late for the lake!

We, Garrett Countians, are committed to natural resource conservation. We are local and part-time property owners, business people, recreational users of the lake and the Youghiogheny River, and benefit from the DCL-based economy.

Your policy provides no programs or funding for lake protection and restoration, abandoning your legal, ownership and stewardship responsibilities. Your administration has allowed sections of the lake to decline so far they cannot be restored. Your policy threatens 56% of County tax revenues and 63% of our jobs.

Attend DNR
State of the Lake presentation:
4 p.m., November 14
at St. Peter's Social Hall.
If you cannot attend, contact Secretary Griffin at jgriffin@dnr.state.md.us

Our state taxes and fees support Bay-related programs—the Flush Tax, Boat Excise Tax, 2010 Trust Fund, Chesapeake Bay Trust and state employees working on the Bay—but not our lake!

The State must provide funds to protect and restore state-owned Deep Creek Lake as well as support an effective, well-funded watershed approach to lake management.

You must ACT NOW to Save the Lake, our local jobs and the local economy!

Lakers To Open Campaign This Weekend In Railey Realty Classic

The Garrett College men's and women's basketball teams will open their seasons this weekend when the Lakers host the annual Railey Realty Classic in their new gymnasium, located in the Community Aquatic and Recreation Complex (CARC).

The GC women will face Potomac State in Friday's 6 p.m. tipoff, with the men taking on NOVA (Northern Virginia) of Alexandria in the 8 p.m. contest.

There will be a 2 p.m. women's game, with Butler (Pa.) challenging Erie, and the Erie men will play Butler at 4 p.m.

Saturday's games will begin at noon with the Erie women taking on Potomac State, followed by the Erie men vs. NOVA at 2 p.m., the GC men playing Butler at 4 p.m., and the Garrett women facing Butler at 6 p.m.

Anchored by returning sophomores Matt Gibson, Antonio Butler, Din Moore, Daniel Brown, and Guila Panzo, the Laker men are setting their sights on a national tournament appearance.

"These guys were warriors last year and played through not only their own injuries, but the injuries and defections by key players as well," said Laker head coach Dennis Gibson. "They are a great group of young men, and win or lose, I am proud to be in the gym with them. They are trying to do things the right way."

Butler, the team's leading returning scorer (19 ppg), has been injured, but Gibson said he should be on the court for limited play to start the season.

Gibson led the team in assists with five per game and in free-throw shooting, and was also one of the most consistent three-point shooters in the country.

Din held the shooting guard position last season and will be expected to contribute heavily from three-point range and guarding the opponents' best players, according to Gibson.

Daniel Brown was an all-around player for the team last season, filling in at three positions, and he was also one of the top offensive rebounders on the team.

Panzo, the team's leading rebounder, is an athletic forward that Gibson says has the potential to be an All-JUCO performer.

"But freshmen are going to have to round out the minutes," said Gibson, "and there are some exciting additions to the squad."

These would be 6-6 forward Walter Griffin and 6-2 guard YanNick Zanfack, described by Gibson as "explosive athletes who can score in bunches."

The long-time GC mentor said that local Southern High products Kurt Gangler and Area Player of the Year D.J. Ritchie have "shown real consistency and effort, as well as scoring effectiveness."

Marquise Green and Chris Smith will come off the bench and, according to Gibson, are strong, aggressive rebounders who will provide much needed depth inside.

Shannon McCready, a 6-7 player from Australia, is learning the fast-paced style of JUCO basketball and improving every day, Gibson said.

"He's also just a great kid to have in practice and the locker room," he added.

Information on the Garrett women's team was not received by presstime this morning.

Scheffel Brothers Both Starting For WVU Mountaineers' Wrestling Team

GEORGE SCHEFFEL

JAKOB SCHEFFEL

Brothers George "Brutus" and Jakob "Bubba" Scheffel, Oakland, who are among the handful of most outstanding wrestlers in the history of the Southern High School program, are now both starters on the West Virginia University wrestling team.

Brutus Scheffel, who started for the Mountaineers last season, is a redshirted sophomore, while his brother Bubba is listed as a freshman, having transferred to WVU from Virginia Tech this fall.

Both opened their season on Saturday with victories against Johns Hopkins, and then each dropped their second matches to University of Maryland opponents on Sunday.

The Mountaineers shut out Johns Hopkins in its first dual meet of the season, 43-0, at the Comcast Center in College Park Saturday.

Brutus Scheffel won a thrilling match against Henry Stauber in sudden victory, 3-1, in the 149-pound division. With less than 20 seconds left in sudden-victory overtime, Scheffel was successful in a takedown attempt.

At 174 pounds, Bubba Scheffel scored the first pin of his Mountaineer career, taking only 37 seconds to pin Hopkins' Jody Gowen.

The Mountaineers fell to the 15th-ranked Terrapins on Sunday, 24-10.

In the 174-pound matchup, Bubba Scheffel nearly upset Josh Asper, ranked 4th nationally, but was edged by decision, 5-3. Scheffel held an early 2-1 lead against Asper, who competed in the NWCA All-Star Classic Saturday night. Asper, however, would score a second-period takedown, an escape point in the third, and a riding time point that would be the deciding factors in the match.

"Bubba knew the challenge that he was going to face coming into this match," stated WVU head coach Craig Turnbull. "Instead of just rolling around on the mat, he came in with an intention to win. You have to appreciate the attitude that he displayed in his first varsity match. It is really encouraging to see that type of effort and performance from Bubba."

Meanwhile, Brutus Scheffel was topped on points by Maryland's Lou Mascola in the 149-pound bout, 9-4.

Brutus, who finished last season with an 18-15 record, placed sixth at the Eastern Wrestling League championships, third at the Navy Classic, and sixth at the Washington & Jefferson Tournament. Among his most significant victories was a 9-6 decision over Michigan State's Dan Osterman, who was ranked #23 at the time.

He was a four-time Maryland state champion when wrestling for Southern High coach Dave Taylor. He is majoring in sociology and anthropology.

Bubba, a three-time Maryland state champion in high school, holds the record for greatest number of wins in Maryland high school wrestling history, having finished with an overall record of 167-4. For that feat, he was named Maryland Wrestler of the Year in 2010. He won the 160-pound class at the NHSCA Junior Nationals in 2010 and was the runner-up in the Senior Nationals that year.

He is majoring in civil engineering at WVU.

The Scheffels are the sons of George Scheffel and Anita Scheffel, both of Oakland.

The Mountaineers will be back in action this Sunday when they compete in the Wolfpack Open in Raleigh, N.C.

Don't Weep For Me

Don't weep for me because I'm with Father,
And in my Father's house there is no sorrow,
For I suffer no more,
Blessed be the name of the Lord,
For I can walk and breath and have no pain.
So don't weep for me for I'm still in your hearts.
Think about the hugs and kisses,
And the love that I have for each of you.
My Father says He will never leave us and He will not forsake us.
So don't weep for me,
For each day is a blessing and so are memories.
So don't weep for me,
Give God the praises and the glory
Because I am FREE.
Until we meet again, don't weep for me,
Just smile when you think of me,
Because Praise God I Am Free!

Runnin' Rams Qualify For State 1A Cross Country Championships

THE OUTCOME SEEMED TO BE UP IN THE AIR in the Maryland 1A West Regional Semifinal soccer game for the Northern Huskies. Much like in these photos, a lucky bounce decided the outcome of the game. In the above photo, Northern's Jordan Evans (#13) heads the ball high into the air over Campers defenders to Husky teammate Corey Durst (#18). Admiring the header, and anticipating the ball's return, are Huskies Jacob Williams (#3), Jeffry Beal (#14), and Jerad Fike (#6). Below, Northern defenders Zach Voelkel (#2) gets into position and prevents the ball from going out of bounds. Fellow Husky defender Lake Sherrard (#12) tries to get his momentum stopped to turn upfield after the kick. The Huskies and Campers battled for nearly 95 minutes until a ball that took an auspicious bounce inside the goalie box was headed in by the Campers. The Huskies lost the double overtime match 1-0. Huskies Sneak Past Warriors; Edged By Campers To End Playoff Run

The fourth-seeded Northern boys' soccer team hosted fifth-seeded Boonsboro Thursday at Mtn. Ridge, winning the quarterfinals match 1-0 in overtime. The Huskies traveled to Cumberland on Saturday in the semifinals to square off against an undefeated and top-seeded Allegany team, losing 1-0 in double overtime, ending its Maryland 1A West Region playoff run.

On Thursday, the scoreless tie was broken at 7:08 of the overtime period when Jordan Evans scored the lone goal. Jerad Fike had the assist.

The Huskies had not played in 10 days and were unable to practice because of Hurricane Sandy, according to head coach Lynn Lais.

"We were out of sync. We were out of school all week and there was no practice; it showed. We had a number of great opportunities, but didn't put it away. It was a cold and hard fought game. It was a good game, a great game to play," said Lais.

Northern had a 17-11 advantage in shots, while Boonsboro had a 3-2 edge in corner kicks. The Huskies' Alex Durst had nine saves, while the Warriors' Greg Fiola stopped 12 shots.

On Saturday, the match took nearly 95 minutes and forced double overtime to decide the victor.

The two teams repeatedly denied each other any opportunities to score by playing stellar defense. Then, in the second overtime, the ball popped up into the air right where the Campers could take advantage. A "lucky bounce" inside the goalie box was headed in by the Campers' Dakota Bierman at the 5:28 mark.

Allegany coach Stephen Cavallo gave the Huskies a lot of credit for their effort.

"Hats off to NHS. They worked extremely hard. They're a good program. Today was the definition of great playoff soccer," Cavallo added.

For Northern, Alex Durst stopped seven shots, while Nate Condor had six saves for the Campers.

With the loss, Northern finishes its season with a 8-4-1 record overall.

Allegany remains undefeated and improves to 15-0-1 overall. The Campers will host the winner of Brunswick and Clear Spring on Monday at 6p.m.

Rams Jump Out To Big Lead, Fall Short To Brunswick in Quarterfinals Match

The Southern Rams girls' soccer team hosted the Brunswick Railroaders in the Maryland 1A West Quarterfinals Thursday night. The match was played at Mountain Ridge because of the condition of Southern's home field. Despite the Rams jumping out to a 3-0 lead, Brunswick rallied back for a 4-3 win.

Just 31 seconds into the contest, Alli Shaffer gave the Rams the early lead on an unassisted goal. Alicia Roth extended the lead to 2-0 with a goal at the 27:25 mark on a pass from Alicia Harpole.

Shaffer struck again early in the second half (35:12) with another goal to give Southern a 3-0 advantage.

Just when it appeared that the Rams were on their way to a blowout win, Brunswick unleashed a crippling comeback. The Railroaders quickly gained momentum with two unassisted goals only 44 seconds apart by Dara Demich and Marissa Stepler.

The Railroaders tied the game 3-3 when Alex Eckenrode scored another unassisted goal with 16:02 left in the game.

The potential game-winning goal was scored by Demich on a direct kick, giving Brunswick its first lead, 4-3, with 14:55 left.

For Southern, Annie Martin stopped seven shots. The Rams conclude their season with a 9-6 overall record.

A DEFENSIVE WAR – In a defense-heavy affair, it was hard to muster anything for either offense. In the photos, the pass defense coverage for both teams is evident. In the above photo, Rams' wide-receiver Matt Mayles (#10) jumps up to try to reel the pass in. Huskies' players Trevor Harding (#85) and Craig Funk (#88) get their hands in and break up the pass. NHS defender Aaron Rodeheaver (#11) and SHS fullback Scott Cooper (#35) wait in anticipation for the ball to come down. A few yards downfield, the Rams' Reese Haskiell (#32) and the Huskies' Kody Osselburn (#23) watch as the play continues along the Rams' sideline. Below, Northern's Harding (#85) draws two Southern defenders, Matt Mayles (#10) and Collin Lewis (#81). Also identifiable in the photo are Rams players Haskiell (#32), Brandon Wotring (#56), Nic Skipper (#74), Garrett Campbell (#38) and Seth Kisner (#41). The Husky players are Shawn Snyder (#64), Brody Monahan (#55), and Pat Deniker (#50). SETTING UP THE ONLY SCORE was Garrett Campbell (#38) for the Rams. Campbell broke free on this run to set up the long touchdown pass before halftime with the help of his teammates. Also identifiable in the photo are Rams' Seth Kisner (#41) and Nick Linton (#77). Identifiable for Northern are Derek Silbaugh (#77), Kody Osselburn (#23), and Meshach Metz (#7). Below, Campbell (#38) gets some space between himself and the defense while his teammate Matt Mayles (#10) looks for someone to block downfield. For the Huskies, Jeremy Ben der (#45) and Aaron Broadwater (#12) attempt to catch Campbell from behind. Rams Halt Series Losing Streak, Outlast Huskies In Defensive Battle

In the long-standing Northern-Southern football rivalry, no clash between the two teams may have been as evenly matched as the game played on Saturday. The teams traveled to Mountain Ridge to play because of the still-lingering effects of Hurricane Sandy. The game would potentially be decided in only 1.1 seconds, and for the Rams, that's all they would need to secure the win, 7-0.

The game was played 10 yards at a time. Neither team was able to sustain much of a drive on offense, and used all four downs on several possessions to try to pick up the first down. The teams combined for 353 yards of total offense in a defense-heavy affair.

The first half was filled with punts, turnovers on downs, and short rushing plays. It wasn't until late in the second quarter that either team really showed any signs of "big-play" capability.

The Huskies tried to convert on a fourth down and three and came up short. The Rams would take over on offense just past midfield in Huskies' territory with 7.7 seconds remaining in the first half.

The Rams' Garrett Campbell would bring the cold fans to their feet on an 18-yard dash to the Huskies' 30-yard line. The Rams quickly called its last time out just before the clock ran out, leaving 1.1 seconds in the half.

Southern's Kevin Colaw led his team back onto the field after the time out and heaved the ball downfield, where Reese Haskiell was waiting at the 8-yard line. The Huskies' Tyler Harding attempted to breakup the pass, diving in front of Haskiell. The pass was caught by Haskiell, who turned and scored as time expired. Alexander Meyer kicked the extra-point conversion, giving Southern the 7-0 lead as the teams went into the locker room at halftime.

The second half was filled with more of the same defense. The teams physically battled each other, refusing to allow any momentum.

"The win was a total team effort," said Southern head coach Steve Savage.

"It's nice to end the streak. Our defense played very well. Tristan Nazelrod, Nic Skipper, and Seth Holler did a great job containing Northern's option game. We scrimmaged the Huskies back in August, and they made huge improvements as a team since then."

The SHS defense came up with several big plays as time started to run out on the Huskies. The Rams had several stops on fourth-down attempts by the Huskies and forced a fumble as well. But, no play was as big as a sack on fourth down that would stop Northern for good.

"This was a typical, hard-hitting Northern-Southern football game," said Northern head coach Phil Carr.

"We only had two practices this week prior to the game because of the weather. The lack of practice definitely hurt both teams' offenses."

The Rams' Campbell seemed to be the only offensive player able to move the ball for either team. He finish with 128 yards on 27 carries in a defensive war. On defense, Campbell also contributed, forcing a late fumble that was recovered by Seth Kisner to help seal the win.

Freshman Aaron Rodeheaver led Northern with 75 yards on 15 carries, and completed a pass for 17 yards. On defense, he forced two fumbles. Derek Silbaugh recovered a fumble for the Huskies.

The Rams had a total of 210 yards on offense, almost all on the ground. Southern finished with 180 yards rushing and 30 yards passing, all coming on the touchdown pass.

Northern tallied 143 yards on offense, 91 yards rushing, and 62 yards passing, completing 4 of 8 passes.

Both head coaches agreed that their teams struggled in the first half of the season. The adjustments that were made for the second half of the year were key for both teams.

"We made some changes after the Berkeley Springs game," said Coach Savage.

"Two big moves that made the biggest improvements to our team were moving Colaw to quarterback and Campbell to running back. We also made a few changes on the other side of the ball, and we felt that our defensive unit was as good as anyone we lined up against."

Coach Carr also talked about his team in the second half of the season.

"We started out 0-4 this season, and to be able to bounce back from a start like that just shows the improvements that were made," he said.

"To be able to have a shot at the playoffs this season after that kind of start is unheard of."

The win for Southern was the first in 10 years since a 43-13 victory in 2001. Prior to 2001, the Rams had won seven times in eight years. The win now gives Southern a 33-21-2 all-time series advantage.

"Anytime you can finish a season with wins against quality programs like Mountain Ridge and Northern, it's been a good year," Coach Savage concluded.

The Southern Rams finish the season with a 5-5 record, while the Northern Huskies finish with a 4-6 season.

THE LONE SCORE of the game came on a 30-yard pass play just before halftime as time expired. Southern's Reese Haskiell (#32) caught the pass with only 1.1 seconds remaining. Huskies' defender Meshach Metz (#7) tackled Haskiell just as he broke the plane of the end zone. "Meadowscaping" To Be Topic Of Next Garden Club Mtg.

CATHERINE ZIMMERMAN

The Mountain Laurel Garden Club will meet on Tuesday, Nov. 13, at 10:30 a.m. at Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake. The meeting will include a presentation, "Meadowscaping in Big and Small Spaces," by Catherine Zimmerman, filmmaker and sustainable landscape designer based in the Washington, D.C., area.

Zimmerman will present meadowscaping as a lawn alternative. She will explain why meadow and prairie habitats are beneficial both economically and environmentally. She will also give a step-by-step primer on reducing lawn size and installing an organic meadow in one's own yard.

"Catherine invites everyone to join the movement to bring back native habitat for wildlife and human life," a club spokesperson said. "Growing up on a small farm in the 1950s and '60s and as a fourth generation vegetable farmer, she spent summers with her siblings and parents planting, weeding, and harvesting their organically managed family garden. This early experience helped form her approach to the land."

Zimmerman is the author of Urban & Suburban Meadows: Bringing Meadowscaping to Big and Small Spaces and has just released the companion video. The book and video offer the tools to create sustainable, organic landscapes in backyards, schoolyards, churches, and communities.

"In her book, several highly regarded experts in meadow establishment lend their knowledge for site preparation, design, planting, and maintenance," the spokesperson said. "Plant lists and resource sections for nine regions across the United States provide local sources to assist the meadow creator in bringing diversity back to urban and suburban landscapes.

Zimmerman also contributes to the blog Native Plants and Wildlife Garden (nativeplantwildlifegarden.com/the-team/catherine-zimmerman).

"The blog, book, video, and Catherine's Meadow Project are her efforts to help people rethink their pesticide-ridden, manicured, monoculture lawns, and return their land to beautiful, natural habitats for native plants and wildlife," the spokesperson said.

Zimmerman's book and video will be for sale during the garden club meeting, and she will be available for book signing.

More information about her is online at themeadowproject.com.

For more information about the Mountain Laurel Garden Club, persons may call Ginni Neff at 301-387-7387 or Barbara Sanders at 304-789-6450.

The club is a member of the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland Inc., the Central Atlantic Region, and the National Garden Clubs Inc. Affiliated clubs provide education, resources, and national networking opportunities for members as well as promote gardening, floral design, and civic and environmental responsibility.

Mt. Zion Church To Hold Breakfast

The Mt. Zion United Methodist Men will hold a buckwheat cake/pancake breakfast this Saturday, Nov. 10, from 7 a.m. to noon.

The United Methodist Women will hold a bake/soup sale during the event.

The church is located seven miles west of Frostburg on the National Pike (Rt. 40).

FSU Symbolically "Unplugs" Off-Grid Sustainable Energy Research Facility

Frostburg State University symbolically "unplugged" its Sustainable Energy Research Facility (SERF) from the electrical grid during a ribbon-cutting ceremony last week. The completely off-grid building in the Allegany Business Center at FSU will serve as home to a wide variety of renewable energy research projects and instructional classes, as well as being a demonstration and test site for technologies that allow buildings to be separate from the power grid.

"SERF may be off the grid, but it puts Frostburg State University very much on the map as a national leader in renewable energy research, which opens the doors for us to welcome visiting researchers, consultants, companies, and other partners who wish to further the study of renewable energy," said FSU president Jonathan Gibralter. "It will greatly help Frostburg raise its visibility and uphold sustainable education in important ways."

The 6,300-square-foot building itself will be a demonstration and test center, as it will be entirely off-grid, powered and heated with all renewable sources, a combination of solar, wind, passive solar and hydrogen fuel cell technology. The building also features a variety of conservation and energy storage options, and will continue to develop as new technologies are added.

Dr. Oguz Soysal and Hilkat Soysal, co-directors of the FSU Renewable Energy Center and faculty in the FSU Department of Physics and Engineering, said they first conceived of a facility like this during the energy crisis of the 1970s. This FSU project has been five years in the making, as solutions to combining the various technologies not previously used together have been developed, with contractors, FSU employees, and engineers collaborating.

The approach of twin storms from opposite directions – Hurricane Sandy and a winter storm – as the ceremony was being held was not lost on the dignitaries in attendance. While simultaneously hoping that the storm's impact would be minimal, the hazardous forecast emphasized the role of a facility dedicated to renewable energy and energy resources that were separate from the national electrical grid, Oguz Soysal said.

"There couldn't have been any better example to set for the need for renewable energy, sustainable energy work," he said.

U.S. Rep. Roscoe Bartlett (R-Md.), whose advocacy was an essential step in getting the SERF project off the ground, remarked that he had been to openings of several large solar arrays, but all were tied to the electrical grid, which meant they couldn't be used if the grid went down.

The facility is believed to be the nation's only totally off-grid building dedicated to the research of renewable energy generation. Individual homeowners, farmers, or small businesses located in the Appalachian region or regions with similar geographic features are expected to benefit from its research.

Bartlett said that the solutions that may come from SERF will serve the goals of three diverse advocacy groups that are often at odds with one another: those concerned with climate change and the increase of the release of carbon dioxide into the atmosphere, those concerned with the national security risk inherent in the United States being so dependent on imported oil, and those concerned that oil is a finite resource that will be increasingly difficult and expensive to retrieve.

The construction, equipping, and staffing of SERF has been supported by two grants from the U.S. Department of Energy totaling nearly $1.6 million, obtained with the assistance of Bartlett, the representative for Maryland's 6th District. Additional support has come from Frostburg State University, Constellation Energy, and Maryland Industrial Partnerships (MIPS).

More information about SERF and renewable energy research at FSU can be found online at http://www.fsuwise.org/renewable/SERF/ or by sending an e-mail to renewable@frostburg.edu.

Hickory Center Open House Rescheduled

Because of last week's storm, the open house that was scheduled for Monday and Wednesday of this week has been rescheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 14, from 4 to 7:30 p.m.

Visitors will have the opportunity to tour the facility and view the Pre-K to 12th grade Environmental Literacy Plan (ELP).

The planetarium will be open for visitors to watch "ViewSpace," uploaded programs from the Hubble Space Telescope Institute.

For additional details or questions, persons may call Hickory at 301-746-8165.

Hernandez To Lead Program On Winter Herbs

A program featuring Frostburg State University's Mimi Hernandez will be presented Monday, Nov. 12, at 7:30 p.m. at the Folk Meeting House in Springs, Pa.

Attendees will learn about the natural, traditional, and scientifically sound uses of herbs to support winter wellness issues, how to incorporate herbs into winter meals, and for use as home remedies. Topics will include natural immune support, cold and flu support, and natural care for seasonal depression.

Hernandez is a clinical herbalist and educator whose courses "balance traditional reverence with scientific understanding." She is the coordinator of the Appalachian Center for Ethnobotanical Studies (ACES) at Frostburg State, and organized the Appalachian Monographs, a series of publications dedicated to documenting the traditional and modern uses of ethnobotanical plants in Appalachia.

In addition to teaching undergraduate ethnobotany classes, much of her work at ACES is centered around cultural outreach and education for mountain landowners who are looking for ways to incorporate non-timber forest products into their sustainability plan.

She is also the project coordinator for Frostburg Grows, an EPA-funded project that is transforming reclaimed mine land into a sustainable food production and restoration tree nursery site. She is the incoming executive director of the American Herbalists Guild, through which she mentors herbalists through her Community Herbalist online courses.

Admission to the Nov. 12 program is free and open to the public. The program is sponsored by the Springs Historical Society. The Folk Meeting House is located at 1711 Springs Road, Springs, Pa. Persons may telephone 814-442-4594 or 814-662-4366 or go online to www.springspa.org for more information.

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the 15th year, The Republican newspaper and the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland are asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is the WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM?

The Republican
GFWC Civic Club of Oakland

The GFWC Civic Club of Oakland and The Republican's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM is basically neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special corps of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Members of the Civic Club of Oakland are taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $125 per child.

The Civic Club of Oakland is again heading up the volunteer/shopping coordination. Many volunteers are working together to make sure the children of Garrett County stay warm this winter.

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children.

Donations should be postmarked by December 5, 2012. Those collected after December 5 will be saved for next year's campaign.

DETERMINING YOUR NEED FOR A FOOD PLAN PART II

by Dr. James J. Damato

In the previous article, I explained that dieting is bad for your health because if the diet fails, the diet gets the blame and not the dieter. Taking responsibility for your food plan and health is essential in order to have healthy outcomes. This article will permit you to analyze your current food plan by helping you to determine if you are overweight. If you are overweight, your current food plan is potentially placing your health at significant risk.

The good news is that if you are reading this article it indicates that you are taking the first steps in accepting responsibility for improving your health. This process will begin by helping determine your Body Mass Index (BMI). The BMI is one standard that can be used to determine if your food plan is helping you achieve and maintain an appropriate weight.

The BMI Table has your height on the left side of the table, your BMI value runs across the top of the table, and the central part of the chart has the various body weights you will use to determine your personal BMI. To use the BMI chart, complete the following steps: (1) Select you height on the far left column of the table; (2) Move across the column next to your height and find your current weight; (3) Finally, move up the column to the top of the table to determine your BMI. For example, if your height is 5'0" and you weigh 123 pounds, your BMI = 24; if you're 5'11" and weigh 200 pounds, your BMI = 28.

BMI VALUE

Height	24	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
5'0"	123	128	133	138	143	148	153	158
5'1"	127	132	137	143	148	153	158	164
5'3"	135	141	146	152	158	163	168	175
5'5"	144	150	156	162	168	174	180	186
5'7"	153	159	166	172	178	185	191	198
5'9"	162	169	176	182	189	196	203	209
5'11"	172	179	186	193	200	208	215	222
6'1"	182	189	197	204	212	219	227	235
6'3"	192	200	208	216	224	232	240	248

Now that you have located your BMI, what does it mean? (1) BMI = 24 or less indicates you are not overweight and that your current food plan is maintaining and promoting your health. (2) BMI = 25-26 indicates you are overweight by a few pounds and that with some adjustments in your food plan you'll achieve an appropriate weight. (3) BMI = 27-29 indicates obesity and your existing food plan is unhealthy (4) BMI = 30 or more indicates that your are very obese and your food plan is potentially endangering your health.

An alternate method to determine if your food plan is helping you maintain and promote your health is to simply divide you waist measurement by your hip measurement. For example, if your waist measurement is 35 and your hip measurement is 45, your waist-hip ratio is 0.77. The bigger the ratio number the more serious is the risk presented by your existing food plan. For women the recommended ration is 0.80 or less and for men is 0.95 or less. In addition, fat located in the abdomen poises additional risks for serious heart and circulatory disease.

So what is the big deal of being overweight? Your body was designed for one person, and if you are 50, 75, 100 lbs overweight, your body is severely stressed to carry the extra load. This is like a Volkswagen pulling an 18-wheeler. It will pull the 18-wheeler for awhile, but it will break down. This analogy also applies to your body and health.

What are the consequences of being overweight? Diabetes with all its terrible complications; worn out knees, hips, ankles, and feet; poor blood circulation, including hardening of the arteries; stroke, heart attack, weak immune system, impotency, increased rates of breast, uterine, ovarian cancer. Finally, being overweight can make it difficult to establish and maintain relationships, as well as potentially limiting job opportunities.

The good news is that all those conditions can be prevented by developing and implementing a healthy and enjoyable food plan. Only you can take responsibility for your health and choose a new path that promotes and maintains a healthy weight for you and your family members.

Next week I'll provide you with the simple details needed to either modify your current food plan or initiate a food plan that will help you to achieve your health and career goals.

That We Might Be Free

Our Veterans risked their lives to serve our country and protect our freedom. Each time we cast our ballot…whenever we express a political opinion without fear of reprisal…every week as we worship freely…let us remember the months and years they sacrificed as they defended the rights which we enjoy today. This Veteran's Day, honor the selfless men and women who have paid with a portion of their lives that we might be free.

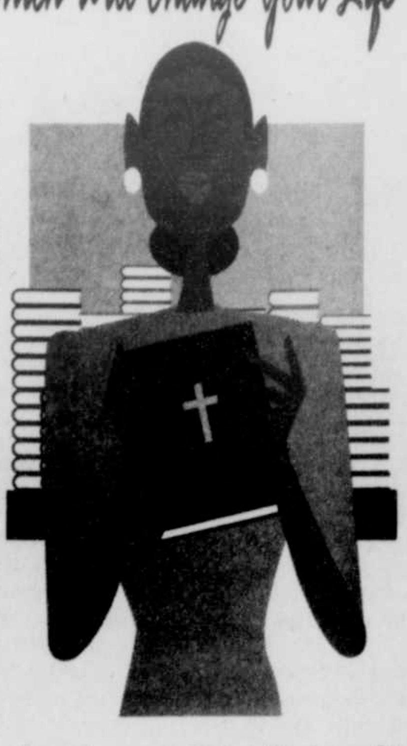
Read Something Which Will Change Your Life



How many have marked some significant change in their life to the reading of a book? A book allows us to glimpse the heart and soul of another human being, while letting their ideas into our hearts and souls. That type of intimacy is only rarely achieved in our non-reading lives, and is perhaps a clue to why bookworms are so obsessed with books. Where else can you so directly peer into another's soul? What makes good fiction so interesting is that it explores different modes of being human. Hemingway claimed that "All good books are alike in that they are truer than if they had really happened and after you are finished reading one you will feel that all that happened to you." We can internalize books to such a degree that they become part of us. This can be a good or a bad thing, there are good and bad things in books, and while a glimpse into evil doesn't necessarily make one evil, it could be dangerous to spend too much time perusing books on evil or sordid subjects. We should read a variety of books. There is an old proverb which says beware the man of one book, meaning to beware of anyone who is single-mindedly devoted to a single book. It is a testament to the open-mindedness of the men who chose which books to include in the Bible that they chose a wide variety of books, reflecting a wide variety of views and religious experiences. So, read something that might change your life today, pick up a good book.

–Christopher Simon

Good times: 'Whitney' spices up Wednesdays on NBC

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

Comedy is a tough business. Few comedians or comic actors truly "make it" on their own steam, but once in a blue moon, a truly funny lady comes along.

Whitney Cummings has established herself as one such funny lady with a stand-up routine that's landed her on "The Tonight Show With Conan O'Brien" and "Chelsea Lately."

Last fall, Cummings earned her way to the top of the TV food chain with her very own sitcom, "Whitney," which finally returns to the airwaves Wednesday, Nov. 14, on NBC. The comedian stars in the title role as half of a forward-thinking couple that also includes Chris D'Elia as her beau, Alex.

This isn't the performer's first TV show. One of her first gigs after moving to L.A. was on MTV's "Punk'd," which she worked on in 2004. That was also the year she began performing stand-up. By 2007, she'd been deemed one of "Variety's" 10 Comics to Watch and made Entertainment Weekly's list of 12 Rising Stars of Comedy in 2008. Interestingly, she appeared in NBC's 2008 edition of "Last Comic Standing," but didn't make it through the showcase round.

In her new NBC show, Cummings proves that nothing is funnier than real life. Well, maybe her real life. "Whitney" is apparently a reflection of the comedian's experiences, as well as her stand-up. The fictionalized Whitney is a photographer, while Alex has found success as an Internet entrepreneur.

As the inaugural season played out, the series showcased the talents of an ensemble cast that includes Rhea Seehorn as Whitney's divorced friend, Roxanne, and Zoe Lister-Jones, as Lily, another of Whitney's close pals. Dan O'Brien appears as Chicago police officer Mark Murphy, Alex's ally.

While Seehorn, Lister-Jones and O'Brien are already tight, Tone Bell is new to the second season of the show. The up-and-coming performer won NBC's Stand Up for Diversity program, an initiative to find talented comedians of diverse backgrounds. He'll play RJ, a bartender at Whitney and Alex's local haunt. "Whitney" has dropped Maulik Pancholy, who appeared in Season 1 as Lily's ex, Neal.

In the first season, Whitney became concerned that her three-year romance with Alex could be headed for disaster, citing "relationship boredom." By the time the season wrapped up at the end of March, Whitney and Alex were headed down the aisle after Alex's drunken proposal. An expired driver's license put a kink in their plan and they made a commitment in their own special way.

For fans wondering what happens next, "Whitney's" second season was originally supposed to premiere earlier this fall, on Oct. 19, along with NBC's "Community." However, the network delayed the Season 2 debut less than two weeks before the scheduled airdate, choosing instead to focus on the new series that were doing well. The move seems to have saved "Whitney" from a dreaded Friday night time slot, which can serve as the kiss of death for traditional sitcoms.

The sitcom is lucky to be alive as it is. It's been a slow road to success for the comedy. "Whitney" debuted as part of NBC's legendary must-see Thursday night comedy block last September, but moved to Wednesdays after the holidays. With more than six million viewers, the premiere showed promise, but "Whitney" was quickly panned by critics who denounced Cummings' lack of acting skills.

Viewership had dropped to four million by December, but experienced a slight bump in ratings when it debuted on Wednesdays in January.

NBC seems to be sticking with Wednesdays for now, which is bad news to fans of "Animal Practice," which the network recently canceled. "Whitney" will take over the time slot left by the comedy about a vet and his monkey friend at a posh New York animal hospital.

Despite a slow start, "Whitney" was renewed for a second season in May, which must have been a relief for Cummings, even though she's got other projects in the works. She may be the face of NBC's "Whitney," but the comedian secured another network hit with CBS's "2 Broke Girls," which also premiered in September 2011. Cummings is the co-creator and executive producer of the comedy about two very different young women who start up a cupcake business. Kat Dennings and Beth Behrs co-star in the sitcom, which Cummings co-created with Michael Patrick King. "2 Broke Girls" has been outperforming "Whitney," and even won a 2012 Emmy for outstanding art direction.

Both "Whitney" and "2 Broke Girls" were renewed for second seasons, so Cummings must be doing something right, despite naysayers. Hopefully for her, she'll avoid a sophomore jinx and bring NBC back to the frontlines of comedy with "Whitney." The Nov. 14 season opener features Jane Kaczmarek as Whitney's mother Candi, who arrives just as Whitney and Alex are celebrating their unofficial wedding day. Elsewhere, Roxanne and Lily argue over the perfect wedding present.

'SNL' alums reunite to co-host Golden Globes

By Sheila Busteed
TV Media

FUNNY WOMEN: Two of television's funniest women will join forces in January to co-host the Golden Globe Awards.

Comedians Tina Fey and Amy Poehler will share hosting duties at the upcoming ceremony, making it a significant reunion for the former "Saturday Night Live" stars. It's been a few years since they last worked together and this will be the first time either of them has hosted a major awards show. NBC will air the live broadcast of "The 70th Annual Golden Globe Awards" on Sunday, Jan. 13, from the Beverly Hilton in Beverly Hills, Calif.

The women have honed this partnership over many years of working together. They co-hosted the Weekend Update segment of "SNL" for several years. While they were both still working on the sketch comedy series, they paired again on the big screen in 2004's "Mean Girls."

Fey left "SNL" two years later to create and star in "30 Rock," but she returned to her former stomping grounds with a vengeance during the last race for the White House. Her famous parody of vice-presidential candidate Sarah Palin, with Poehler by her side impersonating Hillary Clinton, became a huge hit. Fey has since reprised the Palin role several times. Meanwhile, Poehler left "SNL" in 2008, but the women joined forces on the big screen again that same year in "Baby Mama."

Needless to say, the pairing of Poehler and Fey is already a well-oiled comedy machine.

"Having both Tina Fey and Amy Poehler on board to host this year's festivities is a major coup," said NBC's Paul Telegdy. "Tina and Amy have a proven chemistry and comedic timing from their many years together on 'SNL' to their successful co-starring roles in 'Baby Mama.'"

The ceremony will be executive produced by Allen Shapiro, Orly Adelson and Barry Adelman of Dick Clark Productions.

Tina Fey will serve as co-host of The 70th Annual Golden Globe Awards

Strange BUT TRUE

• It was Scotsman Bertie Charles Forbes, journalist and founder of Forbes magazine, who made the following sage observation: "There is more credit and satisfaction in being a first-rate truck driver than in being a tenth-rate executive."

• The prospectors of 1849 might not have realized it, but you're more likely to find a 5-carat diamond than a 1-ounce nugget of gold. • You might be surprised -- and, depending on your temperament, terrified -- to learn that bats can fly at speeds up to 60 mph. Some can even reach altitudes of 10,000 feet.

• Coffee beans are actually seeds. The fruit of the coffee tree is called a cherry and are said to be delicious. They spoil too quickly to be marketed effectively, though, so only the seeds are used.

• Beverly Hills, Calif., is one of the most affluent areas of the country. It was not always such a posh locale, however; in 1920 the population was 674, and most of the land was given over to bean fields. • All joking aside, those who study such things say that natural blondes tend to have more difficulty driving than those whose hair is of a darker hue -- at night, anyway. The reason? Most natural blondes also have blue eyes, which aren't as good as brown eyes at shielding out light. This means that blondes tend to be more easily blinded by the headlights of oncoming cars. • When a professional football player retires, there's a 50-50 chance he'll get divorced within a year. • Everybody dreams. Those who claim that they never have dreams just don't remember them.

Thought for the Day: "Any frontal attack on ignorance is bound to fail, because the masses are always ready to defend their most precious possession -- their ignorance." -- Hendrik Willem van Loon

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Nov. 12, 1864, Union Gen. William T. Sherman orders the business district of Atlanta destroyed before he embarks on his famous March to the Sea through Georgia to prevent the Confederates from recovering anything once the Yankees had abandoned it.

• On Nov. 16, 1901, a low-slung car called the "Torpedo Racer" -- basically a square platform on bicycle wheels -- breaks the world speed record for electric cars in Coney Island, N.Y., by going 1 mile down the straight dirt track in just 63 seconds. That's about 57 mph. Today the world speed record for an electric vehicle is about 245 mph.

• On Nov. 14, 1914, in Constantinople, capital of the Ottoman Empire, the religious leader Sheikh-ul-Islam declares an Islamic holy war on behalf of the Ottoman government, urging his Muslim followers to take up arms against Britain, France, Russia, Serbia and Montenegro.

• On Nov. 15, 1943, Heinrich Himmler makes public an order that Gypsies are to be put on "the same level as Jews and placed in concentration camps." Himmler was determined to prosecute Nazism racial policies, which dictated the elimination of all races deemed "inferior" and "asocial."

• On Nov. 13, 1953, a member of the Indiana Textbook Commission calls for the removal of references to the book "Robin Hood" from textbooks used by the state's schools. She claimed that Robin Hood was a communist because he robbed the rich and gave it to the poor. • On Nov. 17, 1968, the Oakland Raiders score two touchdowns in nine seconds to beat the New York Jets -- and no one sees it. In a debacle which would become known as "Heidi Bowl," with just 65 seconds left to play, NBC broke away from the game to air its previously scheduled programming, the movie "Heidi."

Q: I found a ceramic cat's head in a junk shop in Dallas, and I am not quite sure what it was used as. It obviously mounted on the wall, and the cat's mouth has a small hole. -- Betty, Spring Branch, Texas
A: You have a string holder, an item often found in kitchens throughout the 1930s and '40s. The one in my grandmother's kitchen featured a monkey design. Values vary depending on style and condition, but often sell in the $20 to $45 range.

Q: I recently inherited a collection of books from a distant relative who was a professor of literature at a major university. Although several of the books are extremely interesting, I am curious about one in particular: "Prufock and Other Observations" by T.S. Eliot. It was published in London in 1917 and appears to be a first edition. -- Susan, Helena, Mont.
A: This was T.S. Eliot's first book. According to "Collected Books: The Guide to Values" by Allen and Patricia Ahearn (Putnam Press), your book, if it is, indeed, a first edition and in decent shape, is worth in the $8,500 to $10,000 range.

Q: My grandmother was Canadian, and I found a commemorative plate in her estate. It was issued in 1927 and is the Canadian Jubilee issue. The identification mark indicates that it was made by Wedgwood and Sons and imported by Nerlich & Company of Toronto. Do you have any idea of how much it is worth? -- Stan, Providence, R.I.
A It took a little effort to track down information about this plate. After searching through several guides, I finally found it referenced in "Bergesen's Price Guide of British Ceramics" by Victoria Bergesen, who indicates it is worth about $100 USD.

Q: About 10 years ago, I found several Pez dispensers in a thrift store. They are all Looney Tune characters: Western Sam, Movie Daffy, Western Bugs Bunny, French Tweetie and African Taz. I paid a buck each for them and hope they have increased in value. -- Sean, Albuquerque, N.M.
A: Your dispensers are each worth in the $3 to $5 range.

RAILEY REALTY

THOUSANDS ANSWER CALL FOR HELP – Garrett County was struck by one of the worst storms in area history last week, when Hurricane Sandy combined with a northern cold front and produced a snowstorm, complete with thunder and lightning, on the night of Oct. 29 and continuing into the next day. The weather event brought upwards of 30 inches of snow in some parts of the county, and caused trees still laden with leaves to lose limbs or fall completely. Hundreds of power lines were ripped off poles and out of houses, and were strewn across the ground throughout the county. More than 18,000 customers were without power on Tuesday morning, constituting about 80% of the county's homes and businesses. The call for help went out, and in a day or two, power trucks and timbering companies began to arrive from multiple states. An incident management team from the state of Kansas assisted in directing the rescue operations, and Maryland Emergency Management Agency officials acquired 80 National Guard troops and 40 pieces of equipment. Power company linemen and tree trimmers numbering nearly 1,000 arrived in the county. Local Mennonite and Amish communities joined forces to cut fallen trees from county and state roadways, and county deputies and 911 dispatchers worked non-stop for several days to coordinate all the efforts. Some cellular phone towers and land line wires were also compromised, making communication difficult. Local oil and propane companies were assisted in reaching homes in need, and law enforcement teams checked on more than 250 stranded families. The scene across the county remains one of damage and destruction, although the clean-up has been initiated, and power has been restored to about 17,000 customers (as of yesterday, Nov. 7). In the photo above left, linemen work on one of the thousands of disrupted power lines. The picture below left was taken along Herrington Manor Road and shows a familiar scene this week – large trees directly blocking roadways. In the photo above right, a power crew from Frederick works on the lines at Crook Crest in Oakland. In the photo below right, a local tractor driver works to dislodge a Gregory Electric Power truck from Charleston, S.C., stuck along Rt. 560 at Bethlehem Road. Many workers who came to Garrett County were from locations with mild winters, and the drivers were not accustomed to operating the large equipment in 30 inches of heavy, wet snow. That photo was submitted by June McRobie. The other three were taken by Lisa Rook.

SRWA To Meet; Garrett Trails Program Slated

The Savage River Watershed Association (SRWA) will meet at the New Germany State Park Lakehouse next Thursday, Nov. 15, at 7 p.m. A special presentation titled "Eastern Continental Divide Loop Trail – Exploring Our Backyard" will be presented by members of the Garrett Trails organization. The public is welcome to attend, but persons are urged bring flashlights since lighting is limited in the park.

According to a Garrett Trails spokesperson, the proposed Eastern Continental Divide Loop (ECDLT) is envisioned as a 150-mile hard-packed, multi-user trail through the heart of Garrett County, bridging the connections between existing trails and also connecting to larger trail networks outside the county, including the Great Allegheny Passage (GAP).

The ECDLT will increase safety to trail users by relocating them away from along the county's busiest roadways to a recognizable network of safe travel opportunities and alternative paths through public land, according to the spokesperson, who added that the trail will offer residents and visiting outdoor enthusiasts a variety of activities eight to 12 months each year.

The Garrett County commissioners in 1999 requested the formation of a task force to create a county trails plan. Early in its efforts, the trail task force realized that a permanent organization was needed for the work of trail planning, development, and promotion. Thus Garrett Trails was founded as a non-profit organization in 2008.

Garrett Trails' mission is to develop a well-used network of top-quality trails that provide access to Garrett County's historic, municipal, and environmental "treasures" and that link to trails outside the county. Garrett Trails finalized a study last year for a 150-mile comprehensive trail within the county. Today, Garrett Trails engages a committed volunteer board of professionals in the development of trail plans and progress, according to the spokesperson.

The SRWA is a group of local landowners and other citizens dedicated to preserving and enhancing the rural nature and natural resources of the Savage River watershed. Members assist interested landowners and public land managers with environmental stewardship efforts and educational outreach. Anyone who is concerned about the Savage River watershed is invited to join.

For more information, persons may contact SRWA online at SRWAdirector@gmail.com or by telephone at 301-689-7156. The SRWA is a non-profit charitable organization. Donations may be sent to: Savage River Watershed Association, P.O. Box 355, Frostburg, MD 21532.

Grant Writing Class Scheduled At GC's Northern Center

Garrett College's Continuing Education and Workforce Development Division has scheduled a course titled "Introduction to Grant Writing" on Mondays, Nov. 19 and 26, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. at the Northern Outreach Center in Grantsville.

This introductory workshop is for those who are unsure of how to write a grant, approach funding sources, or make grant dollars work for their needs.

"Navigating through the grant writing process can be lengthy and involved, but it doesn't need to be difficult," said a college spokesperson.

Participants will be shown how to find and track grant opportunities, including where to find federal, state, and local grant programs.

The instructor, Jo Gilman, GC's dean of administration, will guide students through the process of writing effective grant proposals, concentrating on the following: the essential components of a grant proposal package, how to customize a proposal to match a grant maker's interest, how to initially approach a funder, the differences between government and foundation proposals, how to report on a grant's progress and impact, how to develop working relationships with grant makers, what to do if a proposal is denied, and the behind-the-scenes decisions that determine proposal acceptance and denial.

For additional information, including costs, persons may contact Terry Beachy, Northern Outreach Center coordinator, at 301-895-4700 or terry.beachy@garrettcollege.edu.

To register for this course, one may contact the Continuing Education and Workforce Development Division at 301-387-3069.

Estate Planning Course Scheduled At Northern Center

"Estate Planning: The Importance of Wills and Trusts" will be held at the Garrett College's Northern Outreach Center in Grantsville on Mondays, Nov. 19 and 26, from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

"Estate planning, which is not just for the wealthy, provides the legal mechanism for disposing of property upon death in a way that recognizes an individual's wishes and the needs of survivors, while minimizing taxes," said a GC spokesperson. "For many, it can provide a plan for handling one's affairs in case of disability, and the personal medical choices to be made as life nears its end."

This two-part course will address the common questions regarding wills and trusts.

Part one will center on wills and probate. The class will focus on such questions as: What is a will and what does it do? What does it take to draft a will? How does one choose an executor and what percentage of one's assets does one take as a commission? What is the probate process and is it necessary for one's estate?

Rita Watson, Garrett County register of wills, will be the instructor for part one.

Part two will provide an overview on some of the more noticeable legal and financial issues associated with growing old. Included in the discussion will be trust basics, with a definition of terms and its variations.

Some other topics will include preserving and managing assets for a safe and secure retirement, staying in and protecting one's home, long-term care insurance, medical assistance, and paying for nursing home care.

There will also be discussion of the legal documents seniors should have, such as a will, power of attorney, and advance medical directives. This portion of the course will be instructed by Carl Miltenberger, an elder law attorney with more than 15 years' experience.

For additional information, including costs, persons may contact Terry Beachy, Northern Outreach Center coordinator, at 301-895-4700 or terry.beachy@garrettcollege.edu.

To register for this course, persons may call the Continuing Education and Workforce Development Division at 301-387-3069.

A course titled "Advanced Microsoft Word 2010" is set for Wednesdays and Thursdays, Nov. 28–Dec. 6, from 6 to 9:15 p.m. at Garrett College's Northern Outreach Center in Grantsville.

After a brief review of concepts covered in the basic course, students will be taught about tables of contents, building blocks, sorting, tabs, columns, templates, envelopes and mailing labels, styles, merging documents and data sources to create form letters, tracking options, and document properties.

The instructor for this course will be Laurie Walker. She is a lifelong resident of Garrett County and a certified business education teacher who has work experience in the private business sector.

For additional information, including costs, persons may contact Terry Beachy at 301-895-4700 or terry.beachy@garrettcollege.edu.

Still Time to Set Up Owner-only 401(k) for 2012

If you're a small-business owner, with no full-time employees (except possibly your spouse or business partner), you're probably used to taking care of just about everything on your own. So, if you're thinking of establishing a retirement plan — and you should — you might also be attracted to "going solo" with an "Owner-only" 401(k).

An Owner-only 401(k), sometimes known as an Individual 401(k), has been around for a few years now, and has proven quite popular — and with good reason. This plan is easy to establish, easy to administer and, most importantly, gives you many of the same benefits enjoyed by employees of a company that offers a traditional 401(k) plan. These benefits include the following:

•Tax deferred earnings — Your earnings aren't taxed as they accumulate.

•Tax deductible contributions — An Owner-only 401(k) consists of two components — salary deferral and profit sharing contributions, both of which are generally 100 percent tax deductible. If you choose to make Roth salary deferrals to your Owner-only 401(k), your contributions aren't deductible, but you won't pay taxes on your earnings, provided you don't take withdrawals until you're 59-1/2 and it's been five years since your first year of Roth deferral.

•Variety of investment choices — You can choose to fund your Owner-only 401(k) with a wide range of investments. And you can construct an investment mix that's appropriate for your risk tolerance and long-term goals.

Furthermore, an Owner-only 401(k) can potentially allow you to make greater contributions, at an identical income level, than other small-business retirement plans, such as a SEP IRA. In 2012, you can defer up to $17,000, or $22,500 if you're 50 or older (as long as you don't exceed 100 percent of your income). Then, in addition, you can make a profit-sharing contribution equal to 25 percent of your income (slightly less if you are unincorporated). So, by combining the salary deferral and profit-sharing components, you can potentially contribute up to $50,000 to your Owner-only 401(k) in 2012, or $55,000 if you're 50 or older. And these figures are doubled if your spouse also contributes to the Owner-only 401(k).

However, you're not obligated to contribute anything to your plan. So, if your business is slow one year, you might scale back your contributions, or put in nothing at all. Then, when business picks up again, you can get back toward contributing whatever you can afford, up to the maximum.

Clearly, the Owner-only 401(k) can offer you some key advantages in building resources for retirement. But it's not the only small-business retirement plan on the market, so, before you make a decision, you may want to consult with your tax and financial advisors to determine if an Owner-only 401(k) is indeed the right plan for you.

But don't wait too long. You'll have to establish your Owner-only 401(k) by Dec. 31 if you want to receive any tax deductions for 2012. And in any case, the sooner you start putting money away, the faster the progress you will make toward the retirement lifestyle you've envisioned.

ON A PERSONAL NOTE

by Lucretia Sines

The storm has passed and the spirits of Garrett County residents were taxed to the limit; the limit of strength and stamina, the limit of resources and community spirit, the limit of caring for neighbors, family, strangers, and the limit of mind and spirit in the worse storm on record for our area. The storm brought forth resources from outside our state to provide services to our community when our own resources and personnel were stretched to the limits.

I cannot begin to name all the local organizations as well as the help from others involved for fear of slighting someone, but would like them to know how much their services were appreciated, whether it was providing food and a warm place to stay, help for the stranded, clearing roads to provide passage, replacing the many electrical lines, etc., as well as the families that tolerated not being able to have their loved ones at home so they could provide all these services to others. A great big thank-you to all involved.

Heroes are not always who you expect them to be, but heroes can also appear in a time of stress, tragedy, or the test of will. Compassion is not always for just your loved ones or people whom you know, but can be formed in the most trying of times when mankind needs a helping hand. In a time that really tested our true spirit of Garrett County, when I am sure that anger and frustration were also abundant, we withstood the test and came through it with pride and a new appreciation of our neighbors, our friends and family, as well as the management teams who helped in what could very well have been more tragic that it was.

Here's to hoping that all gets back to the normalcy we are used to soon.

Second row: Wilson, Madison King, Keagan Leibrand, Nicholas Garlitz, Alexis Bowman, Kaiden Keiper, Miley Lee, Chase Fike, and Jordan Beiler (hidden). Retailers Expect A Modest Gain In Holiday Sales

Retailers are guardedly optimistic on 2012 holiday sales, with increases projected to be 2.5 to 3%. Maryland Retailers Association (MRA) president Patrick Donoho cautioned that consumer confidence is fragile and that Maryland retailers struggle to continue to grow.

"Retailers are cautiously optimistic that the economy continues to grow and consumers will shop their local retailers this holiday season," he said.

Donoho highlighted solid September sales, rising consumer spending, and additional hiring as the major reasons for the retail forecast. Although the impending potential impact of severe cuts in federal spending on Maryland could influence Maryland's consumer confidence, "retailers are hoping for modest, sustainable growth in sales for the holidays," noted Donoho.

"The competitive environment has become much more difficult because consumers have a wide variety of choices for their holiday shopping," he said, adding that retailers will be promoting their holiday sales in a wider variety of venues this season.

Donoho said that the MRA hopes that Maryland shoppers will support their local economy by shopping Maryland retailers. With increased competition from a variety of sources (neighboring states without/lower sales taxes to Internet sales), he says that shopping local retailers will not only help the communities of Maryland, but the state budget as well, with increased sales tax revenue that would be lost to Internet sales or neighboring states.

MRA's forecast is based upon a survey of its members and a review of retail industry data and economic indicators. This year's survey of members continues the positive outlook for holiday sales from last year.

"Many of our members are predicting slight growth this year," said Donoho. "They know their markets extremely well and tend to be very accurate in their outlook.

"Our members know that price matters, and will aggressively compete for consumers' business," he continued. "However, this season retailers will be watching their inventories very closely, with some reporting lower inventories going into the holiday season than last year."

Community Action To Host Money Skills Workshop

The Garrett County Community Action Committee (GCCAC) will hold its quarterly "Money Skills" workshop on Wednesday, Nov. 14 at the Mary Browning Senior Center in Oakland. It will be held from 6:30 to 8 p.m.

The workshop is open to the public, and will include speakers from GCCAC and Susquehanna Bank. The main topic of discussion is household financial management and budgeting. Eligibility for the Earned Income Tax Credit will also be discussed.

Persons interested in attending should call Lisa Wengerd at 301-334-9431, ext. 147. This workshop helps GCCAC fulfill its goal of furthering economic self-sufficiency and independence through financial education, a spokesperson noted.

PARTICIPATE IN COCA-COLA EVENT – Employees from the local Coca-Cola Refreshments facility in Cumberland, which also services Garrett County, participated in the 2012 Coca-Cola Road Scholar skill competition at the Hanover Distribution Center, Baltimore, on Sunday, Oct. 7. Participants were Dave Wagner, Rick Nicol, and Lee McElvie (from Finzel) in the three-axle truck competition and Butch Davidson in the fork-lift competition. Nicol and Davidson each finished in third place in their respective competitions. To qualify for the competition, the employees had to be accident-free for one year. This is scheduled to be an annual event. First place recipients are invited to the national competition to be held at a later date. Pictured from left are Davidson and Nicol.

Myer To Lead Revival Event At Gortner Church

The Gortner Union Church (this represents the union of the churches of the Brethren and Mennonite) will hold revival services Nov. 11 to 14 featuring guest pastor Jim Myer.

The revival will begin with the Sunday morning worship service (Nov. 11) at 10:30 a.m. Evening services Sunday through Tuesday will begin at 7 p.m. and will include special music from various groups and individuals from the Gortner congregation.

Myer is a leader of Brethren Revival Fellowship and a past moderator of the Church of the Brethren. He has led over 300 revival services, including speaking opportunities in Nigeria, Dominican Republic, Haiti, Brazil, and South Korea. He is a minister at the White Oak Church of the Brethren in Lititz, Pa.

Sunday evening music will be provided by the choir, Monday by the praise team, and Tuesday by Katie Petersheim, who will provide piano and vocal solos.

The revivals will conclude Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. with the Brethren tradition of Love Feast and Communion. Love Feast and Communion consists of a simple meal, washing feet as Jesus demonstrated in John 13, and partaking of the bread and the cup symbolizing Jesus' body and blood that were sacrificed on the cross.

The Gortner Union Church is located just off Rt. 219 along Mason School Road, four miles south of Oakland. For more information, persons may contact Steve Sauder at 301-334-7969.

Garrett College Committed To Serving Those Who Have Served Their Nation

by Peggy Santamaria

As an armed services members opportunity college, Garrett College is committed to providing the support that military personnel may require as they transition into the civilian environment of a college campus. The assistance offered is multifaceted and extends from accessing financial resources for education to having an emotionally comfortable environment in which to function.

At Garrett College a dedicated and knowledgeable financial aid and veterans affairs staff assists students in processing their Post-9/11 GI Bill and tuition assistance dollars to cover costs of education. A service member's sources of prior learning is then evaluated, and credits for non-traditional learning will be applied to a selected program of education.

"We strive to help the active duty or veteran student develop the best academic plan to reach his or her chosen educational goal," said veterans affairs and financial aid counselor Kathy Fauber.

U.S. Army veteran Bruce McClelland, originally from Arizona, said he was glad he found his way to Garrett College. He had checked out other colleges and encountered difficulties.

"It was a very different situation here at Garrett," he said. "Kathy [Fauber] made everything really easy. This surely does qualify as a 'veteran friendly' college."

Jennifer Hartlove, an Army veteran now studying at GC, said she was extremely impressed with the staff and faculty at Garrett.

"I had looked into other colleges, but I didn't find they were very responsive or forthcoming with answers," she said. "At Garrett College everyone is supportive and welcoming. They will fall over themselves to help you."

Garrett College boasts a chapter of the Student Veterans of America, a national coalition of student veterans groups on college campuses across the United States. This organization hosts events and activities that provide opportunities for socialization and camaraderie for service members and their families. Get-togethers, picnics, and parties are held throughout the year.

This year a new facility will be added: the new on-campus student veterans' meeting and study lounge. The dedication ceremony is scheduled for 2 p.m. next Monday, Nov. 12, following the National Roll Call, which is scheduled to be read from 7:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Garrett College auditorium.

Rocky Gregory, a student veteran in his fourth semester at Garrett, says he has seen continued growth in veteran support at Garrett College.

"This really is a veteran-friendly campus," he said. "Kathy [Fauber] is very dedicated to helping veterans."

To further enhance the learning environment of GC for service members, a presentation was made to staff and faculty by Wanda Barnes, a representative from the Veterans Affairs Center in Cumberland. During the session, Barnes focused on some of the difficulties of making the transition from combat to college, including physical challenges and disabilities.

Her presentation also outlined some of the things that veterans bring to college with them, such as life experience, respect for authority, structured understanding of policies, skills to protect each other, ability to set priorities, and a real-world view.

More information about veteran services at Garrett College is available by calling 301-387-3057 or going online to www.garrettcollege.edu.

A FINANCIAL LITERACY FAIR was recently held at Garrett College. Coordinated by the financial aid office, the event brought representatives for area financial institutions to the McHenry campus to meet with students, answer questions, and provide information on money management. Students had the opportunity to talk with people from First United, M&T, PNC, and Clear Mountain banks, plus WEPCO Federal Credit Union. "The Financial Literacy Fair is an effort to inform students of their options and responsibilities in handling not only their student loans but their finances in general," said Cissy VanSickle, GC director of financial aid. Pictured are the financial aid counselors who organized the fair. From left are Kathy Fauber, Andrew Harvey, VanSickle, and Pam Warnick. More information on financial aid at Garrett College can be found online at www.garrettcollege.edu.

Swimmers Raise Funds For "I Can Swim" Program

An "I Can Swim-a-Thon" was held recently at the Garrett College Community Aquatic and Recreation Complex (CARC), resulting in $2,300 to help fund the "I Can Swim!" program. The Garrett College Foundation, which spearheads the fundraising efforts for the water safety and swimming classes offered free to Garrett County kindergarten-age children, recently set about creating partnerships within the community to help in this effort.

This cooperative event was coordinated by Alison Sweitzer, chairperson of the foundation's I Can Swim! committee.

"Sponsoring businesses and organizations in the community contributed to the success of our first I Can Swim-a-Thon," Sweitzer said. "We had a significant number of volunteers from the Manta Ray Swim Team, and they deserve a tremendous amount of credit for carrying out the plans for the event. We received generous donations of prizes for the winners and had the support of all our sponsors. It was a successful venture on all levels."

Prizes went to participants who excelled in several categories. The prize for being the highest fundraiser went to Caleb Rowan for raising $215. Parker Jacob took the prize for the 70-Mile Triathlon Swim with a time of 32 minutes, 45 seconds. In the category of longest distance covered, Matthew Ball won in the boys' division with 344 lengths (4.75 miles) and Abigail Layton outdistanced other females with 256 lengths (3.56 miles).

Fred Learey, executive director of the Garrett College Foundation, said he was very gratified at the success of this initiative.

"This was just the type of community involvement through partnerships that we had hoped to see. Alison did a super job of bringing people together for the common goal of continuing to provide this extremely important program to the children of Garrett County," Learey said. "As we look to the future, we will hold more such community-wide events. However, we continue to request and to urge individuals and organizations to take part in the 'Sponsor a Swimmer' program."

Information on sponsoring swimmers is available on the web site at www.icanswimprogram.org or by calling 301-387-3086.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

It is almost past believable to have even one week without electricity. Since I am living in one of the darkest parts of the East Coast, and have barely even seen a vehicle pass on Rock Lodge Road. Since I can only use my cell phone and I can't recharge it here, I have a very limited number of calls I can make. But I do have some heat – a wood stove. However, it's in the basement, so I can't load it for myself. And I have to carry around any light source, making everything extra hard. My cat and dog are very intent on maintaining body contact with me. That makes it even harder to stay covered up. I still have at least one hour of pure darkness before daybreak at about 7:30 a.m.

There have been various times in my life when I was eager to wait for dawn to come, like when I worked the graveyard shift at the brick factory and later when I was on the road in a big truck loaded with show horses trying to make it back to home base, which was a little horse "farm" in north-central New Jersey. It was not a real farm. Just a large stall barn, two small paddocks, and a large jumping ring. There was some park space and an old farm house where the "help" lived.

I remember one night was a sheer nightmare. Coming back from a horse show in Long Island, I first got off the freeway to get some gas in the truck. I was forced to pull into a country club to turn the truck around. This was not an easy task in a 26-foot truck without much room. I backed into a large new black Cadillac in the parking lot as I tried to turn around. So I had to go inside to find its owner. Luckily, they were very nice to me. Then it was back on the road. I still faced three hours of nighttime driving around the New York City metro area. Every minute, my cassette player got slower and slower as its batteries got weaker and weaker. I very much love the music of Emmylou Harris, but it was not very peppy when it got unnaturally slower. Finally, I crossed the George Washington Bridge entering the urban sprawl of Manhattan. I simply had to stop to regain my mental stability. I found myself in a pretty scary part of Manhattan, way uptown and far on the west side of Harlem. But a young man approached me to tell me I should move on. I wished I could just jump ship and leave behind the couple million dollar load of horses, and just hail a taxi to ride on to my boyfriend's apartment. But that was impossible. I knew what my duty was – getting those horses back to the farm before dawn. Because in only an hour or so, I had to start the trip to the Montgomery County Fair in Gaithersburg for another show. One more chance for the two rich boys to qualify for the medal class at a national horse show.

Remember Robert Frost's character who stopped by the woods in a snowfall? He wished he could go into the woods and sleep. But he remembered that he had "miles to go" before he could sleep. Now I can't sleep even when I have the chance. What else can you do in a Bittinger farm house alone? There is no one awake at this hour even if I had unlimited access to a phone. It is finally light outside, just enough to see that we have some wind activity, but not enough to move the kind of snow we have on the ground: wet and heavy, almost too heavy to even be moved by bulldozers.

But how happy I was when I finally got my electricity power again! Even five days in very wintry weather. I was lucky that I had a wood stove in the basement to give me a little heat, but only if I got my brother and sister to come in and put wood in it.

This is one of the cruelest events. Only 24 hours after my power was restored, it is gone again. It was while I was watching the highly contested WVU football game. It was sheer bliss to watch and have my regular routine returned. Plus, we lost it just as it was getting dark.

It is a shame that so many independent bookstores are closing. That is why you must visit the Book Mark'et and do most of your Christmas shopping there. But one huge problem of the present American economy is take-overs by huge chain corporations. That took much of the local wealth into the central offices of those "big box store" chains. You can get much of the same range of products in various local businesses. Your money largely stays in our community. I can't understand anyone really enjoying shopping at a big box store. But it is highly pleasurable to browse at a real book store. You might find something so tantalizing that you can't not buy it. That is something you can share with neighbors and family members.

It is correct that the best way to get children interested in history is for families to visit many wonderful historical places, like the many well-preserved battlegrounds. One lies one hour from here: Fort Necessity. On the way to it is Braddock's Grave, and a beautiful old church in Cumberland has a network of tunnels underneath it. They were allegedly hiding places for General George Washington. The large stone church overlooks downtown with a huge stone retaining wall with a beautiful green lawn sweeping upward toward Emmanuel Episcopal Church.

Nothing would mean death for America more that our education system placing too heavy an emphasis on job skills without preparing our children to be well functioning, important parts of American culture. It is clearly a bad direction for any state to change the content of history textbooks to find the prevailing political leaning in their state.

All I can say to people without a thirst for knowledge is that without an intelligent curiosity, you don't know what you are missing.

The Steelers game was Sunday in storm-struck New Jersey. The announcers talked about last week being the worst ever. But the Steelers were playing the New York Giants, not New Jersey. Their stadium is in New Jersey. Didn't the Steelers just play the New York Giants only a few weeks ago? But the Giants' quarterback Eli Manning didn't look as effective in Sunday's game.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Friendsville Zoning Appeals Board will conduct a public hearing on November 19, 2012, at 7:00 p.m. in the Friendsville Town Hall. This is a meeting of the Board regarding a request made by Jonathan D. Bell for a Variance from the terms of the zoning ordinance with regard to lot density, lot width and side setback. The Bell property (tax map 300, parcel 1143) is located at 643, 645, 647 & 649 Water Street in a TR – Town Residential zoning district. Specifically, Mr. Bell would like to create a lot line adjustment that would join a part of his property occupied by a single family residence to the neighboring property (tax map 300, parcel 1287) owned by Michael Palencar. This lot line adjustment would result in a single family and a commercial business on the Palencar property, and a 3 unit multi-family structure on the Bell property. Each of the proposed lots has a proposed lot size, lot width and side setback smaller than that allowed in the ordinance. All interested persons are invited to attend this meeting.

Tree Companies Need Licensing, DNR Cautions

With Hurricane Sandy come and gone, leaving fallen branches and trees in its wake, the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) reminds homeowners to make sure that anyone they hire for tree trimming or tree removal is a Maryland licensed tree expert.

"Just because someone has the tools and self-proclaimed know-how doesn't mean he is certified with the state," said Marian Honeczy, supervisor of DNR's Urban and Community Forestry. "Be wary of those who show up unsolicited after a storm looking to perform tree work. Take your time and do your research."

Maryland has a consumer protection law that requires anyone (individuals and businesses) who advertises or conducts tree trimmings, treatment, removal, or other care for compensation to be a Maryland licensed tree expert. Licensed experts are required to carry insurance that covers tree-care work. Therefore, if property damage or personal injury occurs during the tree work, the licensed worker's insurance will cover it. Unlicensed workers are not always covered by a customer's home insurance, according to the DNR.

When selecting a tree company, the DNR says citizens should:

•Ask for the Maryland licensed tree expert number, and verify it online at dnr.state.md.us/forests/tree_expert_search.asp;

•Request a copy of its certificate of insurance;

•Never pay the full amount before all work is completed as per the contract;

•Ask questions and ask them to explain how they are going to do the job and for references, and then look them up;

•Find out if the tree service advocates tree-topping, which is a harmful practice. If they do, avoid hiring the company;

•Gather multiple estimates for the proposed work;

•Obtain a written work contract that states the work to be performed and the cost.

To file a complaint against a Maryland licensed tree expert or an unlicensed company, citizens must complete the complaint form located online at dnr.state.md.us/forests/download/treeexpcomplaintform.doc and include any evidence such as canceled checks, contracts, photos, or advertisements. Anonymous complaints cannot be investigated. The Maryland Forest Service enforcement authority cannot recoup funds paid out; the plaintiff will need to file civil action in his/her county court.

St. Paul's To Offer Veterans Day Service

St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland, will host a community-wide Veterans Day service on Sunday, Nov. 11, at 7 p.m.

Participating in the recognition service to all veterans who have served and those who are currently serving will be the Chancel Choir from St. Paul's, the Garrett County Choral Society, and Girls Scouts and Boy Scouts from the church, as well as other service personnel from the community. There will be special readings shared with the congregation, and a table will grace the front of the sanctuary in honor of all POW/MIA service men and women.

This service is open to the public.

Open-Air Burning Is Advised During Current Conditions

Landowners or contractors outside incorporated towns who are interested in burning brush, debris, etc., are advised to take advantage of the winter weather now being experienced in Garrett County.

According to the Open Air Burning Regulations, Title 8, Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR), Subtitle .07, Maryland Forest Service, "burning may occur at anytime when the ground is covered with snow, if all other requirements are met."

The open-air burning regulations apply to activities in woodland and within 200 feet of woodland, or a flammable material that could carry fire to the woodland. There should be a firebreak at least 10 feet wide around the fire, and adequate personnel and equipment present to control the fire. The fire should be "out cold" before all personnel leave the scene.

Landowners who wish to do some open-air burning while the ground is covered with snow are still required to obtain a burning permit from the Garrett County Health Department. These permits may be obtained by contacting the health department, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., at 301-334-7760. Once this permit has been obtained, the landowner should contact the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management at its non-emergency number – 301-334-1929 – prior to burning, which will reduce the likelihood of local fire companies being called out on a false alarm.

For further information, persons may telephone the DNR Forest Service office at Mt. Nebo, 301-334-3296.

Tourism Trends To Be Topic Of Next Chamber Event

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce will present a tourism update at the next Business Before Hours event on Tuesday, Nov. 20, at Will O' the Wisp from 8 to 9:30 a.m.

Mahlon G. "Lon" Anderson of AAA Travel will give an update on national and statewide tourism trends. He will provide a forecast on tourism and discuss potential growth areas.

"Tourism is a key industry and economic drive in Garrett County," noted a chamber spokesperson. "The tourism industry in Garrett County has experienced considerable growth, resulting in record-breaking sales over the last two years. Come learn if we can expect this trend to continue."

Anderson was named staff director of public and government relations for AAA Potomac in 1994. Today, he directs both the public relations and government affairs efforts for AAA Mid-Atlantic, which serves more than 3.6 million members from New Jersey to Virginia.

Anderson served on Gov. Parris Glendening's Blue Ribbon Panel on Teen Driving, Gov. Robert Ehrlich's Task Force to study another Chesapeake Bay crossing, and, most recently, on Gov. Martin O'Malley's Blue Ribbon Commission on Transportation Funding.

On the national level, Anderson has served as a spokesman for two different federal agencies, as press deputy to two U.S. secretaries of education, and as vice president of public affairs for a national trade association. He has also testified before congressional committees and has been a federal and state lobbyist.

"We are very pleased to have a speaker the caliber of Mr. Anderson to provide our members with an update on national and statewide tourism trends," said Nicole Christian, chamber president and CEO. "We feel that tourism in Garrett County has rebounded well and is strong after a couple of tough years, but it's important to know what is on the horizon. We want to help Garrett County businesses be prepared by having an idea of what to expect in regards to tourism trends and opportunities for growth in the hospitality industry."

The cost for chamber members to attend the Business Before Hours is $15 in advance or $20 at the door. The cost for nonmembers is $30. Interested persons may register for the event online or by calling Charlotte Sebold at 301-387-6171 by noon on Monday, Nov. 19, to receive the advance payment discount for members. Space is limited, so early reservations are recommended.

The Business Before Hours breakfast programs are bimonthly events designed to focus on specific topics with formal presentations. Noncompeting sponsorship opportunities are available for each forum. To obtain more information about the events or sponsorship opportunities, persons may contact Paula Thomas at 301-387-4386 or paula@garrettchamber.com.

Man Charged In Arson Of Vacant House

Deputy state fire marshals have a charged a Gormania, WVa., man with 2nd degree arson in connection with a fire that destroyed a vacant dwelling in Gorman on Oct. 21. Travis Allen Odell, 30, also faces charges of 1st degree malicious burning and malicious destruction of property in the arson of the house, which was located at 68 Steyer Gorman Road.

Investigators consider the three-story, single-family house a total loss after the 9:47 p.m, fire. The property is owned by Michael and Linda Sharkey.

Investigators determined that the fire originated in the interior of the home and had been deliberately ignited. They were able to determine that the defendant was observed leaving the scene minutes after the fire started. The investigation also revealed the defendant disliked the individuals who were in the process of razing the vacant home.

Odell remains in custody at the Garrett County Detention Center on a $50,000

SITE CLOSED LANDFILL OPEN

NO MORE BRANCHES – Garrett County residents are continuing to clean up the widespread tree damage wrought by a late October storm that resulted in unprecedented consequences for the mountaintop and surrounding area. Hardly a tree was left unscathed in the weather event that was described as a dangerous combination of Hurricane Sandy and a northern cold front. Heavy snow broke limb after limb after limb, leaving nearly everyone's property covered in debris, more so in the southern part of the county and even worse in neighboring West Virginia, where a few people are still without power today, more than two weeks past the worst of the storm. Garrett officials opened up the property of the former county roads building for the dropping off of debris, as shown above, but has since closed the site. It was filled to capacity within a few days. Now that roads are accessible, residents may take the debris out to the landfill. The clean-up is ongoing, and the effects of the powerful storm will surely be long seen and felt by the county's citizens. Photo by John McEwen.

Man Charged In Connection With 2009 Burglary

A New York man was extradited by Garrett County sheriff's deputies back to Garrett County from Kentucky after he was found to be responsible for the burglary of Shoe Show, Oakland, on Nov. 9, 2009.

Gary Ross LaTray, 53, Syracuse, was arrested by West Virginia State Police in Buckhannon, W.Va., in February of 2010. He has since been serving a sentence in a federal penitentiary for a parole violation. He is charged with robbery, armed robbery, first- and second-degree assault, phony destruction device, theft, and false statement of a destructive device.

LaTray is also suspected in at least five other similar robberies of banks and retail stores in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Virginia that occurred in 2009.

GC Deputies Seek Information On Several Burglaries

Garrett County sheriff's deputies are currently investigating numerous burglaries that have occurred in the area over the last few weeks. It is currently unknown if the following incidents are related.

Suspect(s) entered an apartment along N Street, Mtn. Lake Park, on Oct. 16 and removed prescription medication and over $200 in U.S. currency.

Sometime between Oct. 27 and Nov. 7, suspect(s) entered a residence along Table Rock Road, Oakland, and stole numerous items, including approximately 60 boxes of ammunition of various calibers, 25 knives, $850 in U.S. currency, and other miscellaneous items.

Wisp Resort In Process Of Being Sold To Trust Based In Kansas

The owners of Wisp Resort have signed an asset purchase agreement for the properties relating to the resort ski area and Wisp golf course. They asked a bankruptcy court judge Friday to approve a sale of the property to a unit of Entertainment Properties Trust (EPT), a Kansas City-based real-estate investment trust, for $20.5 million.

D.C. Development LLC of McHenry said the proposed, sale, unless topped by a better bid, "will bring the highest and best return to creditors and parties in interest over any other achievable alternative."

The proposed transaction is set for an approval hearing in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Greenbelt on Dec. 4. If weather conditions are favorable, the Wisp will open for the season for skiing and snowtubing on Friday, Nov. 23.

According to Karen Myers, president of current Wisp owners Recreational Industries, the agreement is known as a "stalking horse" bid, which means the court will give other potential purchasers a chance to make higher and better bids. The process to determine the successful bidder should be finalized on November 30.

Myers said that all parties are working on this streamlined time frame because the ski season is fast approaching. The experienced management team and employee base "on the ground" at Wisp, led by director of operations Tim Prather, will remain in place.

"This team has continued to do 'business as usual' during the bankruptcy process," said Myers. "The goal is to have a seamless transition, with no interruptions or changes in guest services, season passes, or other reservations and commitments."

Continuing with her statement about the pending sale, Myers said, "I am excited about the prospects for Wisp's future, EPT has plans for major improvements and additions to the ski area in

Blaze Destroys Swanton Area House Tuesday

The cause of a fire that crestroyed a Swanton area house early Tuesday remains under investigation, according to a release from the office of the Maryland state fire marshal.

Volunteers from the Deer Park, Bittinger, Oakland, and Deep Creek fire departments were summoned at 12:13 a.m. to respond to the residence of Robert and Sonia Thompson, 92 Ridge Road after a neighbor saw flames coming from the single-family dwelling.

Some 20 firefighters responded to the scene, and it took them about 45 minutes to bring the blaze under control.

Investigators estimated damages to be $125,000 to the structure and an additional $25,000 loss in contents.

Also responding was the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

Property Owners Asked Not To Place Debris Along Roads

The Garrett County Roads Department continues to assign work crews on the cleanup of timber, limbs, leaves, and other debris from county road rights of way as a result of damage from Hurricane Sandy, county administrator Monty Pagenhardt said yesterday.

"The work is extensive and it is imperative to provide adequate room for snow to be plowed during the winter months," he said.

All property owners, therefore, are asked not to place any debris on county rights of way. They are also asked to not place debris of any sort in roadway drainage culverts or ditches.

DNR Secretary Griffin Holds Second Annual State-Of-Deep Creek Lk. Event

Secretary John Griffin and other Maryland Department of Natural Resources officials held their second annual state-of-Deep Creek Lake meeting on Wednesday afternoon at St. Peter's Catholic Church parish hall in Oakland. More than 100 people attended the 2½-hour event, in which many property owners gave impassioned pleas for Griffin to "save our lake."

As during last year's meeting, however, Griffin indicated that, overall, Deep Creek Lake is in good shape.

"The lake continues to be a healthy reservoir, meeting federal Clean Water Act standards," the secretary said.

He and other state officials pointed to the results of their Deep Creek Lake monitoring program that they started in 2009 and preliminary results of the Phase II sediment study, which was paid for through DNR, Garrett County, and DCL Property Owners Association funds.

Griffin indicated that Phase II fieldwork has been completed and results will be available in January and May, with the final report available in July.

"We'll be looking at the whole watershed and sources of sediment and the ways that individuals, governments, and groups of individuals can help to arrest sediment and nutrient flows into the lake," the secretary said.

He noted that sediment buildup is most evident in five or six coves in the southern end of the lake.

"By July 2013, DNR will have a cost estimate for dredging channels in coves," Griffin said.

He stressed several times, however, that coming up with the funds to cover the cost will be difficult given the current economic climate.

Director Bruce Michael, DNR resource assessment, reported that a shoreline study conducted in July found the invasive Eurasian watermilfoil (EWM) co-existing with other

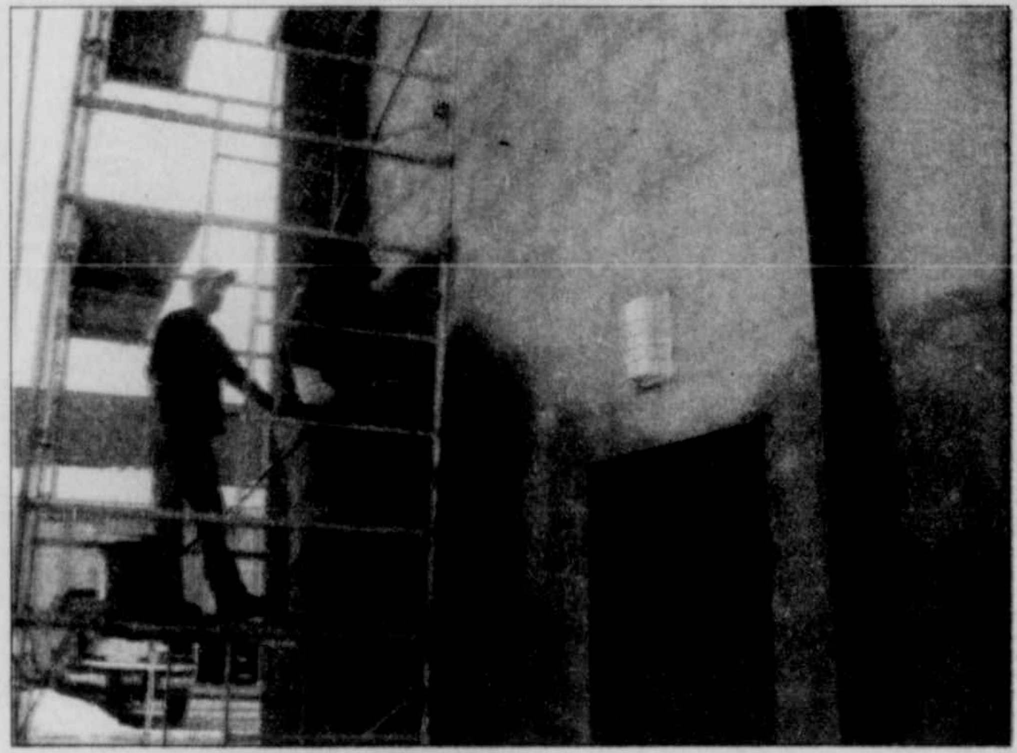
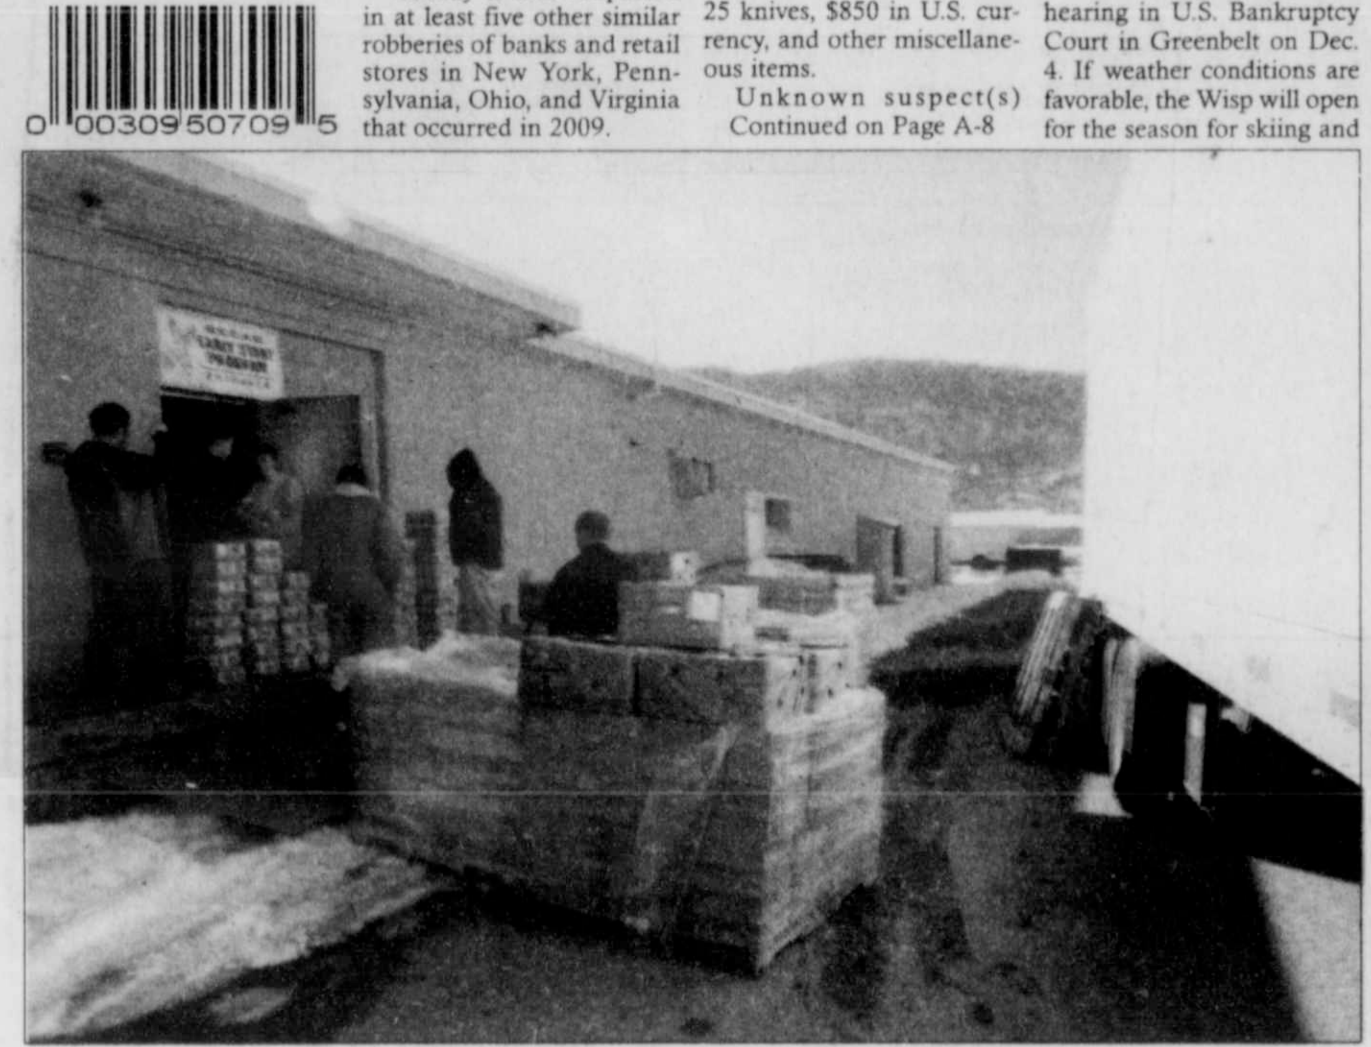
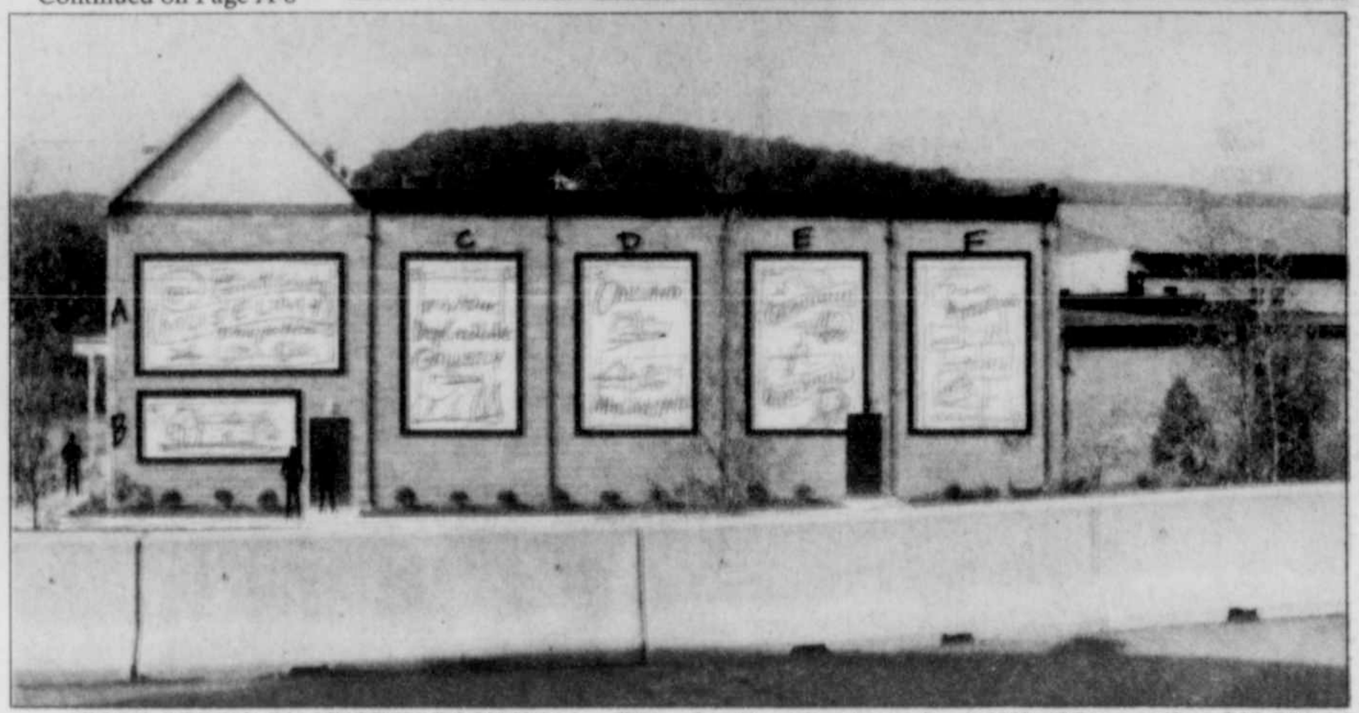
BOE Decides GC Schools Will Use Make-Up Day

The Garrett County Board of Education announced Tuesday that students will use Nov. 26 as a make-up day. The day was originally scheduled as part of the Thanksgiving holiday, but because of Hurricane Sandy cancellations, schools will be in session.





FOOD DISTRIBUTED TO STORM VICTIMS – The Maryland Food Bank and longtime partner Garrett County Community Action Committee recently mobilized relief efforts to aid approximately 3,000 Garrett County families who were left without heat and electricity as the result of Superstorm Sandy. Food bank officials delivered more than 34,000 pounds of food to Garrett County, and Community Action set up distribution sites at three locations: the Grantsville Senior Center, Friendsville fire hall, and CAC's Liberty Street building (pictured). The distributions were held last Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. During the distributions, 1,103 households received food, according to the Maryland Food Bank. All 34,000 pounds of food was purchased as part of a $2 million grant approved by Gov. Martin O'Malley and the state legislature during last year's General Assembly session. The grant is expected to supply nearly 4 million pounds of food in the coming year. Much of this food will be distributed via mobile pantry events, such as the local one last week. Mobile pantries allow the food bank to bridge service gaps community by community and respond to disaster situations like the one faced by Garrett County. Mobile pantries were also held on the Eastern Shore, distributing 36,000 pounds of food to Somerset County communities that were hit by Hurricane Sandy. Community Action still has some food remaining and will continue to distribute to individuals who are in need. To obtain a bag of shelf-stable foods, which includes rice, canned vegetables and fruit, canned ravioli, and macaroni and cheese, persons may call CAC's Aging and Nutrition office at 301-334-9431 or the Grantsville Senior Center at 301-895-5818.



WORK BEGINS ON MUSEUM BACK WALL – The preparatory work for the completion of the rear wall of the Garrett County Transportation Museum in Oakland began this week by a crew from Alexander Masonry. They applied a base coat to close the grooves between the concrete blocks, which will be followed by a stucco coat. The Garrett County Historical Society received a Maryland Heritage Areas Authority grant for this final portion of the museum exterior, according to Bob Boal, GCHS president. The grant provides $13,000 in state funding that is to be matched by another $13,000 in local funds provided by GCHS. A fundraising drive is under way by the GCHS to complete the local match. After the stucco is applied, large mounted panels created by Domenick Signs will be installed on the wall. The panels will depict scenes of early transportation in Garrett County towns, Boal said. The artist's sketch of the panels is shown below. Boal added that the terms of the grant require the work to be finished by May 31, 2013.

DEEP CREEK LAKE BUSINESSMAN HONORED – Local businessman Jonathan "Smiley" Kessler received The Greater Cumberland Committee's (TGCC) Greater Good Award. Recipients are chosen based on their participation in TGCC projects, their support of economic "regionalism," and demonstration of the "less fame, more gain" philosophy. The award was presented to Kessler during the group's annual meeting at the Cumberland Country Club. See story. Left to right are TGGC executive director Brenda Smith, immediate past chair Kathy Getty, Kessler, and the 2013-14 chair Rick Collins.

Greater Cumberland Committee Shares Annual Report, Honors Jonathan Kessler

The Greater Cumberland Committee (TGCC) recently held its annual meeting at the Cumberland Country Club. With more than 75 members and guests in attendance, the agenda included a retrospective offered by outgoing chair Kathy Getty, followed by the introduction of the 2013/14 officers and then a summary of the 2012 accomplishments offered by Brenda Smith, executive director.

"We are taking the lessons we've learned by working together to restore economic prosperity across the region and moving the needle for future growth," Getty said about advancements made by TGCC on a regional level.

Through an approval by the membership, the proposed list of officers for the 2013/14 term was unanimously accepted. Rick Collins (Mel's Business Systems) will serve as chair, Dr. Rick MacLennan (Garrett College president) as first vice chair, John Emerick (First Energy) as second vice chair, Kelli Allaway (Urology Associates) as secretary, and Dave Mathews (Standard Bank) as treasurer.

Members-at-large will include Olen Beitzel (Beitzel Corporation/Pillar Industries), Terry Stephens (Coldwell Banker, Keyser, W.Va.), and Jonathan "Smiley" Kessler (Cascade Creek Property Management).

Colleen Peterson presented Kessler with TGCC's Greater Good Award.

"Smiley is an entrepreneurial leader who has experienced the bumps and bruises of entrepreneurship in developing and expanding his businesses," Peterson said. "He is selfless; a passionate advocate of what this organization believes in and its regional approach to solving problems; an individual whose legacy will be as a leader who doesn't care who gets the credit and, therefore, has earned the respect of all who work with him."

"I look forward to continuing the progress of the regional strength message projected by TGCC," Kessler said when he accepted the award.

Executive director Smith reviewed the criteria for the Greater Good Award utilized by the committee responsible for making the selection. She said it begins with membership in any category (Corporate Council, Affiliate, Leadership Legacy, Partner in Progress, or Honorary).

The chosen recipient is an individual who demonstrates a commitment to TGCC by active participation in the organization as demonstrated by involvement in identified initiatives, promotes the concept of regionalism with supporting actions, and recognizes and practices the philosophy of "less fame, more gain."

Previous recipients include Dr. Wayne Spiggle, Kathy Getty, Kim Leonard, Terry Stephens, and Peterson.

Smith also reviewed the 2012 accomplishments as part of the agenda packet in five key areas – education, regional leadership, economic development, Marcellus shale, and the North/South Appalachian Highway project.

She presented the following highlights:

• The Education Work Group, under the leadership of MacLennan, has fostered a dialogue between regional colleges and universities, as well as with K-12 superintendents, to initiate an approach to sharing best practices and addressing common issues related to future course alignment. A formal presentation will be offered by the work group at TGCC's January 2013 meeting.

• The Regional Leadership Work Group, under the leadership of Sheri Sensabaugh, completed the fourth year of the Regional Leadership Series with higher education partners Allegany College of Maryland, Frostburg State University, and Garrett College.

"With timely subjects such as understanding board financials, becoming an effective board member, and building a marketing brand, TGCC's partnership and support of this initiative has provided a strong level of credibility across the regions served," Smith noted

Furthermore, elements of regional leadership were introduced into various Leadership Allegany! topic days, sponsored by the Allegany County Chamber of Commerce, such as economic development and local government. This level of engagement provides a stronger value to program participants through the exposure of challenges faced throughout the region, according to Smith.

"It is only in removing local silos and focusing on pockets of change for future collaboration will we all enjoy a newfound level of success," she said.

"These meetings proved lucrative as TGCC was invited to host the Maryland Coal Summit in conjunction with the Maryland Coal Association in June," Smith said. "As a result, TGCC continues to work closely with members of the Maryland Coal Association on future initiatives of regional relevance under an expanded energy umbrella."

Additionally, Smith noted regular meetings were held with economic development professionals from across TGCC's service area to better understand specific areas of challenge and to further expand areas of interest for future development.

TGCC continued to remain engaged with initiatives provided by the "Power of 32" and participated in the Potomac Highlands Regional Economic Development Summit at Eastern West Virginia Community Technical College in early September.

• Under the area of Marcellus shale, led by chair Linda Bolden, TGCC developed and gathered membership support of a formal position concerning the "responsible drilling for natural gas" and maintained a presence at meetings held by the governor's Marcellus Shale Advisory Commission throughout the year.

Furthermore, TGCC encouraged officials to enact state review of oil and natural gas regulations (STRONGER) following the completion of the Phase II best practices research conducted by the Advisory Commission.

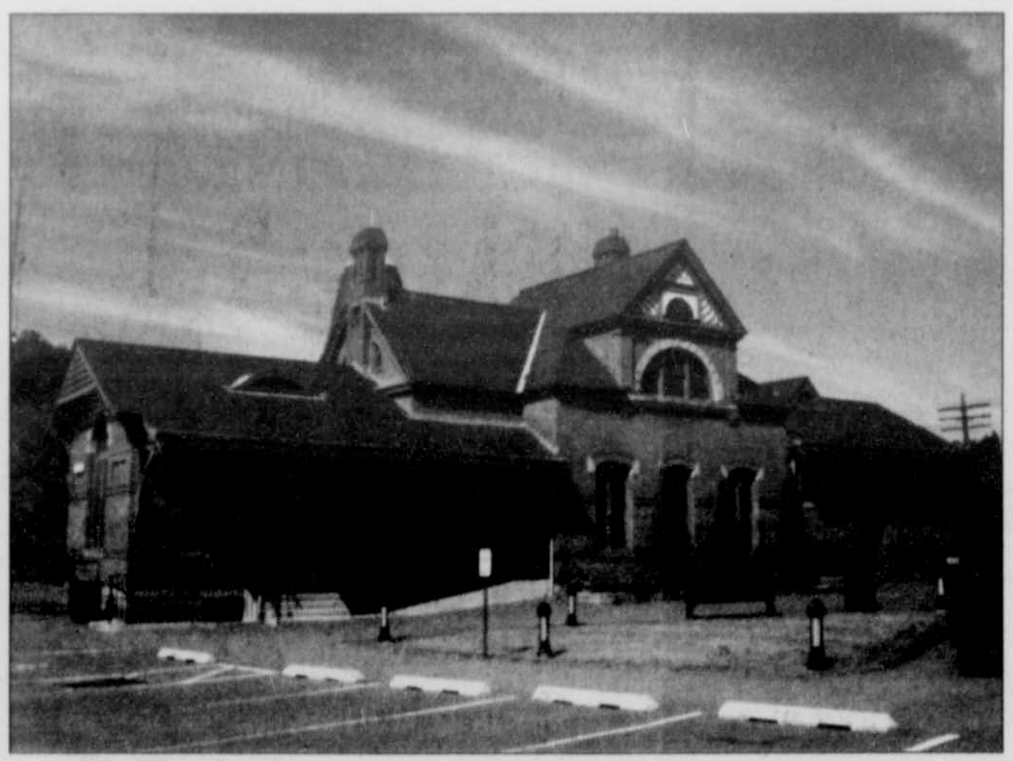
"TGCC recognizes and respects the level of wide spread uncertainty and fear associated with 'fracking' activities, and plans to serve as an educator of factual information as part of an upcoming blog that is currently being crafted," Smith said.

•The North/South Appalachian Highway, chosen as TGCC's signature and priority project during the 2009/10 term, has harnessed the most success to date, according to Smith. The project coalition has expanded to 165 members, consisting of key business leaders and government agency representatives, and represents approximately 30,000 employees.

Fresh from the third annual coalition meeting, Smith shared that approximately 70 members were in attendance, who listened carefully to the updates provided by the transportation officials representing Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia.

"With the support of Senators Cardin and Mikulski (Md.) and Congressman Shuster (Pa.), we successfully advocated for a change in language to the Federal Transportation Bill to allow toll credits to be used as a state match," noted Smith. "As a result, in 2013, bids will open for Route 219 from Somerset to Meyersdale, Pa., and while there's still a great deal to do, our regional model has proven successful and we're on the right track."

The Greater Cumberland Committee is a not-for-profit member based organization of 80 civic and business leaders representing Allegany and Garrett counties, Mineral and Hampshire counties (W.Va.), and Bedford and Somerset counties (Pa.), who advance long-term economic development projects.



AN OPEN HOUSE at the Oakland B&O Railroad Station will be held Friday and Saturday, Nov. 23 and 24, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. both days. An extensive exterior and interior restoration was recently completed at the station, including the installation of air conditioning, humidity control, UV protection on windows, and surveillance cameras, in preparation for the station to become a B&O Railroad museum. The next phase of work will be installation of the gift shops and display cases for artifacts from the B&O Railroad Museum in Baltimore. Available for purchase at the gift store will be local works of art, historic DVDs, Christmas ornaments, note cards, and postcards. Eventually gift items from the B&O Museum in Baltimore will also be brought to Oakland and sold on consignment. Cumberland and Deep Creek Lake resident Kim Leonard has donated his Charles Amos painting of the station, which will also be on display. Additional renovation will begin soon on the baggage room, which will be transformed into a classroom and theater for programs on B&O Railroad and local history. The museum committee is starting to recruit volunteers to staff the station/museum when it opens on a full-time basis. Persons who enjoy local history and/or railroads and who are looking for an interesting activity are asked to contact Asa McCain at 301-334-2569 or Terry Helbig at 301-533-1050. The committee also hopes to hear from past and current employees of the B&O and CSX who may also find volunteering at the station a rewarding experience and could share their own personal railroading stories. There will additional open houses at the station during Oakland's downtown Christmas celebration, Winter Fest, and next April during the commemoration of the sesquicentennial of Jones Raid during the Civil War. The committee is expecting the remaining restoration work at the station to be completed this winter, after which artifacts will arrive and be placed into the display cases.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HIALEAH, FL — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorse legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended formula.

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism whereby one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, ARTH ARREST is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, and tendonitis.

ARTH ARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-3301. Now at:

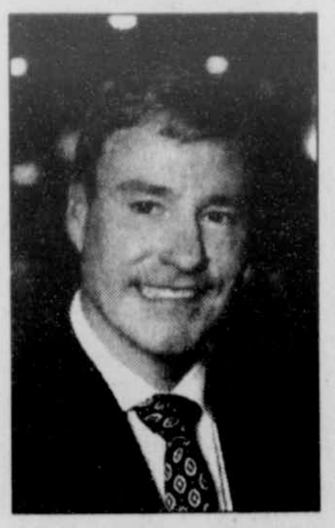
Todd Copley Named Executive Director Of Deep Ck. 2014



Todd Copley has been named executive director of Deep Creek 2014 LLC. He was selected by the Host Organizing Committee's Executive Committee and will oversee the International Canoe Federation (ICF) Canoe Slalom World Championships, which will be held Sept. 16–21, 2014, at the Adventures Sports Center International.

"Todd's dynamic skill set and experience in adventure sports and in the hospitality industry, both nationally and internationally, will help to ensure the success of the World Championships in 2014," said Garrett County commissioner Gregan Crawford, who co-chairs Deep Creek 2014. "With Todd's leadership we are excited by the opportunities that can be created to develop and host premier sporting events in Garrett County beyond the 2014 event."

Most recently, Copley was the president and founder of Summit Travel Consulting and senior vice president of worldwide operations for Vantage Deluxe World Travel, where he oversaw six global offices and the product development profits and losses for three travel divisions.

Prior to that work, Copley was a founding principal for a start-up international hospitality company that "morphed into" the Eco Hotels & Lodge Collection, which focused on the promotion, marketing, and sales for 30 remote lodges spread across the globe.

He also served as vice president of worldwide operations for Tauck World Discovery, a luxury escorted travel company, where he was responsible for the profitability, product development, and customer satisfaction for more than 100 premium travel products and four brands in 65 countries around the globe, generating more than $325 million in revenue.

Copley spent 12 years internationally and has extensive expertise in running world class events and itineraries, including bicycle and active travel programs in 65+ countries, international-based outdoor guide training programs, river cruising programs across the globe, and alpine mountaineering programs in the Dolomites of Italy.

In 2011, the ICF awarded the 2014 Canoe Slalom World Championships to Garrett County over competing entries from Vienna, Austria, and Krakow, Poland.

The event will mark the 25th anniversary of the 1989 World Championships held on the Savage River in Garrett County and represents a return of world championship whitewater canoe and kayak racing to the United States for the first time since the 1989 event. That event attracted more than 600 competitors representing 26 nations, and more than 40,000 spectators attended racing events and the opening ceremonies.

"The concept of adventure sports originated at Garrett College in the 1980s, and we will continue to strive to be a leader nationally and internationally in adventure sports and premier sporting competitions," Crawford said.

As executive director of Deep Creek 2014, Copley will oversee the event, develop and maintain relationships with donors, sponsors and community leaders, and organizations, and direct staff in programs and operational management. He will also be a resource for Garrett College to help establish adventure/experiential learning camps.

Copley is a cyclist and advocate of the outdoors, who grew up the Fairmont/Morgantown, W.Va., area. He is a member of an adventure racing team that was the #1 ranked ultra-adventure racing team in the East Coast Adventure Racing Series in 2011 (three-man open elite), and his team placed sixth in the 2012 United States Adventure Racing National Championships.

Copley serves on the board of directors for the Adventure Cycling Association, the largest membership-based cycling organization in the world, and also serves on the board of advisors for Nature & Kind, a United Kingdon-based luxury lifestyle brand.

He said he is honored to have the opportunity to return to his home stomping grounds and help organize the world championships for Garrett County.

"There is so much potential for Deep Creek Lake and Garrett County to position themselves as the premier outdoor and adventure sports capital of the Mid-Atlantic region, if not the entire East Coast," he said.

More information about Deep Creek 2014 and Garrett County is available at deepcreek2014.com and visitdeepcreek.com.

LIONS PRESENT CHECK – The Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club met this past Monday. Guest speaker Dr. Rick MacLennan, Garrett College president, spoke about the Community Aquatic and Recreation Complex and the new gymnasium. He went into detail about the challenges faced by community colleges and how Garrett is meeting those challenges by coming up with various and innovative programs of study. He noted the college is working with the Garrett County Board of Education and businesses to prepare students for the workforce, as well as further their education. MacLennan is pictured at left receiving a $500 check from Lion president Jeff Gilbert. Club treasurer Brian Boal reported on the finances (business donations, tickets sales, and TV raffle ticket sales) of the club's recent Halloween event. He also updated the club on income derived from the Southern High School concession stand during football and soccer games. The Lions deemed their second Dodge Ball Tournament in which seven teams participated this past Saturday a success. "There probably will be another tournament at the Oakland Community Center in February," a spokesman noted.

He Got an Earful...

It was likely no surprise to Department of Natural Resources secretary John Griffin when he got an earful of criticism yesterday following his second annual "state-of-the-lake" (Deep Creek) presentation to over 100 people gathered at the parish hall of St. Peter's Church in Oakland. Most of those who made comments were frustrated, disgruntled, discouraged lakefront property owners who for the past several years now have watched their little pieces of heaven become ravaged by invasive plant life, the erosion of their shoreline, the presence of Canada geese and their droppings, the filling of their waterfront with sediment, and low water levels, particularly in the cove areas.

In fairness to Secretary Griffin, the presentation by him and his various staff persons, as hoped, did contain some proposed, specific actions to address some of these problems, particularly the invasive plant life and, to a certain extent, the sediment problems. Government is famous for spending an inordinate amount of time doing studies and testing, with real action seemingly taking forever, and that description seems to fit in this case, at least for those property owners most negatively affected. Final results of the sediment testing will be "in" sometime around February, which will help determine the first step in attacking that problem, and a plan to use a herbicide on the unwanted Eurasian watermilfoil seems to be in place and tentatively scheduled for next summer, although no one – including the secretary – seems to know where the money is going to come from to pay for it. Dealing with the unwanted geese is apparently still in limbo, or at least nothing was said yesterday about how to handle that problem. The water level problem is dependent so much on weather conditions, which nobody can control, and is made more complicated by the scheduled releases into the Youghiogheny River for both fishery and whitewater rafting interests.

The lake issues are so multifaceted and complicated, there is no question that a cooperative approach by a number of entities and interest groups will be crucial in addressing them, something else suggested by Griffin and by some others who spoke. There is also a wide degree of opinion on just how serious the aforementioned problems are at the lake, obviously depending upon where one's property is located. Many who reside on the main body of the lake (deep-water shoreline areas), and thus not directly affected by the shallow water problems, are not overly concerned right now.

The fact that this writer keeps coming back to, however, is that the state owns the lake and the state owns the buffer strip. Yet, an owner wanting to protect the shoreline in front of his/her property – even though that piece of ground is owned by the state – must not only pay hundreds of dollars for permission (permits) to try to stop the erosion, but must also bear the full cost of the project. Meanwhile, the state seems to be doing little or nothing to protect – to manage – the buffer strip.

Further, some property owners now have buffer-strip trees down as a result of the recent storm, trees that are impacting their docks – trees that are owned by the state – and yet these owners even have to bear the expense of having them removed! This is incredible, and just plain wrong.

Undoubtedly, there is much more to come on this issue.

To the Editor:

This letter is to express praise and thank you to Mary Ellen Beitzel for her long years of service at the Highland Thrift Shop in Grantsville. Mary Ellen has been a part of the shop from its beginnings and has served the last 15 years as manager.

She served selflessly and faithfully. She very carefully adhered to the principles set down by the Highland Association, providing clothing and merchandise at affordable prices and giving financial support to community service organizations. The Thrift Shop regularly contributed to the Dove Center, the local volunteer fire departments, Garrett County Crime Solvers, the Grantsville Ministerial Association, Habitat for Humanity, Mountain Top Pregnancy Center, Northern After-Prom Party, Union Rescue Mission, and Warm the Children.

She never turned away contributions to the shop, always finding a way to make use of everything. She was always friendly and set an example of Christian service for the many volunteers, portraying the principles set down in the charter of the Highland Association. She resigned October 26. She will be missed.

Best wishes, Mary Ellen.

To the Editor:

Whew, it was a close one, but we got our country back!

We are not going to drastically reduce social services to cut the national debt. Instead we are going for a "gradual reduction of the national debt and to extend and perfect a sound Social Security system."

We are not going to reduce taxes for corporations and high-income job creators. Instead we are going for a "reduction in taxes with particular consideration for low- and middle-income families and to study additional ways to correct inequities in the effect of various taxes."

We are not pursuing a constitutional amendment providing equal rights and personhood the instant a sperm fertilizes an egg. Instead we are pursuing a "constitutional amendment providing equal rights for men and women."

By the way, all the things we are going to do now were the goals of the 1956 Republican platform! That's the Republican Party of Lincoln and Eisenhower, and not the Tea Party!

P.S. Remember, you are either part of the problem or part of the solution.

To the Editor:

Thank you for the picture captioned "Local Hunter Bags First Bear... The bear was shot while hunting with his uncle near Grantsville."

I'd like a little more information. Was the bear's uncle shot too? Even if he weren't, he must have been greatly saddened by the loss of his nephew. What were the bears hunting for at that time of year? Was it legal for them to do so, or did they perhaps fail to obtain the appropriate hunting licenses?

All excellent questions! We will check with the bruin's family and get back to you!

To the Editor:

I have been involved with Cindy's Fund for several years. For those who do not know of Cindy's Fund, we help cancer patients with travel expenses, food supplements, housing (when receiving treatment), and medications (that insurance does not cover).

Each year it is harder to raise the much needed funds to fulfill our mission of "Garrett County People Helping Garrett County People." Community participation and new ideas are always needed, welcomed, and appreciated.

I want to thank Brenda's Body Shop for sponsoring the Bounce Back Project, which is benefiting Cindy's Fund and the Children's Miracle Network Hospitals. Thanks to Miss Maryland Joanna Guy and Liz Cannon for your participation and hard work to make this project a success. Thank you to all the participants who worked so hard selling the balls, learning the dances, and participating in performances. Community projects cannot succeed without such a high level of participation, and you all deserve accolades! What a huge success!

The project did not end with the finale on Sunday. There is still time to get involved! Businesses, clubs, families, churches, literally anyone can sponsor a garland that is being made from the "bounced back balls." The garland will decorate the community Christmas tree in downtown Oakland, and sponsors will be identified via signage at the tree. Sponsor for $50 and your name will be advertised for everyone to see!

I also want to thank Green Acres for their initiative and imagination in sponsoring Ta-Ta-Tuesdays and contributing to Cindy's Fund. Great idea and also a huge success!

Imagine if more businesses and community groups held fundraisers and contributed to the welfare and well-being of residents in Garrett County.

To the Editor:

Each morning when I drive by the Deep Creek Baptist Church's (DCBC) glowing red sign, I wonder what kind of outrageous message they will be displaying. During the last election their sign read, "Man + Woman = Marriage" and "Vote no to Prop 6." Now they have taken politics and firmly grabbed it by the throat with, "Pray for our President so that he may be born again" and "God forgive us for Prop 6."

I wish DCBC would consider how their messages may affect both local residents and visitors alike. We entertain people from all over the East Coast. Some may be homosexual, liberal, or otherwise offended by DCBC's continual blasting of public messages that essentially have nothing to do with spreading the word of God. They tell people how to vote/feel regarding social issues and ask us to pray that President Obama, who is already an outspoken Christian, be "born again."

We already made national news when a local "man of faith" said that he liked the idea of killing homosexuals. Is DCBC slowly imprinting an equally negative impression in people's minds as they drive past their sign? If the election could show DCBC one thing, I would think it would be that intolerance and far-right thinking are not favored by the majority of Americans.

If nothing else, I would ask DCBC to take into consideration the fact that they sit at a high visibility spot and could create a terrible first impression for someone visiting the lake area for the first time. They also offend many local residents as well.

I understand that freedom of speech is a two-way street. There is some push from American people suggesting that churches which stray away from religion into politics be required to pay taxes. Perhaps implementation of such a rule would be cause for some change in the message conveyed by DCBC's sign.

To the Editor:

I am indeed shocked and concerned to learn that Deep Creek Lake is not accorded the same significance as to warrant funding for responsible management of its health and maintenance as the Chesapeake Bay.

To be truthful, Deep Creek Lake shares the same level of importance – revenue-wise and recreation-wise – as the bay, but somehow remains a "step-child" in the eyes of our governor and funding (none, to be specific) in the budget.

This cannot continue to be tolerated, and the petition being circulated by the Friends of Deep Creek Lake reflects the concern and desires of the taxpaying citizens of Mary-

November. It is a most pivotal month, even though it falls quite near the end of the standard 12. November is the time of slowing, of looking back, of lingering a bit still inside the year at hand, taking a breath before plunging into the madness and frenzy of Christmas, which funnels directly into the sudden and rude ousting of the past year and the mindlessly giddy welcoming of the next. Ah, but to stay peacefully in November. To see the last of the leaves release and fall, to settle inside the house as darkness descends so early after the clocks are pushed back, forced to report the same hour twice in a row one long morning. The transition to all winter clothes is made only partly, because every now and then, November offers up a day of warmth. The weather is always a question… as if Mother Nature isn't at all sure she's into the idea of freezing the lake and blanketing the ground just yet. Although she certainly seemed to go AWOL this year, huh? I think she might want to look into some sort of medication… but I'm digressing.

Having children certainly has shaped this affection for November in my life, as it marks the time when seasons are ending — band season, soccer season, football season… the weekends of hauling ourselves out of bed to take one kid to the high school band room at 8, or to drive to Morgantown to see another kid in a bigger band, on the field at WVU… these things begin to taper off, and one by one, the end comes for each. And for a few precious weeks, there is very little to do. What a gift. The holidays do begin to creep in at the edges, with a random commercial here, a too-early TV special there, an everyday wreath suddenly sporting holly or mistletoe, or a red bow… and thoughts arise of the crazed days to come.

But in November, it all looks wonderful. In November, we know we're going to really plan this year, we're going to be on top of it. We're going to really get the shopping finished, and by golly this year, we're not going to go hog wild. We're going to have a special baking day with family members, we're going to finish a brilliantly penned Christmas letter and shock everyone by sending it out in mid-December rather than the usual Dec. 26 to 28. We're going to have all the wrapping finished a week before Christmas Eve, so we can truly enjoy the family get-together with ease and calm. And a party — we'll have a party this year. Invite all our friends, bring them into our decorated home, candles flickering on every surface, the fragrance of cinnamon afloat — and we'll treat them to some new and fun recipe we learned from Rachel Rae. Perky Rachel Rae. And the house — oh, the house will be scoured, top to bottom, like it has never been scoured before. Because it's only November! It's lazy, dark, sleepy November. What better time to purge those closets and scrub those floors, bring the windows to a crystal shine, make the cat box smell like lilacs, dust the tops of the tallest chests of drawers — the tops — and once and for all haul out the four truckloads of hand-me-down toys, clothes, boots, soccer cleats, PlayStations, stuffed animals, shoes, and did I say boots, toys, and clothes? All that. Purge the house, make it ready for a new year. Ah, yes, the wealth of time available is luxurious. And this future is pristine, where nothing crops up to derail the plans — no broken-down cars or broken arms, no sudden bouts of family-wide stomach flu, no major appliance failures, no power outages, no torrid affairs between hurricanes and cold fronts, no ugly break-ups of young dating couples, not even a single incident of cat vomit. No, in November, the slate clears, the waters calm, and there is a blank page on which we can paint a lovely and perfect Andy Williams TV special sled ride into the Christmas and New Year's bedlam perfectly planned, flawlessly set, clean as a whistle. Yes. That's what November tries to tell us. And it's comforting to believe, even for those quiet few weeks.

None of it will go like that, of course. It's all just a little ruse by November. No, the weeks will slip by just as fast as ever, and the days of frenzy will be upon us before we've even swallowed our morning coffee. Suddenly it will be late, and then later, and we'll bounce along like rag dolls on a rollercoaster, barely holding on. The house will get a cursory dust cloth wipe and a vacuuming of the visible places, the thought of a party will remain a thought, and some gifts just won't be wrapped until the wee hours of Christmas Day. The week in between will fly by without even a nod in our direction, and the new year will come and go, and we'll say, "Why do we celebrate the new year anyway — it's just another night," and "I could be sleeping." And Novem-land to move the Save Deep Creek Lake to the forefront of Gov. O'Malley's agenda for 2013.

I have been the owner of a vacation home at Deep Creek Lake for some years now, and I do not want to see "my" beautiful lake or investment there deteriorate because of neglect or lack of concern.

I challenge Gov. O'Malley and DNR Secretary Griffin to immediately set forth a plan to begin addressing the state of Deep Creek Lake, not only as a valuable resource of the state, but for its many citizens who live and work and pay taxes in the area.

Sincerely,
Jo Ann Marchi

To the Editor:

I live at Swallow Falls, which was hit very hard by the recent storm. Some 32+ trees came down and landed in my yard and along the hillside. But, my home was spared, and I feel very lucky for that.

I'm extremely grateful for the help and compassion shown to me, and words just can't adequately express my gratitude; just like pictures can't truly show the level of devastation.

I have been provided with shelter, showers, hot meals, love, and very hard labor. So, I'd like to give special thanks to the utility workers and roads crew. Also to my family, Jim and Rose Elsey, Kyle Glotfelty, and Cathy and Will Friend; neighbors Kenny Reams and Jeremy Whitacre; friends from Faith Evangelical Free Church, Dr. Sotiere Savopoulos, Dr. Abe Getty, Jeff Bowman, and Bob and Linda Stephens; and FEFC Youth Group members Emilie and Avonlea Bowman, Olivia Fike, Tim and Megan Gotsch, A.J. Savopoulos, and Isaac Steele.

I know there will be more from our youth group and other church members, as well as some college students, coming to assist in the cleanup in the near future, and I thank you in advance.

There is a lot of work to be done in Garrett County, as well as along the entire East Coast, and I feel so blessed to be around people who are caring, willing to step up to the plate with their help, and offer hope. So, I hope you all feel the big hug I'm sending you, and remember that I will always be grateful.

Thank you,
Sharon Elsey

To the Editor:

The storm was still wreaking havoc on Garrett County as help began arriving. The response time was astonishing. A group of workmen was removing a wire that lay across my driveway. I offered them coffee brewed on our outdoor grill. When they declined, it was with accents from the Deep South: Alabama, Georgia, Texas, Florida. I asked how they managed to get here so quickly. They told me that the president had mobilized the National Guard, military helicopters, and C-130s to get heavy equipment and help to us as quickly as possible. This would not be another Katrina. Thank you, President Obama.

Yes, I voted for him again, just as I did the first time he ran. This recent action confirmed what I already knew; he will get the country back on track. He walks the walk.

By the way, Nate Silver, using logic and science, gave me a good night's sleep with his prognostications. His predictions were spot on. I voted for Roscoe and was deeply saddened when he lost, even though that, too, was predictable. For me, it's not about the party; it's the person, and I believe Roscoe was the better candidate.

Regarding "the Lake," it is not "the Bay," and indeed, wouldn't make a pimple on the Bay's butt. The latest ploy to privatize the lake reminds me of the time that former Gov. Ehrlich attempted to sell Deep Creek State Park, calling it "surplus." The people who think they can do a better job than the state should stop whining and begging for taxpayer handouts and just fix the problem. Show some American ingenuity.

Example: I had a friend (deceased) who had property on the Gunpowder River. He pulled a weighted bedspring behind his boat, cleared the silt, and restored his access to the Bay.

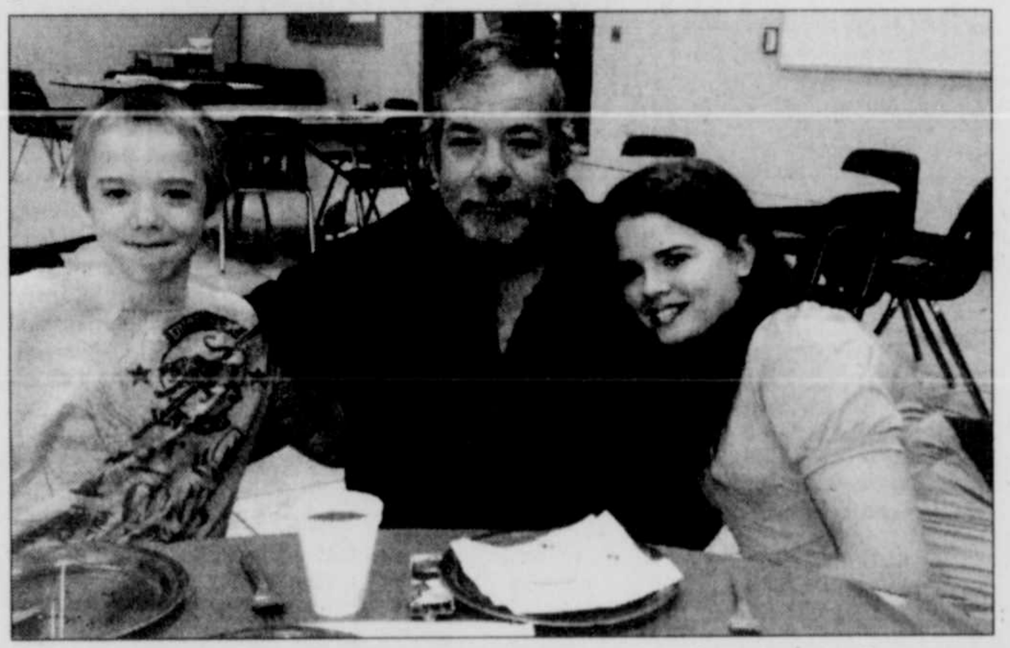
NORTHERN MIDDLE SCHOOL HONORS VETERANS – Northern Middle School held a Veterans Day breakfast on Monday. "The pride for our country was evident across generations, and it was truly heartwarming to see the middle school students interact with the veterans who visited with us," said NMS principal Karen Kamauff DeVore. Social studies teacher Jack Burdock added, "It is important for our students to honor and appreciate the sacrifices that past generations have made, as well as those that will be made in the future." The student council also sponsored a patriotic bookmark competition and created a display in which students' friends and families sent pictures, citations, and memorabilia to share with students. Members of Northern High School's JROTC color guard presented the flags to begin the celebration. Pictured above, left to right, are Grantsville residents Linda House, sixth grader Kaitlynn House, Ronald House, and Kaitlynn's grandfather, Gordon House, a Vietnam War veteran. Below are Ethan Custer, seventh grade; Jeff Ackerman, National Guard; and Cayla Lewis, eighth grade. At right, seated, are Tex Wahl, U.S. Army, and Janet Wahl. Standing are their grandson Shawn Zimmerman, sixth grade, and Kathy Zimmerman.



To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank those who came to my rescue and were so kind to me after the storm that hit this county October 29. I am 88 years old and a resident of Underwood South. I have lived here in Oakland for 29 years, and this was the worst storm I have seen. I have been on oxygen for the past three years and have always been concerned about prolonged power outages and what I would do if my oxygen ran out.

Well, I found out when Tuesday came and I had only three hours of oxygen left. I called the Southern Rescue Squad shelter. They took me to the shelter at the squad hall, where I stayed until Friday evening when the power was restored to Underwood South. I was so glad to have someplace to go.

I cannot say enough about the excellent care I received during my stay at the shelter. I want to thank the volunteer ladies, the Red Cross, and those who went to my apartment to get me things I needed. Underwood South is a good place to live, but when the power goes out we have no alternate heat source, making conditions extremely bad for the elderly residents.

Thank you, Southern Rescue!

Bonnie Mahaffey

To the Editor:

We, like many other local residents, have to admit that the wicked storm "Sandy" was among the worst ever to come through here. Many of us were (and a few still were when this was written) without power and located on impassible roads.

We live along Ben DeWitt Road and were caught out of town and unable to get back (from any direction) to our house. We knew the power was out, and after making several phone calls we were able to locate a couple very special people.

First was Sam Moon, who went to our house, looked it over really well, and called us to let us know that our house was "still there." We had a couple large branches on our house and a yard full of branches and downed trees, one of which was 90 feet tall.

Second was my wife's cousin Bob Teter. He had no power and trees were down on his house and on the trailer of his son Bryan. His vehicles were blocked in by snow and branches, but he left his own house and somehow got to ours to take care of our two cats inside. He shoveled out a place for me to get my truck off the road and a path to our porch. This was way beyond the call of duty.

We want to thank the power company and electrical workers assigned to our area. Ben DeWitt Road is usually down on the list because not many people live out here, but by Wednesday evening we had power.

By Thursday morning, the Garrett County roads crews had our road closed off for cleanup. They did an outstanding job of cutting down trees and limbs, and pushing them down the road to an out-of-the-way location. Our road was open.

This crew was assisted by a group of young Mennonite men from the local area who had volunteered their help.

Under severe circumstances, these people and many others stepped up quickly to assist anyone in need. They all have our sincere appreciation.

Thanks so much,
Jim & Cindy Atzenhofer

To the Editor:

Hubris! The sole reason Romney lost the election was that he thought he was entitled. Romney's a man so full of himself that he told reporters he only wrote his acceptance speech – he could never face the fact he was not entitled.

A soldier who lost two limbs defending us from al Qaeda in Afghanistan is entitled to disability.

A coal miner who gets black lung disease after a quarter-century underground serving our energy needs is entitled to Medicare.

A faithful factory line employee who serves for 45 years while paying Social Security taxes is entitled to Social Security upon retirement.

However, a one-percenter politician is not entitled to be president!

"How can you say to your brother, 'Let me remove the speck from your eye'; and look, a log is in your own eye?" Matthew 7:4.

Romney lost because of his hubris. He did not seek to be president to help the common people; he sought the presidency because, as a one-percenter, he thought he was entitled, different from the 47% of hardworking lesser-class Americans who are legitimately entitled to the government services they receive and he decried!

ber will be long gone, taking with it the Norman Rockwell visions and leaving behind a Jackson Pollock. And we'll stomp on into 2013, disheveled and confused, wondering what the heck happened.

Ah, but November. Peaceful, slow, promising November. I do love it. The Christmas music waits for me — and I resist it, keeping true to my self-imposed rule of none of it until the day after Thanksgiving. But it's there, the anticipation is tantalizing. And I might succeed in purchasing a gift for someone in this quiet and portentous time. Maybe one. And it will seem strange and out of step to have one already. And it'll be stuffed in some hiding place, with a strong chance of being forgotten until about Jan. 10th. I'm just not an early buyer. November inspires me to dream, but seems to quell the impulse to truly act. November, you are rascally.

Rascal or not, November does mark the sundown of the band and sports seasons, and my three boys will wander home again, tired, spent, and ready for calm. They will stay inside, and be with John and me, and the five of us will watch a movie or even play a game. And we'll not clean a single thing, or shop, but we'll laugh and talk and sink into the comfort of what is our little life. It's just a short little life, like the millions before us, and the millions to come. It's our spot, and it's comforting, and in November, it is perched on the precipice of all kinds of promise. Thanks, November, for your little ruse, your fetching offer of time. I know it's only a dream, but dreams can be sweet.

2013. Along with my partners, Gary Daum and Steve Richards, we believe that this ownership change at Wisp will be good for the employees, the resort, and the region.

"We are pleased that, during our tenure at Wisp, we added the entirety of the North Camp ski expansion, a snow tubing park, the mountain coaster, and an enlarged lodge, and have brought Wisp to the point where a deep-pocket owner can continue these types of improvements.

"We have the best employees on earth," she continued, "and are thankful to them for their support and herculean efforts during these difficult times."

Myers and her partners bought the resort in 2001 for just under $12 million. They filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in October 2011 after defaulting on nearly $30 million in loans they had received from BB&T Corp. of Winston-Salem, N.C., to build a golf course community atop Marsh Mountain. She said that home sites in the Lodestone golf-course development did not sell as well as expected in the recession.

The deal with Entertainment Properties doesn't include the Lodestone development, Myers said, adding that the deal would include a purchase of about 600 acres and long-term leases on another 250 acres.

Entertainment Properties or its subsidiaries own 11 other ski areas in Indiana, Missouri, New Hampshire, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Vermont, according to the firm's 2011 annual report. Its other investments include multiplex theaters, entertainment retail centers, wineries, and public charter schools.

The publicly traded company reported total revenue of $301.7 million in 2011, up 4 percent from $289.8 million the previous year.

Sheridan Layman, Aurora, was hospitalized with pneumonia last week.

Janet Shalute, Red House, had recent surgery on her knee and is recuperating at home.

President Charles Wilfong was re-elected president, and there were business meetings and displays of various activities. Bob Stallman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, was also present to speak to the group concerning the recent election and how needs of farmers point to "action now, not later." The next couple of months are very important to the future of farming, especially the action taken at the federal level.

Just another day, just another week,
just another year.

We awake once again on this cold, quiet morning. knowing, but not knowing, what the day will bring.
Faithwill carry us through as our journey through life is short and sometimes so unfair.
We wonder why. We bow our head and we listen. Our tears are still moist. Our pain becomes a reminder of what we once had.
Oneday or 30 years; it matters not, it is a gift. A true gift from God to be cherished, enjoyed and remembered.
Life can be short and life can be so unfair –
but a gift is always a gift.

Dear Jeff, love you now more than ever

VON TRAPP FAMILY TO BE IN CONCERT AT FSU – The Cultural Events Series at Frostburg State University will present a holiday performance from the von Trapp children on Thursday, Nov. 29, at 7:30 p.m. in the Pealer Recital Hall of the FSU Performing Arts Center. These grandchildren of Captain von Trapp continue the musical traditions of their famous family, which was portrayed in the movie The Sound of Music. These siblings – Sofia, Melanie, Amanda, and Justin – will perform folk and classical songs from European and American traditions, as well as holiday classics and pieces from the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical that made the von Trapp family famous. Tickets are $26 for adults and $21 for youth under 17. Corporate and group discount rates are also available. To set the stage for this performance, the CES will offer a free presentation of the 1965 film on Sunday, Nov. 18, at 3 p.m. in Lane University Center, Room 111. Newman Chosen To March With TOB All-Stars

Cameron Newman, a trombone player at Northern High School, has been selected to march with the Tournament of Bands All-Star Marching Band in the 93rd annual ABC6/Dunkin Donuts Philadelphia Thanksgiving Day Parade on Nov. 22. It will be shown on ABC channels, and will begin at 8:30 a.m.

The all-star band involves accomplished high school musicians from across the East Coast. They are selected based on their accomplishments and talent. The students all march in bands that compete in the Tournament of Bands circuit.

A junior at NHS, Newman is the assistant drum major of the Northern Garrett Marching Band. He is also a member of the stage band, jazz band, men's chorus, and concert chorus. He is the vice president of the junior class, and is involved in the student council of the high school.

The musician is the son of Lynn and Carol Newman, Grantsville.

Auditions Set For Dickens Production At Thomas Center

Auditions have been scheduled at the Thomas (W.Va.) Education Center for persons wishing to participate in Voices from the Earth (VFTE) Community Theater's presentation of Charles Dickens' The Ghost of Christmas, better known as The Christmas Carol.

This annual production, which will be performed Saturday, Dec. 8, is in the style of an old-time radio show, where the performers are reading their parts and creating the sound effects live:

horses and sleigh bells, and the sounds of the clock and the ghosts.

The performance will be free and open to the public. Light refreshments will be available. Canned goods will be collected at the door for the food pantry. All donations are welcome.

Auditions will be held at the Thomas Education Center on Wednesday, Nov. 28, at 4 p.m. All ages and all voices are welcome, and there are parts for everyone, according to a spokesperson for the program.

Rehearsals will be held Tuesday through Thursday, Dec. 4 to 6, 6 to 8:30 p.m. each evening, with a dress rehearsal held Friday, Dec. 7, also from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

The performance on Saturday, Dec. 8, will be at 7 p.m.

"Broadway Night" Set December 1 By TOTL Company

The TOTL Theatre Com-pany (Theatre on the Lake) will host a gala evening of Broadway music at the Barn at Ridgeview Valley on Saturday, Dec. 1, from 6 to 8 p.m. According to TOTL director Lynn Broderick, this "between-the-holidays" concert will feature members of the 2006 through 2012 TOTL Theatre summer company members, including Jamie Clegg, Danielle Riggins, Elizabeth Nelson, Meghan Broderick, Leah Broderick, A.J. DeLauder, and others.

The evening will include music from many of the musicals performed by the TOTL company, such as Big River, Children of Eden, Little Women, The Secret Garden, and Fiddler on the Roof, said Broderick, who added, "and the program may include a 'hint' of what is being planned for the 2013 summer season."

Warm seasonal refreshments will be included. Tickets are $10 and may be purchased online at totltheatre.org or at the door on December 1. Reservations may also be made by calling TOTL at 304-680-1002 and leaving a clear message, indicating the number of tickets needed, and a name and return phone so receipt of one's reservation can be confirmed.

"The Barn at Ridgeview Valley is heated by 'the warmth of fellowship,'" said Broderick, "so everyone is encouraged to dress for the weather conditions."

The TOTL Theatre Company has performed for seven consecutive summers at Deep Creek Lake and has presented 22 productions to date. The company is partially funded through grants from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council.

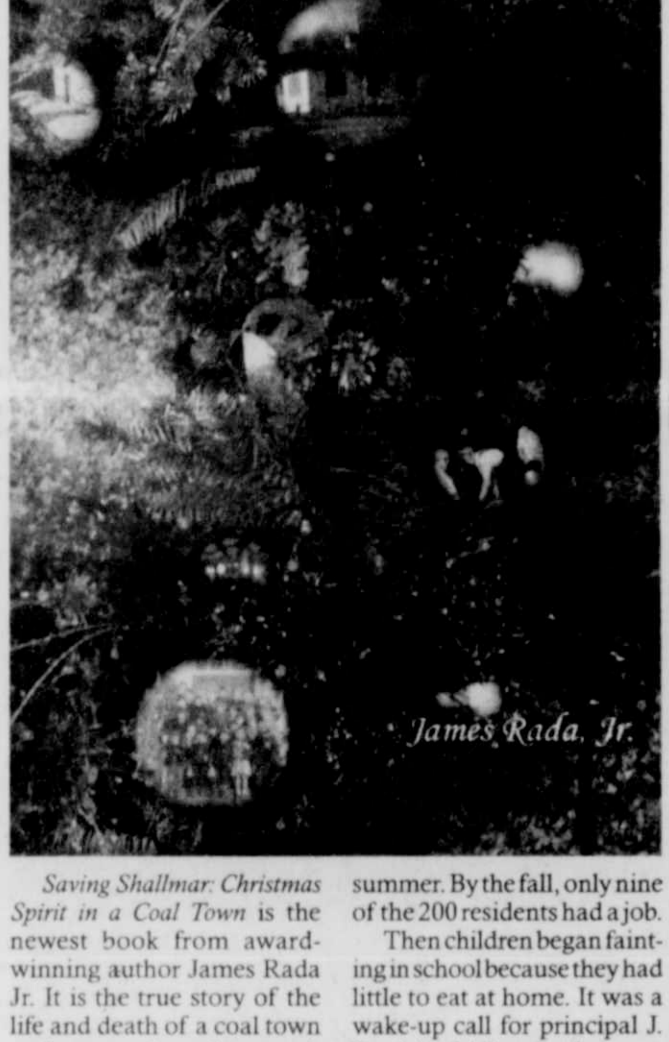
New Book Tells Story Of How The Nation Saved A Coal Town In 1949



Saving Shallmar
Christmas Spirit in a Coal Town
James Rada, Jr.

Saving Shallmar: Christmas Spirit in a Coal Town is the newest book from award-winning author James Rada Jr. It is the true story of the life and death of a coal town and one man's work to save it and how it became a national cause in 1949. The book is filled with more than three dozen pictures, some never before published.

Though Rada is known more for his historical fiction, Saving Shallmar is a nonfiction history book that reads more like a novel with its stories of the lives of coal miners.

By 1949, Maryland's coal industry was suffering. The small Garrett County town of Shallmar felt it worse than most, according to Rada. The town's only business was the Wolf Den Coal Corporation, but it had shut down in March. Few of the miners had cars to be able to drive to work in other towns, and unemployment benefits began running out during the summer. By the fall, only nine of the 200 residents had a job.

Then children began fainting in school because they had little to eat at home. It was a wake-up call for principal J. Paul Andrick, who began a campaign to help the children and save the town. As the story spread during the 1949 Christmas season, the nation responded and the effort to save Shallmar began.

Rada spent a year tracking down former residents of Shallmar and researching the story through newspaper articles and journals. He first wrote about Shallmar's story in a pair of 2004 newspaper columns.

"I was fascinated by the story and knew that there was more to it that I wanted to find out about," he said.

At one point, Rada debated whether he should tell the story as historical fiction, but ultimately decided that the story was fascinating enough to tell as nonfiction.

"It was harder for me to gather the information I needed and make sure everything was sourced, but the end result was a better story and much more interesting since it's all true," he said.

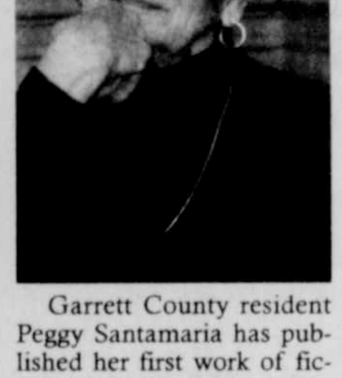
The Midwest Book Review wrote that Rada is "a writer of considerable and deftly expressed storytelling talent."

Saving Shallmar: Christmas Spirit in a Coal Town is available at the Garrett County Historical Society, Penn Alps Restaurant, and the Book Mark'et, as well as through online retailes and ebookstores.

Rada will be at the Book Center in Cunberland signing copies of his books on Saturday, Nov. 24, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and at Main Street Books in Frostburg on Saturday, Dec. , from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

More information about his books is available online at jamesrada.com.

Local Writer Publishes First Book Of Fiction



Garrett County resident Peggy Santamaria has published her first work of fiction, titled The Spirit of Abby Cooper. She describes the book as "a little ghost story woven into the history and heritage of Hanover in South Central, Pennsylvania."

The story entwines the lives of two young women – one who lived in the 19th century, the other living in the present day.

"Hanover, Pa., is located about 15 miles east of Gettysburg," she said. "Next summer both towns will mark significant dates. For Han-over, it will be the 250th anniversary of the founding of the borough, and for Gettysburg, it will be the 150th anniversary of the Civil War battle waged in the town and surrounding farmlands.

The concurrence of these events, she said, motivated her to write and get the story into print in recognition of these historical occurrences.

"The history of Hanover is quite interesting," she said. "There was a Civil War battle there that is considered to be part the Gettysburg campaign. Generals George Custer and J.E.B. Stuart clashed in the streets of Hanover. That conflict, in fact, delayed Stuart's arrival in Gettysburg by a day, perhaps affecting the outcome of the battle."

With a host of activities planned in both towns to commemorate the historic events, Santamaria has been aquatic vegetation in 86 acres of the lake. He noted EWM was on 2.3 percent of the lake surface and in 5.8 percent of shallow water areas (less than 6 meters).

DNR plans to use the herbicide 2,4-D in a pilot project at the lake and monitor its effectiveness in eradicating EWM. Michael noted the herbicide costs $500 to $1,000 per acre and must be applied over a four-year period.

"It has very low toxicity to most fish," he said.

Michael indicated that DNR has thoroughly researched 2,4-D and found it to have the most "benign effect" on other species.

He noted that the DNR has rejected the idea of using the milfoil weevil as a natural means of controlling EWM, as it not a native species of Maryland and has not been approved by the Invasive Matrix Team for introduction in the state. The director added that the use of weevils is "very expensive," $1,000 per acre.

The DNR will also look at the effectiveness of mechanical harvesting in eradicating EWM in a small scale, two-day pilot project in limited areas of the lake. Michael noted that mechanical harvesting is "very expensive," and that the project alone will cost between $8,000 and $10,000.

He said Phase II sediment core samples do not have any toxic materials, which is good. If dredging takes place, it will be make sediment disposal a much easier process, he indicated.

Michael also reported that DNR stocked the lake with 10,000 large mouth bass fingerlings this past spring to help replenish a natural fish kill that occurred 2010. He said the large mouth bass population is now "good," and the small mouth bass and perch populations are "excellent."

Maryland Department of the Environment division chief John Grace, Water Management Administration, reported on lake water levels, which are affected by climate and water inflow and outflow.

"This year was a pretty challenging year with regard to water levels," he said.

Over a 40-year period, the lake was at its lowest level in 1999. It is currently at the eighth lowest level. Grace said Brookfield Renewable Power made at least two drawdowns this year, one for repairs and one in anticipation of hurricane weather. Griffin noted that recent increases in water temperature and low precipitation resulted in low levels this past summer, especially in some coves.

Howard Janoske, Penn Point Road, said there is no water at all in his cove. He indicated DNR would need a bulldozer to "dredge" that area.

With regard to Griffin's statement about the lack of funding, Deep Creek Drive resident Chuck Hoffeditz pointed out that New Germany State Park Lake was recently dredged.

"Did that money come from the state?" he asked.

Griffin nodded, indicating, "yes."

Ralph Schmidt pointed out that Ocean City receives funding from the state for beach restoration. Others noted that state taxpayers are also paying for Chesapeake Bay restoration efforts.

Full-time lake resident Max Peterson said there where no noxious weeds at his dock in 2005, but now there are. He asked DNR to re-examine the use of milfoil weevils, noting that other states have used them to eradicate EWM.

"It seems like a relatively easy fix to the problem," Peterson said.

Richard Matlick, Green Glade Cove, said it is impossible to swim off his dock after mid July because of the extreme amount of vegetation, the awful smell of rotting vegetation, and goose "crap." For the last several years, Matlick has had to pull his dock and boats out in August because of low water levels, he said.

Brian Greenberg indicated DNR's core message that the lake is basically fine is greatly different from his and others' opinions.

"That summary conclusion differs so sharply from the experience of my family and essentially all of the families we know on the lake as to, perhaps, being from another planet," Greenberg said.

He indicated that public and private interests are being threatened with the declining health of the lake.

"Putting 2,4-D into the lake is lousy idea," Greenberg added. "And if you think it's a good idea to put this herbicide into the water, I suggest that you communicate to the county [chamber of commerce] and state tourism bureau that . . . kids and grandkids could come and marinate in 2,4-D during their vacations at the lake."

Scott Johnson, State Park Road, complimented the state agencies involved in identifying the problems at Deep Creek Lake.

"The bad news is, it might be 90 years too late," he said. "The good new is, something is being done about it, and I applaud Secretary Griffin for his efforts. We need to continue to pay attention to it. I think when cooler heads prevail and approach this is in a level-headed way, we'll get the job done."

Griffin said everyone is entitled to their own opinions but not to their own facts.

"We're trying our best to work through these issues," he said. "I think we have had much improved conservations with this board of county commissioners, and more things are going to start happening as we move forward."

Chair Jim Raley, Board of Garrett County Commissioners, indicated the commissioners are committed to trying to improve water quality and the Deep Creek Lake watershed.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HIALEAH, FL — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorse legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended formula.

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism whereby one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, ARTH ARREST is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, and tendonitis.

ARTH ARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-3301. Now at:

a Note of Thanks

On behalf of the residents and their families, staff and myself, I would like to send a heartfelt "Thank You" to Southern Rescue Squad and Oakland and Deer Park Fire Departments. Your quick response and continual help October 30, 2012, ensured safety and care for all the residents here at Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home. Your dedication to serve others was visibly shown as you worked throughout the day into the night to provide all the necessary care and see that all needs were being met.

To the other unnamed volunteers who contributed their time, you are also deeply thanked and appreciated.

Please know it is a comfort to realize the community of Oakland is in very caring and capable hands.

Sincerely,
Carole Cuppett, Administrator

A Big Thank You!

from the Property Owners Association of Deep Creek Lake

The Property Owners Association of Deep Creek Lake, Inc., would like to express its gratitude for the monumental effort put forth in the aftermath of "Sandy" on behalf of its members and all of Garrett County. We greatly appreciate the long hours and innovative work by so many to minimize the damage and discomfort to the residents of Garrett County. The attention given to us by Gov. O'Malley, Senator Edwards, Delegate Beitzel, Monty Pagenhardt and the County Commissioners, Sheriff Corley, and the Sheriff's Office went well beyond normal expectations, as well as the other people and organizations who sacrificed personal obligations to the benefit of the community. It is impossible to recognize all those who contributed; however, some must be singled out:

- Brad Frantz and the Emergency Management team
- Jay Moyer and the County Roads Department
- Maryland State Police
- Maryland Emergency Management Agency
- Road crews from Allegany County
- Potomac Edison and the power restoration crews assembled from great distances

We truly are grateful for the tremendous effort and consideration

Garrett Lakers Host Hoop Fest, Split Games To Start Campaign

The Garrett Lakers men's basketball squad tipped off their season and cut ribbon on their new gym this past weekend as they hosted the Railey Realty Hoop Fest. The Lakers lost the season opener to Northern Virginia (NOVA) 84-78 Friday night but bounced back Saturday, downing Butler 69-65.

Garrett was to open its season Nov. 2-3 in the annual McDonald's Tip-off Tourney, but canceled because of inclement weather. The seven day lay-off for the Lakers was evident as the team struggled making open shots and finding chemistry despite only trailing 35-30 at halftime against NOVA.

The Lakers stayed in the game throughout the second half, even taking a two-point lead in one instance. However, foul shooting woes proved to be the difference in the game. Garrett shot just 23-36 from the free throw line and missed nine of the 13 foul shots in the second half.

Garrett was led by Antonio Butler, who had 19 points and four assists. Guila Panzo recorded a double-double, adding 11 points and 12 rebounds.

NOVA was paced by Brandon Winbush, who had a game-high 33 points, while Khalil Jabble added 20.

Former NHS Star Adria Graham Named CAC's Soccer Player Of The Year

Former Northern High School standout and current Frostburg State University junior Adria Graham was recently named the Capital Athletic Conference (CAC) women's soccer Player of the Year for the second consecutive year. Graham is one of only five players in league history to win the award twice.

Graham led the conference in points (54), goals (23), and game-winning goals (5). She was third in assists (8), trailing only a pair of teammates. Graham has 51 goals and 114 points in her FSU career, giving her a great chance to enter the conference record books in her senior season. The career record marks for goals and points in the CAC are 63 and 141, respectively.

In addition to Player of the Year honors, Graham was also named to the CAC First Team for the second straight year. She led the Bobcats to the CAC Championship and advanced to the 2012 NCAA Division III Championship Tournament, losing a 1-0 contest against an undefeated, nationally fifth-ranked Lynchburg team.

Graham credits most of her success to her coaching staff and teammates.

"While I was scoring goals and trying to make things happen, I was really only hoping to do everything possible in order to get good results for my team," Graham adds. "We were able to do a lot this season as everyone played their individual role very well to make us a very well-rounded team. Our coaching staff was a large part of our success, and our defense and goal keeper Katie Smith really came up big at the end of the season."

Graham is an athletic training major at FSU with a perfect 4.0 GPA named to the Capital One Academic All-District First Team for a second time. After graduating from Frostburg, Graham hopes be certified in athletic training and plans on going to Physician's Assistant School at Chatham University in Pittsburgh, PA to become an orthopedic physician's assistant.

"It is saddening that I only have one season left in my soccer career. Soccer has definitely developed into more than just a sport and hobby, but a way of life for me. It has taught me a lot of things that I will use in the future, and has impacted me greatly as a person. I am really touched that my "home turf" in Garrett County wants to know more about that," Graham concluded.

Laker Runners Vie At Nationals; GC Women 10th

The 2012 Garrett College cross country season came to a close Saturday, as the men and women ran in the final race of the season at the 75th NJCAA Division III National Championship, held at SUNY Delhi in New York. Twenty-eight teams from seven states battled for the championship title.

The Laker women finished 10th overall, while the GC men finished with an incomplete score. The men's team of Harper College and the Gloucester County College women's team took home the national team trophies.

"All in all, it was a great experience for our team," said head coach Angie Sincell. "We made history for Garrett College as the first cross country team to go to Nationals, and I am proud of how our athletes performed."

Lindsey Smith led the Laker women by placing 47th with a time of 24:15. Lauren Keefer crossed the line in 50th place with a time of 24:23. Teammate Alicia Brown was 67th in 25:35; Alyssa Bailey earned a personal record with her 27:46 (85th) and Kayley Green crossed the line in 100th place with her best-ever time of 33:37.

"These ladies worked hard this season, and I am proud of what they accomplished," said Sincell. "They have already expressed excitement for next season."

Leading the Laker men was Rashee Davis, who finished in the 111th position with a time of 36:09. He was followed by David Williams in 118th (41:40), James Cloyd, 121st, (46:27), and William Harris, 123rd (48:58).

"The men had a harder time with this particular course, but I think it was good for them to understand just what it is all about at this level of competition," said Sincell. "I'm grateful they were able to go and get that kind of experience."

Capturing the women's and men's individual titles were Samantha Farina of Ocean County College, who finished the 5K course in 20:37, and Troy Cunningham of Harper College, who clocked a 27:53 to win the 8K race.

Lakers' Total Team Effort Too Much For Westmoreland County

The Garrett Lakers men's basketball team broke out of an early season shooting slump as they hosted Westmoreland County C.C. Wednesday evening, soaring to a 96-72 victory.

The Lakers turned up the heat late in the first half when coach Dennis Gibson gave the team a little boost. Garrett had a four-point lead when Gibson called a time-out and asked his players to play with some urgency, especially on the defensive end. The team responded well.

The four-point lead grew as the first half ended, as the Lakers took a 42-30 lead into the locker room at halftime.

"The bench really stepped it up and put a lot of pressure on Westmoreland and we were able to grow the lead to 12 points," said Gibson.

"YanNick Zanfack, Kurt Gangler, D.J. Ritchie, and Walter Griffin did a great job in getting us that run."

Garrett came out in the second half with the same intensity, and increased the lead to as many as 27 points (77-50) with nine minutes left.

"We talked about needing to continue to play the same way after halftime, and in the second half we were able to keep up the pressure and build on our lead," Gibson added.

Twelve players scored for the Lakers and Guila Panzo continued his double-double play by registering 10 points and 13 rebounds. Matt Gibson had a team-high 15 points, Din Moore added 13, D.J. Ritchie added 12, and Marquise Green 10. The Lakers had 24 assists as a team, with Moore and Walter Griffin leading with five apiece.

For Westmoreland, Andy Carter scored a game-high 29 points and Tommy Szatkowski had 15.

Garrett improves its record to 2-1 and opens Maryland JUCO play on Friday as the Lakers travel to Southern Maryland at 7 p.m.

Columbia Gas Of Md. Urges Customers To Use Bill Payment Assistant Programs

Columbia Gas of Maryland is urging customers to prepare for winter heating bills and use the many payment assistance programs that are available.

Columbia offers payment options to customers with limited or low income, customers who are facing special circumstances, or those who need to re-establish service.

"While natural gas prices are projected to remain lower for the foreseeable future, we still understand that many of our customers are struggling with their entire household budgets," said Deb Davis, Columbia Gas of Maryland manager of universal services. "There are several programs and options available to Columbia customers; however, the first step we ask every customer to take is to contact your utility company at the first sign you may have trouble paying your bill. The sooner we hear about an issue or problem, the sooner we can explore assistance options."

The company reminds its customers that half of their monthly bill is the cost of natural gas, which Columbia passes directly to customers on a dollar-for-dollar basis, with no mark up or profit. The greatest opportunity for customers to reduce their monthly bill is through weatherization and energy efficiency.

Programs available to Columbia Gas of Maryland customers include:

Maryland Energy Assistance Program (MEAP)

Columbia serves as a link to federal energy assistance funds which provide help with residential heating costs. These energy grants do not have to be repaid by the customer. Enrollment guidelines, which are revised each new heating season, are based on household size and income. MEAP applications are accepted year-round.

For more information or to apply for MEAP, persons may call Columbia at 1-800-537-7431. Customers can also contact their local MEAP office to apply at 1-800-272-2714.

Utility Service Protection Program (USPP)

USPP protects families with low incomes from utility cut-offs and allows MEAP eligible households to enter into a monthly payment program to help stabilize energy bills. MEAP grants are deducted from the estimated annual gas costs, lowering monthly budget payments. For households with back bills, special agreements with Columbia are available to arrange for payment on the balance.

For more information or to apply for USPP, customers may call Columbia at 1-800-537-7431.

Heat Share

The Columbia Gas of Maryland Fuel Fund provides energy grants to customers with low incomes for use in offsetting arrears or restoring service to terminated accounts. Heat Share funds are only available to customers who have exhausted all other available energy assistance programs.

For more information or to apply for Heat Share, one may call Columbia at 1-800-537-7431.

Low Income Weatherization Program

Columbia's Low Income Weatherization Program (LIWP) has partnered with existing weatherization programs in Allegany, Washington, and Garrett counties to repair and replace unsafe heating equipment.

The county weatherization program is a free program that first identifies an energy usage snapshot of your home and then takes action to seal up areas of heat loss. This program is offered to customers with low incomes and high gas usage. Columbia Gas of Maryland and the Maryland Office of Weatherization have joined together to provide conservation measures designed to achieve affordable, efficient and safe gas usage.

To learn more about the LIWP or to start the application process, one may call 1-800-537-7431.

For more information about LIWP or to apply, local residents should call Garrett County Community Action at 301-334-9431.

Budget Payment Plan

Available to all Columbia customers, the Budget Payment Plans allow customers to spread annual gas costs evenly across the year instead of paying account balances each month, helping to eliminate high winter bills. Budget season starts in August but customers may sign up at any time. To join, customers may call Columbia at 1-888-460-4332.

In addition to these programs, Columbia makes paying utility bills easy by providing online, over the telephone, automatic debit, and traditional mail-in payment options.

Nominal Increase In Travel Numbers Expected For Thanksgiving Holiday

AAA projects 43.6 million Americans will journey 50 miles or more from home during the Thanksgiving holiday weekend, an increase of less than one percent over the 43.3 million people who traveled last year. This increase marks the fourth consecutive year of holiday travel growth since 2008 when Thanksgiving travel fell by 25 percent. The Thanksgiving holiday travel period is defined as Wednesday, November 21, to Sunday, November 25.

Highlights from this year's 2012 AAA Thanksgiving Holiday Travel Forecast include:

- Thanksgiving travelers projected to total 43.6 million, an increase of 0.7 percent from the 43.3 million who traveled last year.
- Ninety percent of travelers or 39.1 million to travel by automobile, an increase of 0.6 percent.
- Holiday air travel to decline to 3.14 million travelers from 3.2 million in 2011, a 1.7 percent drop.
- Median spending expected to drop 10 percent to $498, compared to $554 last year. Spending remains consistent with historic averages as Americans continue to prioritize travel while finding ways to economize.
- Average distance traveled will decline to 588 miles from 706 miles, due in part to a decrease in the number of air travelers and Americans' desire to economize budgets.
- Despite mild improvements in unemployment, the housing market and greater consumer optimism, the economy is still struggling to keep its head above water.

"While we have seen a steady increase in the number of Thanksgiving holiday travelers since the decade-low volume in 2008, it appears many Americans still remain unemployed or under other financial stress, which explains the nominal increase in overall Thanksgiving travel this year. Yet Americans continue to prioritize Thanksgiving travel given the 43.6 million forecasted to get away this year," said Ragina C. Averella, manager of Public and Government Affairs at AAA Mid-Atlantic.

"We do not yet know the full effect Hurricane Sandy will have on travel to and from the New York-New Jersey area; however, we do know that the impact for many Americans in that region is substantial," added Averella.

Impact of gasoline prices on travel plans

AAA estimates the national average price of gasoline will drop to between $3.25-3.40 a gallon by the holiday, similar to last year's average of $3.32, which was the most expensive average ever on Thanksgiving. Despite the historically high prices paid by motorists this year, the national average has declined by nearly 40 cents a gallon since early October and should continue to drop through the end of the year. The national average price of gas for Thanksgiving from 2007-2011 was $2.75 a gallon. Today's national average price for self-serve regular is $3.44 a gallon, which is 35 cents lower than last month's average price but two cents higher compared to last year's average.

Wednesday before the holiday is expected to be busiest travel day

The Thanksgiving holiday is unique, falling on a Thursday every year. Many people are off from work the Friday after, giving travelers the opportunity to spend more time with family and friends.

AAA asked intended travelers which days they would depart for and return from Thanksgiving Travel. Among those surveyed, the majority of travelers plan to leave the Wednesday before the holiday (45 percent) and return the following Sunday (36 percent) with another 25 percent expecting to return on Monday, November 26.

Automobile travel remains dominant mode of transportation, air travel decreases

Approximately 90 percent of travelers or 39.1 million people plan to travel by automobile this Thanksgiving. This is a 0.6 percent increase over the 38.9 million people who traveled by auto last year. Air travel is expected to decrease 1.7 percent as 3.14 million holiday travelers will take to the skies.

Those traveling by air will find lower airfares according to AAA's Leisure Travel Index. For the Thanksgiving holiday the average lowest round-trip rate is $188 for the top 40 U.S. air routes, an 11 percent decrease from last year. Approximately 1.3 million travelers will choose other modes of transportation, including rail, bus and cruise ship.

Hotel rates relatively flat, car rental rates increase 27 percent

According to AAA's Leisure Travel Index, Thanksgiving holiday hotel rates for AAA Three Diamond lodgings are expected to decrease one percent from a year ago, with travelers spending an average of $143 per night compared to $145 last year. Travelers planning to stay at AAA Two Diamond hotels can expect to pay one percent more, at an average cost of $104 per night. Weekend daily car rental rates will average $47, compared to $37 last year.

Average travel distance decreases

According to the survey of intended travelers, the average distance traveled by Americans during the Thanksgiving holiday weekend is expected to be 588 miles, which is a decline of 16.7 percent from last year when travelers planned to log 706 miles.

Median spending down ten percent

Median spending is expected to be $498, a 10 percent decrease compared to the expected median spending of intended holiday travelers ($554) in 2011.

While spending time with friends and relatives and dining are primary activities for nearly all holidays, it is even more relevant for Thanksgiving travelers. Therefore it is not surprising that spending time with family and friends (75 percent) and dining (56 percent) are the most popular activities planned by travelers. Despite lower median spending, half of all travelers (50 percent) plan to shop during the holiday which can be expected given Black Friday occurs during the holiday weekend.

VIEW FROM THE PEW GOD's WORD

One day, each one will stand before Jesus and be judged. On that day (JESUS SPEAKING) "every knee shall bow to Me and every tongue shall confess to God. Each shall give account of himself to God." Romans 14:11.

As our once great country turns farther from God's WORD, His judgment will continue to become more clear. A nation which turns from God will fall.

When Isaiah was speaking to Jerusalem, he brought up Sodom and Gomorrah, which was so wicked and depraved that God utterly destroyed them. Question: Is the US very far from the likes of Sodom and Gomorrah? Question: Does God change? Malachi 3:6, a quote from God—"For I am the LORD, I do not change."

America! Over and over God has warned us. Since the nation desires to fool itself, then, you, the reader of this message, can still turn from the ways of the world and repent.

How much longer do we have? For each, the answer is different. Your or my last day may be today. Turn to Jesus–repent–begin to live for Him while you have today.

SPECIAL VETERANS DAY VISITORS – At Friendsville Elementary School this week, the students were visited by a special guest and his family. In honor of Veterans Day, Judy Livengood's second grade class and Michele Clevenger's third grade class were given the opportunity to visit with Major Eric Livengood, son of Judy, who is currently stationed in Afghanistan. The students used Skype to talk with the major, and they asked him several questions about his daily life and responsibilities in the military. Also on hand for the discussion were the major's father, Norman Livengood, and Judy's father, Bruce Humberson, also veterans. The students honored them with Veterans Day cards they completed during a writing lesson, and they also sang a song. In return, Mr. Humberson serenaded the Friendsville Eagles with a special eagle song. Pictured during the Skype visit, from left, are Judy Livengood, Norman Livengood, Bruce Humberson, and Major Livengood.

Recommendations On How Hospitals Can Support Breastfeeding Moms Noted

The Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH) this week released the 2012 Maryland Hospital Breastfeeding Policy Recommendations. The recommendations lay out evidence-based practices to help hospitals eliminate hidden barriers and support new mothers who choose to breastfeed their infants.

The recommendations were developed over more than nine months through a review of evidence-based practices and public input. More than 150 public comments were received and considered before the recommendations were finalized.

"Our goal is for mothers who choose to breastfeed to be successful," said Frances Phillips, R.N., DHMH deputy secretary of Public Health Services. "We are pleased to see significant interest by Maryland hospitals to support babies and mothers in breastfeeding."

Breast milk is the optimal food for infants, and babies who are breastfed have fewer respiratory and gastrointestinal infections, according to the DHMH. The American Academy of Pediatrics has also found evidence that breastfeeding is associated with reduced rates of sudden infant death syndrome, allergic disease, obesity, and other conditions. The academy recommends that babies receive breast milk exclusively for the first 6 months of life, and continue breastfeeding for the first year or longer.

Early experience in the hospital can greatly influence a mother's success at breastfeeding, the release noted. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has developed the National Survey of Maternity Practices in Infant Nutrition and Care (mPINC) to assess "birth facility policies and practices that create a supportive environment for breastfeeding."

According to the 2011 Breastfeeding Report Card, Maryland's average mPINC score was 68, ranking the state 15th in the country.

To improve support for mothers who choose to breastfeed, the 2012 Maryland Hospital Breastfeeding Policy Recommendations call for hospitals to:

- Maintain a written breastfeeding policy that is routinely communicated to all health care staff.
- Train all health care staff in skills necessary to implement this policy.
- Inform all pregnant women about the benefits and management of breastfeeding.
- Help mothers initiate breastfeeding within one hour of birth.
- Show mothers how to breastfeed and how to maintain lactation, even if they are separated from their infants.
- Give newborn infants no food or drink other than breast milk, unless medically indicated.
- Practice "rooming-in" – allow mothers and infants to remain together 24 hours a day.
- Encourage unrestricted breastfeeding.
- Give no pacifiers or artificial nipples to breastfeeding infants.
- Foster the establishment of breastfeeding support groups and refer mothers to them on discharge from the hospital or clinic.

Hospitals can also meet the recommendations by obtaining Baby-Friendly certification through the Baby-Friendly Hospital Initiative.

MISS HISTORIC MARYLAND PAGEANT HELD – Miss Historic Maryland, the local Miss Maryland pageant, took place this past weekend, with local student Kayla Lowdermilk (above, far right) being named Miss Historic Maryland's Pre-Teen. She is the daughter of Joyce Lowdermilk, Oakland. The pageant, normally held at Garrett College, was moved to Allegany College of Maryland at the last minute because of the inclement weather. In addition to Lowdermilk, the winners were (from left), Virginia Breedlove, Keyser, W.Va., Miss Queen State Pre-Teen; Sabrina Frost, Frostburg, Miss Queen State's Oustanding Teen; Audreanna Columbo, Hagerstown, Miss Queen State; Taylor Shay, Hagerstown, Miss Historic Maryland Princess; Stephanie Meadowcraft, Bel Air, Miss Historic Maryland; and Karyn Kittrell, Fulton, Miss Historic Maryland's Outstanding Teen.

THE FOOD PLAN PART III

by Dr. James J. Damato

In the previous articles, I explained that dieting does not work. You were then shown how to calculate your body mass index (BMI) in order to determine if your current food plan was meeting your health needs. This week I present an outline of a food plan that is healthy and enjoyable, which will require you to eat more, not less. Remember, it is not what you eat, but how you eat that matters.

This is critical: Before beginning a food plan modification, consult your primary care physician to ensure that your food plan does not interfere with existing health conditions or treatment regimens.

The one challenge a healthy food plan presents is that you have to actually "plan" your meals. While this is not difficult, it does require a little time. For many of us, time is at a premium, but time spent on improving your food plan will add appreciably to your health and longevity. For the most part, you should plan to eat six times a day: breakfast, mid-morning snack, lunch, mid-afternoon snack, dinner, and evening snack.

Family genetics is important in determining your health and longevity; however, studies of individuals who have lived beyond 90 have noted that these men and women generally eat primarily grains, vegetable, fruits, nuts, beans, and fish. Various meat products were also consumed, but meat products constitute a smaller part of their overall diets. In addition, the fats consumed were in the form of mono- and poly-unsaturated oils, such as olive, canola, sesame, sunflower, and corn. Animal fats and hydrogenated oils found in meat, cold cuts, and snack foods were avoided.

Your main meals of the day should be organized in such a manner that ½ plate contains all types of vegetable/fresh fruit of any type, ¼ complex carbohydrates (all types of beans, whole grain cereals, whole grains such as brown rice, barley, wheat, oats, etc.), and ¼ lean meat/eggs/fish of your choosing (4-5 ozs.).

Eat high-fiber foods, which help satisfy your appetite. The more color found in a vegetable, such as red, green, yellow, orange, the more nutritious the food item. If you are still hungry after eating all that is on this plate, you can start over. I can assure you that this will not happen very often, but if it does, enjoy it.

Now, how about those pesky snacks? These would include fresh fruits of all types, various whole-grain cereal bars, flavored cottage cheese, yogurt, Weight Watchers or equivalent treats, and 2-3 ounces of nuts. Ice cream may also be included, it but should be limited to a ½ cup or a small cone. Limit cheeses to 2-3 ozs.

The reward for implementing this plan is that one day a week, you can eat anything you want. No limits.

If you follow this plan, your appetite will adjust, and you will find that it takes a lot fewer goodies to satisfy your sweet cravings. What snack foods should be excluded from your food plan? – high-calorie snack foods such as chips, dips, cookies, cakes, ice cream, cold cuts, and hydrogenated food products.

Eating fast food used to be a no-no, but today, many fast-food chains offer meals that meet healthy food plan requirements. Avoid super-sized products unless they're low calorie or are composed of fruits, grains, vegetables, and cereals. Broiled or grilled items are preferable to deep-fried foods, which should be avoided because they often contain twice the number of calories and less nutritional value.

A handy number: One pound of fat contains approximately 4,000 calories. Therefore, if you eat 400 fewer calories each day, you should lose a pound in approximately 10 days. Conversely, to gain one pound of fat, you have to eat 4,000 calories more than your body requires. To estimate the number of calories you are consuming, simply read labels found on food products. Pay close attention to the serving size to more accurately determine the number of calories in the food item. You want to avoid any food plan that produces rapid weight loss. Such plans often fail to result in long-term weight loss, and they often do not promote a healthy and enjoyable food plan.

There are numerous health food plans also available online or at the library. Examples of healthful plans include (but are not limited to) California, Mediterranean, and Weight Watchers plans. However, if you need to lose over 50 pounds, seek a community or medical support program.

Next week, Article IV will provide more details on how to actually implement and maintain an effective food plan for yourself and your family members. Remember, you are what you eat, and maintaining a healthy food plan maximizes your chances for a long, healthy, fulfilling life.

PAPER MILL ASSISTS TREE PLANTING PROJECT – As part of the company's ongoing commitment to sustainability and environmental stewardship, the NewPage Luke mill recently partnered with local Lions in a tree planting earlier this year. The project was part of a campaign by Lions Clubs International to plant 1 million trees during the 2011-2012 year. With seedlings and forestry expertise provided by the Luke mill, Kathy Herbert, vice president of the Potomac Valley Lions Club and also a Luke mill employee, took on the task of coordinating seedling distributions to 12 Lions clubs in Allegany, Garrett, and Mineral (W.Va.) counties. The result of their collective efforts was the planting of 3,450 seedlings in the three-county region. "I was thrilled with the results of our local planting efforts," Herbert said. "And I was so impressed by the interest and enthusiasm by all those who participated. There was a tremendous sense of pride as Lions Club members worked alongside local residents of all ages to enhance their communities. I am grateful to have had this opportunity, and I thank the individual Lions clubs – and particularly the project chairs – for their participation in the project. Garrett County groups involved in the project included the Deep Creek Lake, Friendsville, Grantsville, and Oakland Lions clubs; and Accident Elementary School, Friendsville, Friendsville Elementary School, the Goodwill Mennonite Retirement Community, and local Boy Scout troops. The year-long international project resulted in Lions in 88 countries across the globe going well beyond their goal by planting more than 15 million trees. Above are some of the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club members and local Boy Scouts who planted 200 pine seedlings. Below, Luke Mill Wood Department supervisor/forester Pete Miller presented 200 Norway spruce seedlings to Josh Bosley and Gene Flinn of the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park club.

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!

With the economic situation this year, we expect great need...

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the 15th year, The Republican newspaper and the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland are asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is the WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM?

The GFWC Civic Club of Oakland and The Republican's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM is basically neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special corps of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Members of the Civic Club of Oakland are taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $125 per child.

The Civic Club of Oakland is again heading up the volunteer/shopping coordination. Many volunteers are working together to make sure the children of Garrett County stay warm this winter.

GFWC Civic Club of Oakland

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children.

Donations should be postmarked by December 5, 2012. Those collected after December 5 will be saved for next year's campaign.

Handle with Care

Each of our lives is precious and fragile. The question is…how can we protect our spirits from breaking when we encounter life's hard knocks and bumps? The Psalmist David had a life that was strewn with trouble, much of it his own doing. When his spirit was nearly broken, he turned to the Lord. In Psalm 18:2 David joyfully proclaimed…"my God is my rock, in whom I take refuge. He is my shield…." Talk to God and He will help cushion the blows in your life. Handle it with care, handle it with prayer.

Saying Grace

The act of saying grace before meals is common to most cultures, and has its roots in antiquity. The common Catholic grace which runs "Bless us, O Lord, and these thy gifts, which we are about to receive, from thy bounty, through Christ our Lord, Amen" is found in the Gelasian Sacramentary, a Catholic service book which dates from the late 7th or early 8th century. An even simpler grace is the prayer which runs "Lord, bless this food to our use and us to Thy service, and make us ever mindful of the needs of others." If you grew up saying grace before each meal, as I did, you may have become deaf to the meaning of the words. We are often struck most when we hear a prayer or a poem for the first time. When I recently heard an even simpler version of the above prayer, i.e., "Bless this food to our use and us to thy service," I was moved by its simplicity. Growing up Catholic, however, and hearing the Catholic grace every single day of my life, I grew numb to that prayer's many facets and deeper meaning. Only recently did I find renewed meaning in the prayer, when I realized that the relatively short prayer contains three separate prayers, a prayer of petition (Bless us, O Lord), a prayer of Thanks (implicit in the words "gifts" and "bounty"), and a prayer of exaltation (through Christ our Lord). There are many ways to say Grace, and perhaps the simplest way is to bow your head and thank God for His goodness.

–Christopher Simon

For everything created by God is good, and nothing is to be rejected if it isreceived with thanksgiving, for it is made holy by the word of God and prayer.

Sitcom success: ABC's 'Modern Family' is a surefire hit

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

As people across the country gather for the Thanksgiving holiday, many are reminded of the importance of family.

Today's family unit may not look like the Rockwellian images of Thanksgiving past, but celebrating together is an important part of the holiday season, and many families will be settling in to enjoy some quality time in front of the TV.

It seems each generation has a favorite TV family. From the Ricardos in "I Love Lucy," to the bell bottom-clad Bradys in "The Brady Bunch" and the Barones in "Everybody Loves Raymond," TV clans have changed over the years. But the formula for making a successful TV family can elude even the most experienced writers.

Luckily, the folks of ABC's "Modern Family" have it all figured out, and the sitcom is enjoying its fourth season in a prime Wednesday night timeslot. In keeping with the times, the series takes a look at the lives of three distinct family units -- all related, but very different.

Ed O'Neill anchors the cast as Jay Pritchett, head of an extended family that includes his vivacious second wife Gloria (Sofia Vergara) and her son from a previous relationship, Manny (Rico Rodriguez). Jay's uptight daughter Claire (Julie Bowen) is a stay-at-home mom to her three kids, Haley (Sarah Hyland), Alex (Ariel Winter) and Luke (Nolan Gould), alongside her kooky husband, Phil (Ty Burrell). The third family unit is composed of Jay's gay son, Mitchell (Jesse Tyler Ferguson), his partner, Cameron (Eric Stonestreet), and their adopted daughter, Lily (Aubrey Anderson-Emmons).

Filmed in a mockumentary style, the sitcom lives up to the hype, mocking all kinds of modern-day stereotypes. Over the seasons, the show has poked fun at the lives of gay men, older gentlemen with unbelievably hot wives, and even teen angst. Such episodes have not been without criticism, but many of the legendary TV families pushed the prime-time envelope.

Successful TV family sitcoms show heart and reflect the times, and that's true of "Modern Family." Despite the show's sometimes oddball and even slapstick humor, it handles modern-day foibles faced by many of its viewers. Cameron and Mitchell struggled to adopt a baby, Phil isn't quite sure how to parent his kids, and Claire seems perpetually stressed out about something.

This season, the blended family faces even more challenges as Gloria and Jay prepare to welcome a baby of their own. Manny, who's always had his mom to himself, will have to adjust, whether he likes it or not. On the opposite end of the spectrum, Phil and Claire try to wrap their heads around eldest daughter Haley heading off to college. After a failed attempt to adopt another baby, Mitchell and Cameron settle into life with Lily.

They will surely weather these changes with the same sense of humor that's brought them this far. And they've certainly come far since that very first episode on Sept. 23, 2009. After coming up with an idea for a mockumentary-style show about contemporary family life, creators Christopher Lloyd (no, not the actor) and Steven Levitan pitched the idea to ABC, CBS and NBC. With two mockumentary sitcoms already ("The Office" and "Parks and Recreation"), NBC passed on the show, as did CBS. However, the alpha network quickly snatched it up. In truth, "Modern Family" is also inspired by the French TV series "Fais pas ci, fais pas ca," to which ABC holds the rights.

The show's debut drew more than 12 million viewers and quickly became an Emmy favorite. ABC had picked up the series for a full season order within two weeks of the premiere, and "Modern Family" was deemed an Emmy favorite from the get-go. Viewers loved the writing and the mockumentary style, but, undoubtedly, "Modern Family's" greatest strength has always been its ensemble cast.

Probably the most famous cast member, at least before the show hit the airwaves, is O'Neill. The actor is best known as the patriarch of another famous TV family, Al Bundy of Fox's shameless '80s/'90s sitcom "Married...with Children." That show may have been lowbrow, but it did earn him two Golden Globe nominations. He's followed it up with two Emmy nods and two SAG wins as part of the ensemble cast for "Modern Family." His onscreen wife Vergara earned an ALMA Award nomination for her role in the 2009 film "Madea Goes to Jail," before picking up three Emmy nominations, two Golden Globe nominations and the aforementioned SAG wins for ensemble cast in 2010 and 2011.

Bowen struck Emmy gold in 2011 and 2012 for best supporting actress. Previously, she was known as teacher Carol Vessey in the TV NBC series "Ed" and as the love interest in "Happy Gilmore" (1996).

Sofia Vergara stars as Gloria in "Modern Family"

Funnyman Burrell snagged an Emmy for best supporting actor in 2011, and was nominated in 2010 and 2012. His credits include CBS's defunct "Out of Practice" and the Fox flop "Back to You."

Nominated for three consecutive years for an outstanding supporting actor, Ferguson has not yet taken the Emmy statue home, but fans would argue it's only a matter of time. Perhaps Stonestreet would share one of the two Emmy awards he's won for his work on "Modern Family." The actor won the supporting actor category in 2010 and 2012, clearly indicating "Modern Family" has been dominating the category.

Speaking of domination, the series has won the Emmy for outstanding comedy series all three years it's been in contention for the award, as well as this year's Golden Globe for best television series -- musical or comedy.

There is truly no weak link in the series; even the younger players have earned awards. Along with the SAG for ensemble cast, all three young actors (Rodriguez, Gould and Winter) have been twice nominated for the Young Artist Award, winning in 2010.

However, for all of the awards and critical acclaim, "Modern Family" is not immune to drama. This summer five cast members took 20th Century Fox to court to have their salaries increased. The potential crisis was averted when the parties reached an agreement.

Keep in touch with this "Modern Family" Wednesdays on ABC. No matter what they encounter, like so many other TV families, they'll surely face life's little up and downs together.

'Oprah's Favorite Things' returns as OWN special

By Sheila Busteed
TV Media

THE OTHER LIST: Fans of the defunct daytime hit "The Oprah Winfrey Show" would likely agree that the annual 'Favorite Things' special was one of the program's best features. After all, Winfrey was renowned for such extravagant giveaways during those episodes that she could rival Saint Nicholas, the man who inspired the story of Santa Claus. She made Christmas fun for adults all over again.

Winfrey's fans can rejoice once more because OWN is bringing "Oprah's Favorite Things" back to television in a special two-hour event, airing on Sunday, Nov. 18. It's just in time for people to start their holiday shopping.

The programming event is also special because it will follow Winfrey as she surprises the spouses of military personnel, who deservingly receive the must-have items from her list. Viewers will get a behind-the-scenes look at this unique giveaway extravaganza.

But the viewers won't be left out in the cold with coal in their stockings; Winfrey and her staff have also launched a 'Watch and Win' contest. Entering is as simple as texting a key word to a short code that will pop up on the screen during certain parts of the televised special. Those entries will be put into a draw for the prizes. More details about this contest are available at oprah.com/favoritethings.

Winfrey had a stellar team of elves working for her to put together the list this year. As usual, the team was led by "O, The Oprah Magazine" editor Gayle King, who is Winfrey's close friend. She's joined by creative director Adam Glassman, fashion designers Michael Kors and Tory Burch, and celebrity chef Curtis Stone.

For those who can't tune in to watch the special, the complete 'O List' is in the current issue of "O, The Oprah Magazine," which hit stands on Nov. 6.

Late Laughs

The Late Show: David Letterman
Mitt Romney resumed campaigning today. He was visiting those hardest hit by the storm, and that would be swing-state Latinos.

This is the day after hurricane Sandy and, once again, we have no studio audience. We don't care, we're still going to do a show. I had to come in -- I've used up all my sick days!

Jimmy Kimmel Live!: Jimmy Kimmel
Unfortunately, the Brooklyn Nets had to cancel their big home opener tomorrow night. Good news is, if the Nets can keep this up for eight more months, they could have their first undefeated season!

The Late, Late Show: Craig Ferguson
Tom Hanks' movies have made a fortune. In total, $4 billion at the box office. To give you an idea how much that is, take the movies I've made at their box office and add $4 billion.

Late Night: Jimmy Fallon
I don't know if you guys caught the show last night, but because of hurricane Sandy, we had to do the show to a bunch of empty seats -- or as Clint Eastwood calls that, "a full house."

A new report found that an American is arrested for marijuana possession every 42 seconds -- and that American's name is Snoop Dogg.

Strange BUT TRUE

• It was Scotsman Bertie Charles Forbes, journalist and founder of Forbes magazine, who made the following sage observation: "There is more credit and satisfaction in being a first-rate truck driver than in being a tenth-rate executive."

• The prospectors of 1849 might not have realized it, but you're more likely to find a 5-carat diamond than a 1-ounce nugget of gold. • You might be surprised -- and, depending on your temperament, terrified -- to learn that bats can fly at speeds up to 60 mph. Some can even reach altitudes of 10,000 feet.

• Coffee beans are actually seeds. The fruit of the coffee tree is called a cherry and are said to be delicious. They spoil too quickly to be marketed effectively, though, so only the seeds are used.

• Beverly Hills, Calif., is one of the most affluent areas of the country. It was not always such a posh locale, however; in 1920 the population was 674, and most of the land was given over to bean fields. • All joking aside, those who study such things say that natural blondes tend to have more difficulty driving than those whose hair is of a darker hue -- at night, anyway. The reason? Most natural blondes also have blue eyes, which aren't as good as brown eyes at shielding out light. This means that blondes tend to be more easily blinded by the headlights of oncoming cars. • When a professional football player retires, there's a 50-50 chance he'll get divorced within a year. • Everybody dreams. Those who claim that they never have dreams just don't remember them.

Thought for the Day: "Any frontal attack on ignorance is bound to fail, because the masses are always ready to defend their most precious possession -- their ignorance." -- Hendrik Willem van Loon

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Nov. 12, 1864, Union Gen. William T. Sherman orders the business district of Atlanta destroyed before he embarks on his famous March to the Sea through Georgia to prevent the Confederates from recovering anything once the Yankees had abandoned it.

• On Nov. 16, 1901, a low-slung car called the "Torpedo Racer" -- basically a square platform on bicycle wheels -- breaks the world speed record for electric cars in Coney Island, N.Y., by going 1 mile down the straight dirt track in just 63 seconds. That's about 57 mph. Today the world speed record for an electric vehicle is about 245 mph.

• On Nov. 14, 1914, in Constantinople, capital of the Ottoman Empire, the religious leader Sheikh-ul-Islam declares an Islamic holy war on behalf of the Ottoman government, urging his Muslim followers to take up arms against Britain, France, Russia, Serbia and Montenegro.

• On Nov. 15, 1943, Heinrich Himmler makes public an order that Gypsies are to be put on "the same level as Jews and placed in concentration camps." Himmler was determined to prosecute Nazism racial policies, which dictated the elimination of all races deemed "inferior" and "asocial."

• On Nov. 13, 1953, a member of the Indiana Textbook Commission calls for the removal of references to the book "Robin Hood" from textbooks used by the state's schools. She claimed that Robin Hood was a communist because he robbed the rich and gave it to the poor. • On Nov. 17, 1968, the Oakland Raiders score two touchdowns in nine seconds to beat the New York Jets -- and no one sees it. In a debacle which would become known as "Heidi Bowl," with just 65 seconds left to play, NBC broke away from the game to air its previously scheduled programming, the movie "Heidi."

Q: I found a ceramic cat's head in a junk shop in Dallas, and I am not quite sure what it was used as. It obviously mounted on the wall, and the cat's mouth has a small hole. -- Betty, Spring Branch, Texas

A: You have a string holder, an item often found in kitchens throughout the 1930s and '40s. The one in my grandmother's kitchen featured a monkey design. Values vary depending on style and condition, but often sell in the $20 to $45 range.

Q: I recently inherited a collection of books from a distant relative who was a professor of literature at a major university. Although several of the books are extremely interesting, I am curious about one in particular: "Prufock and Other Observations" by T.S. Eliot. It was published in London in 1917 and appears to be a first edition. -- Susan, Helena, Mont.

A: This was T.S. Eliot's first book. According to "Collected Books: The Guide to Values" by Allen and Patricia Ahearn (Putnam Press), your book, if it is, indeed, a first edition and in decent shape, is worth in the $8,500 to $10,000 range.

Q: My grandmother was Canadian, and I found a commemorative plate in her estate. It was issued in 1927 and is the Canadian Jubilee issue. The identification mark indicates that it was made by Wedgwood and Sons and imported by Nerlich & Company of Toronto. Do you have any idea of how much it is worth? -- Stan, Providence, R.I.

A It took a little effort to track down information about this plate. After searching through several guides, I finally found it referenced in "Bergesen's Price Guide of British Ceramics" by Victoria Bergesen, who indicates it is worth about $100 USD.

Q: About 10 years ago, I found several Pez dispensers in a thrift store. They are all Looney Tune characters: Western Sam, Movie Daffy, Western Bugs Bunny, French Tweetie and African Taz. I paid a buck each for them and hope they have increased in value. -- Sean, Albuquerque, N.M.

A: Your dispensers are each worth in the $3 to $5 range.

VETS HONORED; BLUE STAR MARKER SET – At least 100 people attended a special service in Oakland on Sunday, Nov. 11, in honor of all veterans, living and passed. The day's events began with a parade through the town, ending at Veterans Park at the corner of Oak and Third streets, where a wreath-laying service was held. Representatives from local veterans organizations were present to participate in the wreathe-laying, the gun salute, and other portions. The Southern Garrett Marching Band was a guest as well, providing special music. A highlight of the ceremony was the dedication of a Blue Star By-Way marker now at the site, provided by the Mountain Laurel Garden Club, with assistance from the American Legion and the VFW, as well as via manpower from the town of Oakland and Frank Custer of Mountaintop Monuments. Several officials of the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland (FGCMD) were in attendance, and the guests offered brief remarks about the history of the Blue Star markers, which have been an ongoing project of the National Garden Clubs Inc. since World War II and can be seen all over the United States along highways in honor of all veterans. A veteran is pictured above as he offers his salute to his comrades. In the photo above right, Kathie Smith, the local garden club's chairperson of the awards committee and coordinator of the Blue Star project, is pictured as she speaks about the marker. PROUDLY SERVING OUR COMMUNITY AND REGION SINCE 1971

GC Community Honors Fallen Vets And Opens Student Veterans Center

The auditorium of Garrett College was reverentially quiet as the first of 52 community members stepped to the podium to begin reading the names of service members from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia who lost their lives in Vietnam. In all 4,894 names were on the list of those honored and memorialized during the National Roll Call. A slide show of Vietnam military personnel provided a backdrop for this commemoration, held Monday in recognition of Veterans Day.

This was the second year that Garrett College joined the Remembrance Day National Roll Call to honor American service men and women by hosting simultaneous ceremonies across the nation.

Chuck Nolan, a veteran U.S. Marine, was among the readers. This was his second year to participate in this event.

"This year was particularly important to me because I was reading names of those who sacrificed their lives in Vietnam, where I served," he said. "I was both proud and thankful to be able to recognize my comrades who paid the ultimate price. I am still here with my family. These people are not here. So reading their names gave me the opportunity to say to them, 'I will see you on the other side, my friends.'"

Nolan had also provided some of his own military equipment used in Vietnam for display, both on the stage and in the lobby. When he finished reading names, he turned toward the displayed items on the stage, which represented the service men and women who died in battle, and bowed in deference.

"When I did that, I saw my own helmet there and thought again that it could have been me who lost my life," he said. "But I was among the fortunate ones. This ceremony is about those who did not come home."

Following the reading of the roll call, which continued until 2 p.m., a minute of silence was observed simultaneously at all participating colleges in the country. The silence was followed by Cecil Glotfelty playing "Amazing Grace" on the bagpipes.

The next event on the Garrett College campus was the dedication of the Garrett College Student Veterans Center, which was officiated by college president Dr. Richard MacLennan. He recognized the support and contributions of time, labor, and goods from all sectors of the community that made the creation of this "separate and important" space possible.

MacLennan, himself a military veteran, spoke of the importance of providing this center for student veterans.

"It symbolizes our interest, as an institution of higher education, and commitment to developing our knowledge about veterans' issues and needs, both within and outside the classroom," he said, "that we understand and appreciate that the veterans coming to our campus are unique learners and have perspectives and experiences vastly different from their traditional counterparts."

Following Dr. MacLennan's comments, a number of other honored guests spoke of the significance of this dedication and commitment. Among them were Ken Lillie, president of the Garrett College Student Veterans Organization; Jerry Boden, chief of staff, Maryland Department of Veterans Affairs; Jim Raley, Garrett County commissioner; Wendell Beitzel, Maryland state delegate; George Edwards, Maryland state senator; Robin Summerfield, representing U.S. Senator Ben Cardin; Julianna Albowicz, representing U.S. Senator Barbara Mikulski; and Kathy Fauber, GC financial aid/veterans affairs counselor.

A symbolic ribbon-cutting was then held on the stage of the auditorium, followed by a reception and tours of the new Student Veterans Center.

The day's events concluded with a 21-gun salute and the playing of taps by members of VFW Post 10077.

Fauber spearheaded the organization of the Veterans Day ceremonies.

"This was an amazing event," she said. "So many people came together to honor our service members who have fallen and those who are with us today. I'm so proud of the community for the overwhelming response and willingness to give of themselves. Of the 120 colleges

In Memory of
Paul Franklin Cogley
& Ellis Cogley Jr.

Thanksgiving time is here again sons.
It comes this time each fall;
But it won't be as happy
as when I got that call.
Jr. would say "I'll be home for dinner, Mom,
then I'll go spot my deer."
I guess you'll spend happy times up there with God this year.
I know that you'll be happy to spend your day up there,
Served dinner by the angels with God in the master chair.
And so I guess it's selfish for me to feel this way;
but, I wish you were here on this Thanksgiving day.

Garrett College Welcomes New CARC Director

Stephen Putnam, an experienced health, fitness, and wellness professional, was recently hired as the director of the Community Aquatic and Recreation Complex (CARC) at Garrett College.

Julie Yoder, dean of the Continuing Education and Workforce Development Division, oversees the programming for the CARC and was part of the selection committee.

"We are very excited to have someone of Steve's caliber helping us develop the future programs for the CARC," she said. "He has demonstrated his professional qualifications in other positions he has held, and we believe he will invaluable in providing services to the community."

Yoder said that Putnam has extensive experience in the health and wellness field, along with knowledge in all aspects of business operations. He is a masters-level exercise physiologist with a proven track record of producing results in a variety of job settings, she said.

STEPHEN PUTNAM

Most recently, Putnam served more than 14 years as executive director of the Wellness Center in Parsons, W.Va., where his responsibilities included improving the overall health of the community, acquiring grant funding, and developing a strong marketing and business management plan.

Putnam has also held the position of research coordinator for a study conducted in Tucker County, W.Va., on cardiac risk factors. The study was funded by the Prevention Research Center at West Virginia University. He also worked as a stuaff exercise physiologist at Cardiac Fitness Inc. in Pittsburgh.

Putnam holds a master of science degree in exercise physiology from the University of Pittsburgh and a bachelor of science degree in exercise physiology from the West Virginia University School of Medicine.

"I'm quite excited to have the opportunity to work for Garrett College and to work with the people of the area," Putnam said. "The time was right for me to make a change in my career, and the move to Garrett College was the perfect fit."

Residents Meet To Develop GC "Senior College"

by Peggy Santamaria

A group of local residents met recently under the auspices of the Garrett College Continuing Education and Workforce Development (CEWD) Division to discuss the creation of the GC Senior College. Facilitated by Sue Fowler, program director, the group laid the groundwork for this project.

Fowler explained that a "senior college" is an entity developed by a community group to establish an education program that would be determined by the membership. The target membership of senior colleges is generally retired people, but there is no age specification as such. The common denominator among members is a keen interest in lifelong learning.

"The membership 'board' makes decisions about what topics to study, when, where to offer them, and who can teach them," she said.

A discussion facilitated by Fowler focused on the structure and content of a senior college.

"I have researched some other models that are currently operating around the country," she told the group. "The basic structure in many models stipulates that students pay a yearly membership fee of $25 to $35 and then a minimal price for each class taken. These fees generally run $10 to $25."

The senior college being discussed would fall under the Garrett College CEWD Division, which would provide a contact person for logistical support, help with marketing and advertising, and guidance on running the program.

Fowler provided handouts on senior college from the University of Southern Maine, info on the other lifelong learning institutes, and the Garrett College CEWD program catalogue. These materials provided a springboard for an exchange of thoughts on potential curriculum.

The group's brainstorming session resulted in the creation of a list of topics of interest, including travel, languages, aging process, arts and crafts, art appreciation, international relations, civics, geography, finance, health, robotics, leadership analysis, cooking (international) history, and problem solving.

"There was also a discussion on presenting programs thematically, such as Spanish language classes, Spanish cooking classes, geography and history of Spain, a class on traveling safely, and even a group trip to Spain," Fowler reported.

The group also began compiling a list of potential resources available, such as the Garrett College facilities in McHenry, Oakland, Grantsville, and Accident, which would include the library and computer labs, programs like the Joan Crawford Lecture Series, art shows, and athletic events.

The resource inventory extended to people who could provide instruction, such as local professionals, retirees, full-time and part-time county residents, group members, local clubs, and associations with expertise like the Mountain Laurel Garden Club, the Discovery Center, and the Area Agency on Aging.

"We set a time line for initiating the GC Senior College, with our first classes to be offered in spring and summer 2013," Fowler said.

The next meeting of the planning group will be held next Monday, Nov. 19, from 10:30 a.m. to noon in Room 211 of the Continuing Education building. The agenda will include: defining the structure for operation; compiling name suggestions for the program and a system for choosing the final name; and developing subcommittees to focus on specific tasks such as class ideas, instructors, class resources, marketing, enrollment, and finances.

Anyone interested in attending the next planning session or seeking more information on the development of the GC Senior College may contact Fowler by e-mail at susan.fowler@garrettcollege.edu or by telephone at 301-387-3087.

BABY BEEF RAFFLE TICKETS DRAWN – Brianna Lowdermilk of the Snowy Creek 4-H Club, left, and Sarena Rodeheaver of First United Bank & Trust recently drew the four winning tickets in the Garrett County 4-H Program's recent baby beef raffle. See story.

4-H Baby Beef Raffle Results Are Announced

The Garrett County 4-H Program recently completed its annual fundraiser by raffling off four quarters of beef.

First United Bank & Trust donated the beef. This is the 41st year the bank has supported the program through the purchase and donation of an animal during the annual 4-H/FFA Livestock Sale during the Garrett County Agriculture Fair.

This year's beef raffle winners were Pam Scott, ticket sold by Jacob McMcRobie, Maple Mountain 4-H Club; Malcolm Broadwater, ticket sold by Keaton Thomas, Friendsville Fireflies; Jerry McFarland, ticket sold by Falisha Arnold, Red House; and Barb DeWitt, ticket sold by Nicholas Friend, Ryan's Glade.

The top three ticket sellers were Warren Wright, North Glade, 314 tickets; Nicholas Friend, Ryan's Glade, 300 tickets; and Megan DeBerry, Hoppers, 248 tickets.

The top club sellers were Grantsville, 650 tickets; Country Explorers, 516; and Finzel, 450.

The beef purchased by First United was owned by Brianna Lowdermilk, Snowy Creek 4-H Club. The live weight of the animal was 1,311 pounds. The winning tickets were drawn by Brianna and First United's Sarena Rodeheaver.

After expenses, the remaining raffle monies will be used to support 4-H programs and such activities as Achievement Night, leaders' recognition, teaching materials, awards, ribbons, out-of-county scholarships, promotional literature, and camp scholarships.

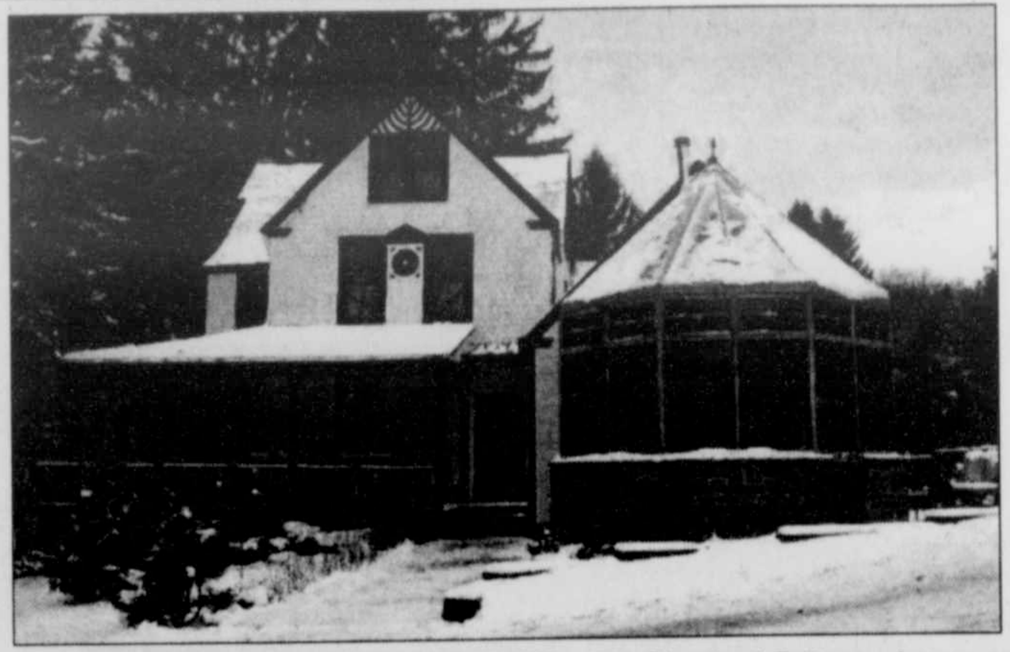
Cleveland Cottage Among Stops On ARC House Tours



CLEVELAND COTTAGE ON ARC TOURS – The Cleveland Cottage – known as such because of its famous guest, President Grover Cleveland, who honeymooned at the cottage with his new wife, Frances Folsom Cleveland, in 1886 – will be among the stops on the 2012 American Red Cross Home for the Holidays House Tours. The tours will be held from 4 to 9 p.m. on Dec. 7 and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Dec. 8. See story.

The historic Cleveland Cottage in Deer Park, where President Grover Cleveland and his young bride, Frances Folsom Cleveland, honeymooned after their 1886 White House wedding, will be among the homes on display during the 2012 American Red Cross Christmas Home for the Holidays House Tours.

The event will be held on Friday, Dec. 7, from 4 to 9 p.m., and on Saturday, Dec. 8, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Cleveland Cottage was constructed in 1884 by the B&O Railroad and was one of several cottages available for rent within the B&O's Deer Park Hotel resort. The house is in the Queen Anne style but, true to its cottage name, does not include the elaborate details of comparable city houses of the day. To the Victorian eye, the house would have been considered rustic.

Although the Deer Park Resort closed permanently in 1929, the Cleveland Cottage survived the Depression, and was vacant for a number of years. Following World War II there was an increased need for housing, and the surviving cottages of the Deer Park and Mtn. Lake Park areas were again occupied by local families. They were at that time modified to add heat, running water, and asphalt siding for insulation. In the early 1970s, prior owners successfully submitted an application to the Maryland Historical Trust for historical designation for the property. The current owners, the Toston family, purchased the cottage in 1994, and the property has been completely renovated since that time.

Within the original footprint of the house, the layout of the rooms has been left intact with a few small exceptions, while providing for modern conveniences, including four bathrooms. As part of the goal of making the house comfortable for 21st century living, a large kitchen addition has been added to the rear of the structure, finished in a Victorian style. A glass conservatory room, popular among Victorians, has also been added adjacent to the kitchen on the east side of the house.

President Cleveland surprised all but his closest friends when, as a 49-year-old bachelor, he married the 21-year-old Frances Folsom in June 1886. The newlyweds traveled in the private rail car of Jim Garrett, president of the B&O Railroad, from Union Station in Washington, DC, to Deer Park. Cleveland is the only president to marry while in office. Frances Cleveland was reportedly a young woman of striking beauty who charmed the media and captured the hearts of the Americans. Stories about the wedding and Deer Park honeymoon dominated the nation's newspapers for weeks.

Those stopping by the cottage during the tours will have the opportunity to see what life might have been like residing in the cottage in the late 19th century.

"If Frances and Grover Cleveland were to turn the doorknob today, they would recognize and again delight in what Cleveland himself exclaimed on the first day of his honeymoon: 'This is a beautiful cottage where we already feel quite at home,'" a family spokesperson said.

In addition to the Cleveland Cottage, this year's tours sites are the private homes of Jeffrey and Patricia Creech, located along Second Street in Oakland, and Jim Tong and Michael Horton, Mtn. Lake Park; as well as the Herrington Mansion, located along Herrington Manor Road, originally of the DelSignore family, and the Loch Lynn Church of God along Rt. 560 near the WKHJ radio station.

There will be raffles at each site, and other special attractions. This is a feature of The Republican to better acquaint our readers with various area business establishments.

First Choice Physical Therapy

A new business, titled First Choice Physical Therapy, has been established in Oakland under the leadership of Audrey Kennedy. The office is located at 1533 Memorial Drive, Oakland, near the intersection of Harvey Winters Road.

Kennedy said the focus at First Choice is on personalized care by the same therapy team every day.

"You're not meeting a different clinician every time you walk through the door," Kennedy said. "Our facility is owned and run by clinicians who live locally and want to provide care we can be proud of."

There are four staff members at First Choice: Kennedy, physical therapist; Susie Alt, physical therapist assistant; Tonya Friend, receptionist; and Dixie Ashby, billing.

Kennedy graduated from Ohio University with a bachelor's degree in physical therapy, and then earned a master's degree in exercise physiology from Cleveland State University. She has been practicing for 19 years, and working in Garrett County for 16 years.

Alt graduated from Allegany College with an associate degree in applied science for physical therapy.

Kennedy and Alt worked together for 14 years at another facility before branching out on their own.

Garrett Community Concert Band To Present Holiday Concert Dec. 2

"On a Winter's Eve" is the name selected for the 2012 annual holiday concert of the Garrett Community Concert Band, which will be presented in the Garrett College auditorium on Sunday, Dec. 2, at 2:30 p.m.

According to Moe Turrentine, GCC Band conductor, the program will include its usual wide variety of holiday favorites, from classical to contemporary, including some with "international flavor." Several of the numbers will highlight the percussion section, where some two dozen different instruments will be played throughout the program.

"Those who enjoy percussion will not want to miss this concert," said Turrentine.

Among the most familiar numbers to be performed will be Leroy Anderson's "Sleigh Ride," an arrangement of "I Saw Three Ships" by Larry Kerchner, Raymond Scott's "The Toy Trumpet," featuring soloist Tom Simpson, and a Mannheim Steamroller version of "Pat-A-Pan."

Concert-goers will be reminded of the pure, crystal voice of the late Karen Carpenter when the band plays her brother Richard's piece titled "Merry Christmas, Darling," while lesser known numbers will include Gustav Holst's "On This Day Earth

Five Perfect Presents Make Giftgiving Easy

(BPT) – The holidays are a special time of year to show the important people in our lives how much we appreciate them – and that means gift-giving. If picking out holiday gifts is painless for you, you're one of the lucky ones. More often than not, people have a tough time finding the perfect present for friends and family, particularly if you have someone on your list who already seems to have everything. So, if you're stumped as to what to get that impossible-to-buy-for person, consider these five gift ideas that are sure to brighten anyone's holiday:

1. Gift Your Services

Rather than giving a tangible item, give your services; it's the perfectly practical gift for the person on your list who may be short on space, lacking financial resources or would just appreciate a little extra help.

Love kids? Offer free child care so the recipient can enjoy an evening out on the town without worrying about the little ones. Have a knack for cooking? Gift a weeknight meal that you deliver to the recipient's doorstep. Known for your organization? Offer your skills to help the recipient organize a closet, office or other cluttered space.

2. Make a Miracle Happen

Positively impacting others by giving a charitable gift in the recipient's name embraces the true meaning of the season.

The new Give Miracles Holiday Catalog from national nonprofit Children's Miracle Network Hospitals features in-demand pediatric items and services that local children's hospitals need – anything from comforting teddy bears ($30) to a case of extra-small preemie diapers smaller than the palm of your hand ($170)! For high-impact gifts like a physical therapy toy kit ($375) or a pediatric wheelchair ($970), funds can be collectively raised by numerous gift-givers. This option is ideal for extended families looking to do something more meaningful than the typical gift exchange.

And to make that "do-good" feeling for the recipient last long after the holidays are over, Give Miracles donors receive ongoing communication from Children's Miracle Network Hospitals throughout the year about how their gift is making an impact at their local hospital. Browse the gift catalog at www.GiveMiracles.org.

3. Purchase a Membership to a Monthly Club

Rather than wasting money on a new gadget that will quickly be forgotten, give a gift that benefits the recipient all year long. Monthly clubs provide fun deliveries to a loved one's address, an ongoing reminder of your generosity. Monthly gift clubs are available for just about anything, from wine and beer, to jams and cheese, to bacon and fruit.

4. Give a Gift that Grows

Potted plants are a fantastic gift idea because they represent how your love continues to grow for that special someone. Plus, plants are a wonderful addition to interior decor and help clean the air. With so many houseplants readily available, you're sure to find the perfect one for the person who has everything.

Does he gravitate toward decor with vivid color? Choose a flowering plant that provides delightful blooms. Does she love Asian culture? How about gifting a bonsai tree or a bamboo plant?

5. Provide an Experience

Often, it's not what's in the box, it's the memory that stays

"Broadway Night" Slated December 1 By TOTL Company

The TOTL Theatre Company (Theatre on the Lake) will host a gala evening of Broadway music at the Barn at Ridgeview Valley on Saturday, Dec. 1, from 6 to 8 p.m. According to TOTL director Lynn Broderick, this "between-the-holidays" concert will feature members of the 2006 through 2012 TOTL Theatre summer company members, including Jamie Clegg, Danielle Riggins, Elizabeth Nelson, Meghan Broderick, Leah Broderick, A.J. DeLauder, and others.

The evening will include music from many of the musicals performed by the TOTL company, such as Big River, Children of Eden, Little Women, The Secret Garden, and Fiddler on the Roof, said Broderick, who added, "and the program may include a 'hint' of what is being planned for the 2013 summer season."

Warm seasonal refreshments will be included. Tickets are $10 and may be purchased online at totltheatre.org or at the door on December 1. Reservations may also be made by calling TOTL at 304-680-1002 and leaving a clear message, indicating the number of tickets needed, and a name and return phone so receipt of one's reservation can be confirmed.

"The Barn at Ridgeview Valley is heated by 'the warmth of fellowship,'" said Broderick, "so everyone is encouraged to dress for the weather conditions."

The TOTL Theatre Company has performed for seven consecutive summers at Deep Creek Lake and has presented 22 productions to date. The company is partially funded through grants from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council.

PREPARATIONS UNDER WAY FOR FESTIVAL OF TREES – Jeannie Bailey and Kris Yusko of the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland are busy in Jeannie's workroom designing one of the two entries to be donated to the fifth annual Festival of Trees, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Nov. 23 and 24, at the Exhibit Hall, located on the fairgrounds in McHenry. Proceeds benefit the Dove Center, a resource center for victims of domestic violence and sexual assault. Jeannie and Kris's entries are titled "Olde World Charm," inspired by Kris's memories of her childhood in Germany. Many other designers are working against a deadline to have their trees, wreaths, centerpieces, and gingerbread houses ready to donate to the festival. All entries will be auctioned at the 6 p.m. live auction on Saturday. There is also a silent auction Friday and Saturday, with donations from individuals, organizations and business people. The silent auction closes at 5 p.m. on Saturday before the live auction begins. Those items are not available at the live auction. Free entertainment will be offered on Friday. Jessica's Creations will be on the stage at 1 p.m. From 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. there will be a robotics demonstration that the children can participate in "hands on." Also free with admission will be Frosty's Funland with crafts and balloons and Santa's Bakery, where children can decorate their own cookies. Friday and Saturday mornings will feature Breakfast with Santa. Each day offers a 9 a.m. or a 10 a.m. seating for a full pancake breakfast. The $10 special ticket includes admission, a gift, and a free photo with Santa in his sleigh. "Reservations are appreciated, and you can contact Sherry at 301-746-8117 or sherbrad@verizon.net," said a spokesperson. "You can also go to fotgc.com and use PayPal. Parents and children are also invited to shop in the festival's Elfenheim Mall, where gifts for family and friends can be purchased for $1 per item."

ARC Holiday Tours To Feature Homes, Church, Mansion

The American Red Cross "Home for the Holidays" House Tours will be held again this year, having been initiated 21 years ago. The tours will be of local houses and one church, all in the southern part of Garrett County, on Dec. 7 and 8. The proceeds from the event will benefit the local chapter of the American Red Cross.

This year's featured tours sites are the private homes of Jeffrey and Patricia Creech, located along 2nd Street in Oakland; Jim Tong and Michael Horton, Mtn. Lake Park; and the Cleveland Cottage, owned by John Toston, located along Deer Park Hotel Road. Garrett Choral Society To Present "Ring Christmas Bells" Concert

The Garrett Choral Society, under the direction of Julie Turrentine, will present its annual Christmas concert on Saturday, Dec. 8, at 7 p.m. and on Sunday, Dec. 9, at 2 p.m. at St. Peter at the Lake Center, near Garrett College. This year's offering is titled "Ring Christmas Bells," and will feature the St. Mark's Lutheran Church Handbell Quartet. Clarinetist Gino Mauricci will also be a guest in the program.

The bell players will accompany the chorus on a number of pieces, and will also perform several selections of their own. The players are Pat Michner, Laura Robinson, Nan Gangler, and Lynn Grimm. Grimm is the handbell director, as well as the accompanist for the choral society.

Mauricci is an accomplished clarinetist, and is also an instrument repairman. He is a longtime member and principal clarinetist of the Garrett Community Concert Band. He will accompany the chorus in a piece titled "Torah Orah."

The choral group will present several pieces composed by Libby Larson, including "Welcome Yule," "Beautiful Star," and "The Shepherds All Are Waking." They will perform a number of works by John Rutter, including "Jesus Child," "Joy to the World," and "I Saw Three Ships." The singers will also perform works by R.V. Williams, Jonathan Willcocks, and Mack Wilberg.

This will be Turrentine's "swan song" with the choral group, as she has decided to retire from the post. Having taken over the position from founding director Nancy K. Learey in 2004, Turrentine will now hand the baton over to Jim Tong, Mtn. Lake Park, whose debut with the group will be at the spring concert of 2013, although he will direct some pieces at this concert as well. While this will be his first stint as director of the GCS, Tong has a lengthy history as an accomplished choral director. A story of the passing of the baton will be published early next year.

Tickets to the choral concert are $10 for adults and $5 for those 18 and younger. They are available in advance from any GCS member, or at Gregg's Pharmacy or Jan Florist in Oakland. They will also be sold at the door, although this concert is often sold out, and pre-sales are encouraged.

This program is funded in part by the Garrett County Arts Council, and also through the contributions of area citizens and businesses.

Volunteers Being Sought To Prepare Holiday Dinners

Thanksgiving is a time when families gather together to enjoy a traditional Thanksgiving meal and recall the blessings of the year. Unfortunately, there are many elderly in the community who may not have this opportunity. So, once again the Garrett County Area Agency on Aging/Community Action is seeking volunteers willing to share a Thanksgiving dinner meal with a home-bound elderly person in the community.

The request is for persons to simply prepare an extra plate or two from their Thanksgiving meal and then to deliver the meal(s) to those persons in need.

Those who would like to volunteer for the program are asked to telephone the Area Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431, ext. 178, by next Monday, Nov. 19.

"Your time and efforts will be greatly appreciated, and you will bring a great deal of happiness to a senior citizen," said Adina Brode of the Area Agency on Aging.

Perfect Presents

with so many people after the holidays have passed. That's why giving a special experience can make a truly meaningful gift.

Think about what really interests the recipient or an activity they've had on their bucket list. Perhaps it's a hot air balloon ride or a white water rafting daytrip. If the person really loves to shop, hire a personal shopper for the day and let her see what it's like to live like a star. If the recipient loves gourmet food, purchase a spot in a class taught by your town's hottest chef.

Any one of these ideas is sure to show that hard-to-shop-for person on your list that you've put some real thought into his/her gift. And ultimately, isn't it the thought that counts?

In The Village

School students will showcase the varied musical talent in this area.

Entrance to Christmas in the Village is free, but visitors may want to participate in one of the annual fundraisers. The final Biederlack blanket sale will take place in the Hostetler House (along with the warm drinks). This weekend will also be the last opportunity to purchase raffle tickets for Gary Yoder's goldfinch sculpture, the drawing for which will take place in the bird sculpture studio on the evening of Saturday, Dec. 8. Proceeds from both fundraisers will go to expanding educational programs in the village, including classes and workshops for adults and children.

Hours for Christmas in the Village will be 4 to 8 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 7, and noon until 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8. For directions or additional information, persons may call the Village office 301-895-3332 or go online to www.spruceforest.org.

Spruce Forest Artisan Village is a non-profit arts and heritage center. Programs are supported in part by the Garrett County and Maryland State arts councils.

Some Interesting Trivia About The Christmas Season

Did you know that:

•"Wassail" comes from Old Norse "ves heill," which means to be of good health. This evolved into the tradition of visiting neighbors on Christmas Eve and drinking to their health.

•A traditional Christmas dinner in early England was the head of a pig prepared with mustard.

•After he wrote A Christmas Carol, Charles Dickens wrote several other Christmas stories, one each year, but none were as successful as the original.

•Additionally, before settling on the name of Tiny Tim for his character in A Christmas Carol, Dickens considered three other alliterative names: Little Larry, Puny Pete, and Small Sam.

•Alabama was the first state to recognize Christmas as an official holiday in 1836.

•An artificial spider and web are often included in the decorations on Ukrainian Christmas trees. A spider web found on Christmas morning is believed to bring good luck.

•Ukrainians also prepare a traditional 12-course meal. A family's youngest child watches through the window for the evening star to appear, a signal that the feast can begin.

•Animal Crackers are not really crackers but cookies that were imported to the United States from England in the late 1800s. Barnum's circus-like boxes were designed with a string handle so that they could be hung on a Christmas tree.

•Candy canes began as straight white sticks of sugar candy used to decorated the Christmas trees. A choirmaster at Cologne Cathedral, Germany, had the ends bent to depict a shepherd's crook, and passed them out to children to keep them quiet during the services. It wasn't until the 20th century that candy canes acquired their red stripes.

•During the Christmas/ Hanukkah season, more than 1.76 billion candy canes will be made.

GC HUMANE SOCIETY OFFERING PURR-FECT CHRISTMAS GIFTS – Tux is looking for special gifts for his friends this holiday season, and the Garrett County Humane Society just may have the solution to his dilemma. The nonprofit, volunteer organization is offering a variety of gifts for people and pets alike. Tux and Santa can pick up specialized Monopoly games (at less than catalog prices), car magnets, pet stockings, handmade wooden ornaments, dog-bone shaped cookie cutters with a recipe, and peanut butter dog treats at the GCHS table during the Festival of Trees, slated on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 23 and 24, in the Exhibit Hall at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. The Monopoly games are also available at Pineview Veterinary Hospital, Oakland. Every purchase enables the GCHS to continue its effort to help homeless and helpless animals. Every year the group provides emergency medical care to all kinds of domestic animals, distributes spay/neuter vouchers, and responds to hundreds of animal neglect calls. "If you would rather not purchase a gift, you can make a monetary donation to the Humane Society," a group spokesperson said. "Please note who the donation is in memory/honor of and where you want the 'thank-you' card sent. Mail your donation to GCHS Treasurer, P.O. Box 115, Oakland, MD 21550. Also remember, you can make this year a merry Christmas for a homeless pet by adopting from a shelter or rescue."

•During the ancient 12-day Christmas celebration, the log burned was called the yule log. Sometimes a piece of the log would be kept to kindle the fire the following winter, to ensure that the good luck carried on from year to year. The yule log custom was handed down from the Druids.

•In southern France, some people burn a log in their homes from Christmas Eve until New Year's Day. This stems from an ancient tradition in which farmers would use part of the log to ensure a plentiful harvest the following year.

•Mistletoe, a traditional Christmas symbol, was once revered by the early Britons. It was so sacred that it had to be cut with a golden sickle.

•The custom of singing Christmas carols is very old; the earliest English collection was published in 1521.

•The Puritans forbade the singing of Christmas carols.

•The first Christmas card was created in England on Dec. 9, 1841.

•The first printed reference to Christmas trees appeared in Germany in 1531.

•The tradition of Christmas lights dates back to when Christians were persecuted for saying Mass. A simple candle in the window meant that Mass would be celebrated there at night.

•The traditional flaming Christmas pudding dates back to 1670 in England, and was derived from an earlier form of stiffened plum porridge.

29th Annual Christmas In The Village Set At Penn Alps

Spruce Forest Artisan Village at Penn Alps, Grantsville, will host its annual holiday event, Christmas in the Village, to celebrate the region's arts and heritage with handcrafted and fine arts, candlelight, and music.

Everyone is invited to join the resident artisans and guest artists for holiday cheer, music in the Village Church, and fine-crafts sale on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 7 and 8. This year, added hands-on activities for children will make the event special for the whole family.

Guests are invited to stroll through the towering Norway spruce among the historic cabins that will be decorated with greenery and lights. Over 400 candle luminaries will line the paths of the village and across the historic Casselman Bridge, which will turn 200 years old in 2013.

Persons may want to visit the House of Yoder to warm up on apple cider and witness an Amish Christmas, or go back in time inside the Compton one-room school, where children may make pinecone bird feeders and decorate cookies.

Some may wish to try their hand at making pottery in the Riverview Clay Studio below the Village Pottery and stop in at each studio gallery to see and buy fine Appalachian crafts, including the pottery of Lynn Lais, the weaving of Ann Jones, Mike Edelman's ironwork, Douglas Salmon's metals, turned wood by Gene Gillespie, and Gary Yoder's world renowned bird and feather carvings.

Guest artisans include Shelley Booska and Four Seasons Stitchery with handmade quilts, Peggy Nixon with slate paintings, and Lenore Lancaster with colored-pencil drawings and prints.

ALTA SCHROCK'S CABIN, named for the founder of Spruce Forest Artisan Village and Penn Alps, Grantsville, will be illuminated with candles, decorative lights, and fresh greenery to celebrate the season at the village. Over 400 candles will be placed throughout the village during the 29th annual Christmas in the Village, scheduled for Dec 7. and 8. Artisan studios and galleries will be fire-warmed and open for holiday shopping, while other hands-on activities, sweet treats, and music in the Village Church will round out the celebration. See story for details. Photo by Marcia Warnick.

Guests will have an opportunity to warm up in the Village Church where local choral groups will sing songs of the season. The programs given by Allegany High School students, St. John's Christian Church choir, Rebecca Galliher and Friends, Betty Mattingly and Jammin' Buddies, the FSU Chamber Choir and Jazz Ensemble, and the Mountain Friends Home
